STRIKERS TAUNT MILITIA

DEMAND PICKETS BE FREED

Workers Denounce Civil Authorities and Plan to Hold Meetings of Ex-Service Men Today.

GARY, Ind., Oct. 6.—Major General Leonard Wood, Commander of the Central Department of the United States Army, tonight took charge of the Indiana steel cities of Gary, Indiana Harbor and East Chicago, with 1,000 overseas veterans of the Fourth Division, armed with cannon, machine guns and rifles, and declared martial law in Gary, while Adjutant General Smith, with 1,000 State troops, declared martial law in the other two steel centres.

No disorder preceded the action of the military today, but the troop movements were brought about by a parade without permit of 5,000 strikers from the steel mills in Gary, led by a large number of former soldiers in uniform, and a mass meeting in a Gary park, where speakers demanded the release of strikers arrested after a riot on Saturday and the withdrawal of troops sent by Governor Goodrich of Indiana at the request of city officers.

This was the first action by Federal troops since the steel strike started on Sept. 22. It came unexpectedly as there had been comparatively little disorder in any of the cities, but the movement was rapid. No sooner had Mayor Hodges of Gary asked Governor Goodrich for troops after the mass meeting had been held in violation of his orders and in defiance of the 800 State troops on duty in Gary than the Governor repeated the request to General Wood at Chicago.

In five hours the regulars at Fort Sheridan had been loaded in trucks and transported fifty miles to Gary. They had barely unlimbered themselves from the long ride before General Wood issued his order for martial law.

The order provided that no public meetings or assemblies might be held "in any street, park, or other portion of the city." However, it specifically exempted from this provision churches, theatres, motion picture houses and lecture rooms.

Forbids Civilians to Wear Uniforms.

The order set fourth that all men in the uniform of the United States Army in the city would be brought to military headquarters immediately. If investigation developed that a particular man was "a part of the armed forces of the nation," the order added, he would be placed under the command of the military authorities in the city for duty. If, however, the man was out of the service, the order stated, he would be held "pending further investigation."

This latter provision was taken to mean that discharged soldiers wearing their army uniforms in the city would be held in custody.

The order was made effective immediately. It set forth that strict enforcement of law would prevail, and called upon all citizens to lend their assistance to the military authorities. The functions of the City Government, it added, would be carried on through the city authorities as much as possible.

No disturbances occurred during the early part of the day, but at noon pickets began pouring out into the streets by hundreds. As a taunt to the four companies of Indiana reserve militia, scarcely 300 strong, several hundred ex-soldiers among the strikers donned their uniforms and walked the streets displaying picket badges.

The strikers were distinguishable from the soldiers only by the rifles which the latter carried. The pickets, in some portions of the city, attempted to organize in a semblance of military formation and in some instances attempts were made to pick fights with the soldiers on duty.

When the crowds began to openly jeer and hoot the militia Mayor Hodges hurriedly outlined the situation to Governor Goodrich by telephone and the Governor called for the Federal troops.

It was 3:20 in the afternoon when the Governor's call reached General Wood in Chicago. At 3:25 his Chief of Staff, Colonel E. H. Humphreys, got in communication with Colonel W. M. Mapes at Fort Sheridan, and at 4 o'clock 100 officers and 916 men, a provisional regiment made up from troops of the 4th Division, which reached Fort Sheridan only a week ago, had been loaded into

CINCINNATI AGAIN BEATS WHITE SOX

Reds Bunch Hits in Sixth Inning and Win Fifth World's Series Game by 5 to 0.

ELLER STAR OF CONTEST

Holds Chicago to Three Bingles Before 34,000 Fans — He Makes Strikeout Record.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—With one grand slam, the Cincinnati Reds fell upon the White Sox in the sixth inning at Comiskey Park this afternoon, and with a violent concentrated attack, hammered Gleason's wild man, Claude Williams, and won the fifth game of the world's series. The score was 5 to 0 and it was Cincinnati's fourth triumph. More than 33,000 fans saw the game. The Reds have only one more game to win to take the championship, and it is expected that this clinching victory will come tomorrow at Redland Field. Chicago's chances now look hopeless.

Another enormous crowd shoved, jammed and elbowed its way into the park this afternoon, the Chicago fans still hoping that Williams would settle down to earth and turn back the rush of the Redland invaders. For a time Williams lived up to expectations. For five innings, he held the Reds at bay. Then, in the sixth, the crash came. It was led by Hod Eller, another one of Moran's pitching wonders, who can pitch and hit with equal skill.

No manager in a world's series ever wallowed in such pitching luxury as the good natured Pat of Cincinnati. In this man Horace Eller, Moran sprung a pitching marvel who eclipsed the great work of his other flingers. Eller takes rank among the world's series best boxmen by holding them to three hits and striking out nine of the White Sox batsmen in the bargain.

Eller Strong in Pinch.

They said that Eller is a trick pitcher and gets his hops and spins and twists with a shine ball. Maybe he does. Whatever it is, the ball obeys his commands without faltering, and the sluggers of the Chicago club looked foolish in the face of his flinging. With Eller pitching unbeatable ball and the Reds keyed up to their fastest pace, the White Sox didn't have a chance this afternoon. Gleason's men were blessed with a grand opportunity to score in the first inning when, with two runners on the base paths and only one out, the hardest hitters of the slabhauler hose, Joe Jackson and Happy Felsch, came up with battle in their eyes.

Eller knew that this was a trying moment. He knew that two of the most dangerous clubbers in the American League were all set to diddle his shine ball. A pitcher is seldom in a more trying situation. The partisan Chicago crowd, eagerly waiting to see the Sox come back, set up a mighty roar. It was the noisiest moment Chicago has known in the present series. It seemed as if the whole crowd was cheering as loudly as possibly for Eller to crack.

Hod measured up to his task as the other pitchers of Moran have done. Jackson hoisted a fly to the infield, which Groh gathered in, and Felsch lofted an easy fly to Pat Duncan. From that moment every Cincinnati sympathizer in the crowd knew that Eller held the Sox in the hollow of his lily white hand.

Chicago has been saying all along that the Reds have been playing in luck. Their alibi has been that lady fortune has been carrying on a rather shocking affair with Moran's ballplayers. After what happened in the sixth inning no Sox rooters can say that the Cincinnati club has been hammering its way to triumph with luck alone. That good, old-fashioned batting rally with the ash resounding with spirited impact against the ball brought the Reds to the front in the tempestuous sixth inning.

Gaze upon the picture. More than 33,000 throats were howling choruses of praise for Lefty Williams, the same untamed lefthander who handed the second game of the series to the Reds with his wildness. A few days ago they were saying that he should join a circus and be locked up in a cage. This afternoon, when he pitched five innings without a break, they were lauding him to the blue skies. His past was forgotten.

Then came the sixth inning, with Hod Eller the first man at the bat. No one suspected, unless it was Moran himself, that here was another slugging slabster like Ruether. Eller leaned on the ball with all his might and whacked a stun-

LEADERS URGE WORK AS BIG INDUSTRIAL CONFERENCE OPENS

Delegates of the Public at the First Session Are Urgent for Results.

LANE IS TO BE CHAIRMAN

Secretary of Labor Wilson Calls for Permanent Industrial Peace Based on Justice.

RAILROAD MEN TAKE PART

Brotherhoods at Last Moment Decide to Send Their Representatives.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Representatives of capital, labor, and the public this afternoon began their industrial conference, out of which President Wilson hopes will grow specific plans for more harmonious relations between workers and employers.

Men and women whose names loom large in the field of business, the field of labor, and the sphere of social reform, gathered in the Hall of the Americas in the Pan American Building, in order to take up the great task set before them by the President. And the spirit at the conference, at least as far as the representatives of the public were concerned, was to get down to business, to stick to it, and to obtain results.

The conference, however, got no further this afternoon than the appointment of two committees, in each of which the three groups in the conference—capital, labor, and the public—are represented by three members. These committees will report tomorrow to the conference.

Franklin K. Lane, the Secretary of the Interior, will be the permanent Chairman of the conference, it was learned from a high and thoroughly reliable source tonight. The decision to recommend his election to this position was reached in a conference of members of a Nominating Committee, which was appointed at the first session of the conference today.

Secretary Lane's election will not only place the deliberations of the conference in the hands of an "outsider," but will mark the selection of a presiding officer who will be satisfactory to both the labor and capital elements represented. It was recalled tonight that the President's decision to summon this round-table conference was the result of a suggestion that was originally made by Secretary Lane, who is in close touch with the views and hopes of the President regarding the work of the conference.

Atmosphere of Tension.

Little developed today that would outwardly show the present strained attitude of capital and labor, but there was a certain atmosphere of tension in the big hall. Massed in a group, the representative of labor sat to the right of the temporary Chairman, Secretary Wilson. On the left of the Secretary were the representatives of the employers. Between these groups sat the men and women representing the public. All three groups appeared intensely interested and ready for business.

Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, headed the labor group, which included Frank Morrison, Secretary of the federation; W. C. Lee of the Order of Railway Trainmen; L. E. Sheppard of the Order of Railway Conductors; Mrs. Sarah Conboy, Secretary of the Textile Workers, and M. F. Tighe of the Iron and Steel Workers.

Not four feet away, across a carpeted aisle which formed a line of demarcation, sat Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Steel Corporation; between John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Miss Ida M. Tarbell. Others in this group, which represented the public, were Dr. Charles W. Eliot, President emeritus of Harvard University; John Spargo, and Charles Edward Russell, (the two latter Socialists); Bernard M. Baruch, C. S. Barrett, and T. C. Atkeson. In the group on the left were Homer L. Ferguson of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Company, Frederick P. Fish, Chairman of the National Industrial Conference Board, and L. F. Loree, President of the Delaware & Hudson Railway.

At practically the last moment, the railway brotherhoods decided to send delegates. These included H. L. Wills of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Timothy Shea of the Firemen, and Messrs. Lee and Sheppard. Up to almost the last minute it had been expected that the 250,000 railway employes would not be represented. But it was announced that Bert M. Allied Indemnity Pool Indorsed to French Deputies

PARIS, Oct. 6.—The Peace Commission of the Chamber of Deputies has approved in principle the proposal to call upon the Allies to form an interallied pool toward indemnifying the allied combatants for their war expenditures.

Deputy Albert Grodet was charged with drafting the report to the Chamber upon this proposal, which will ask for its adoption, with some modifications in the wording of the original resolution.

SUBMARINE RAMS SOUND STEAMER

Steering Gear Failing, the O-7 Rips Plates Off Lexington in Hell Gate Crash.

200 DON LIFE PRESERVERS

Four Men of Navy Vessel Flung Into Water—Ensign Joyce Is Only One Hurt.

The Colonial line steamer, Lexington, bound from New York to Providence, narrowly escaped being sunk last night when she was rammed in Hell Gate by the United States Navy submarine O-7. The submarine's steering apparatus, according to her captain, Lieutenant Commander George E. Junkin, failed to work and the underwater craft, though her engines were reversed, ploughed straight into the bow of the Lexington, to the great alarm of 900 men, women, and children aboard the steamer.

No one on the steamer was hurt and but one of the personnel of thirty aboard the submarine suffered. Ensign James Joyce was taken to Metropolitan Hospital on Blackwell's Island, where he was treated for a dislocated shoulder. He will be removed to a naval hospital.

Ensign Joyce was on deck when the collison occurred. He was thrown against a mast and then stumbled overboard. Three sailors were thrown into the water at the same time. Joyce was able to swim and so were the others, and a tug which hurried up rescued them.

Though the head-on collision at first caused fear and excitement among the passengers, it was found that the only damage to the Lexington was the loss of a few plates just above the waterline. She was able to reach an Astoria dock with the assistance of tugs. The steamer is 246 feet long and of 46 feet beam and 607 net tons. She was built in Wilmington in 1891.

Tug Tows Submarine.

The extent of the damage to the submarine was undetermined, but after she, too, had been towed to Astoria, she found herself unable to proceed under her own power. A navy tug, dispatched in response to a wireless message, towed her to the New York Navy Yard.

The Lexington left Pier 39 at 5:30 o'clock and proceeded up the East River under command of Captain Foster Gray. She was about opposite Eighty-ninth Street, Manhattan, and Woolsey Avenue, Astoria, and a group of interested passengers stood on her forward decks watching her being maneouvred through Hell Gate when a New York, New Haven & Hartford tug crossed in front of her.

Captain Gray at once rang his engines to a dead stop, and at the same instant the O-7, bound down from New London to the Brooklyn yard, loomed out of the semi-darkness. She was pointed straight for the Lexington, but watchers aboard the Providence boat, confident that the trim little underwater fighter knew her own business, for an instant felt no alarm.

Seconds later they realised that the O-7 could not alter her course in time to avoid ramming and the very passengers who had been crowding forward in eager interest to view the approaching submarine were in a mad scramble for the stern.

Put On Life Preservers.

The crash sent many of them off their feet, and the grinding and rasping of shearing plates at first made many on board think the Lexington was sinking. Captain Gray and his fellow-officers directed the passengers to don life preservers and stand by the boats. At the same time the officers and crew hastened to their boat stations. But before the boats were swung out on their davits a hurried examination showed that the Lexington, whose engines had been reversed, had suffered only above the water line and was leaking little, if at all.

Her pumps were got going, as a matter of precaution, and officers and sailors hurried about among the passengers, assuring them they were in no danger, and that so near was the craft to the Astoria shore, she could dock, even if she were badly damaged.

The Lexington backed away from the submarine, which seemed at the moment to be helpless in the strong tide. A number of tugs steaming about saw the crash, and went to give aid. Lines were thrown to the submarine and the Lexington, and meantime Captain Gray

HITCHCOCK LISTS 40 TO PREVENT TREATY "KNIFING"

Tells Tumulty of Program for Democrats Unless Wilson Advises Compromise.

TO OFFER INTERPRETATIONS

If the Republicans Defeat These Then the Treaty Would Be "Suspended in the Air."

SHARP DEBATE IN SENATE

McCumber Flays Johnson Amendment—Tells of California and Massachusetts Opinion.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, leader of the Democratic forces in the fight on the Peace Treaty in the Upper House, called on Secretary Tumulty at the White House today, talking over the treaty and ascertaining the prospects of seeing President Wilson in the near future.

Secretary Tumulty informed Mr. Hitchcock that it was impossible to foretell when the President would be able to take up legislative questions again. He gave the impression that the President's physicians would forbid him to take any part in the treaty controversy for a considerable time.

The Nebraska Senator told Mr. Tumulty that there was no immediate necessity to consult the President in the treaty battle. It would be at least two weeks, he said, before the Senate deliberations passed the stage of voting upon the last of the pending amendments. Until that point was reached the President's advice would not be needed, as the Administration leaders, Mr. Hitchcock felt, had the amendment situation well in hand.

When it came to the reservation program, Mr. Hitchcock told Mr. Tumulty that he and others of the Democratic leaders would like to consult Mr. Wilson. In the event that that would be impossible, he said, the leaders would go ahead on their own initiative.

Senator Hitchcock informed Mr. Tumulty that there were forty Democratic Senators who would stand together to block ratification of the Treaty if the drastic reservations projected by the majority of the Foreign Relations Committee were adopted. These forty, he said, felt that, to adopt the contemplated reservations, would be to "kill the Treaty." Unless advised by the President later to compass a compromise with the Republican majority on reservations, Mr. Hitchcock said, the forty Senators would throw the responsibility for "knifing" the Treaty upon the Republicans.

Mr. Hitchcock was entirely confident, he told Mr. Tumulty, that the remaining amendments to the treaty would be defeated, including that of Senator Johnson of California to equalize the voting power of Great Britain and the United States in the League of Nations Assembly. The assertion of the Republicans, he said, that they would probably carry that amendment by a majority of one would prove false.

Might Leave the Treaty "Suspended."

After leaving the White House, Mr. Hitchcock, explaining the attitude of the forty Democrats who would vote to reject the treaty if stringent reservations were adopted that would necessitate recommitting it to the principal signatories, said:

"There is no doubt of the ability of the Democrats to defeat the treaty if the proposed killing reservations are adopted. The Republicans may adopt the reservations; I am not counting votes at this time, but if they do, and the reservations are of the nature now contemplated, it may be set down that the treaty will not be ratified."

The procedure of the Democrats on the majority reservations, Mr. Hitchcock explained, would be to throw their strength against each of them in turn, as voted upon, the reservations constituting amendments to the resolution of ratification. If the reservations were adopted by the necessary majority vote, the minority, Mr. Hitchcock said, would then have to muster 35 votes to reject the treaty.

"And that," he added, "would be an easy matter."

In this contingency, after the resolution of ratification, with the majority reservations embraced in it, had been rejected, Mr. Hitchcock explained, a substitute resolution, probably with interpretative reservations, would be offered by the Democrats. If this were defeated, he said, the treaty would be "suspended in the air."

"The Republicans face the alternative of taking the treaty without reservations such as, in effect, would kill it, or see-

United States Warships Are to Leave Spalato; Admiral Andrews to Avoid Complications

ROME, Oct. 5, (Associated Press.)—Rear Admiral Philip Andrews, in command of the American squadron, has issued orders for the withdrawal of the American ships from Spalato. American food supplies are being removed from the city.

Admiral Andrews, according to advices received here, has declared to the Italian authorities at Spalato that the United States wishes to remain outside of any complications and that responsibility rests entirely with Italy.

Jugoslav reports say that Admiral Andrews has received instructions to the effect that any future attempt against the Spalato-Trau zone would be considered as directed against the United States.

Spalato is one of the larger ports of the southern Dalmation Coast and only twelve miles east of Trau, where American marines late last month prevented a clash between Jugo-Slavs and Italians by inducing a band of the latter, who had landed there, to withdraw.

The town was the scene last March of a clash between Italian sailors and Jugoslav civilians. Rome asserted that the inhabitants attacked the sailors, but according to a later version the Interallied Commission blamed the Italians. Rear Admiral Niblack was asked by the Commission to enforce order.

Only a week ago a Rome dispatch stated that Rear Admiral Andrews, then in command of our Adriatic forces, was having difficulty in maintaining order in Spalato because of the intense feeling between Italians and Jugoslavs and was frequently obliged to intervene to prevent serious disorders. As a result of his course, said the dispatch, he was being accused by both sides of siding with the other.

At that time, the dispatch added, he was stationed at Spalato on board the cruiser Pittsburgh and had at his disposal seven destroyers and two submarine chasers.

Evidently the Italians had naval representatives at Spalato, for it was the senior officer there who went to Andrews and thanked him in behalf of the Italian Admiral for the marines' services at Trau.

BRINGS $5,125,000 IN GERMAN GOLD

Destroyer Arrives with First of $158,000,000 Berlin Government Is to Pay for Food.

HALF OF SUM IN LONDON

Shipment Contains Specie Paid on Franco-Prussian Indemnity in 1870.

The United States destroyer Laub, known as No. 262, arrived yesterday from Antwerp and landed $5,125,000 in German gold at Pier 12, Brooklyn. The specie, packed in iron-clamped wooden cases and guarded by Secret Service agents under William Kavanaugh of the United States Department of Justice, was conveyed in motor lorries to the New York Federal Reserve Bank, 120 Broadway.

This is the first direct shipment of gold from the German Government in part payment of the $158,000,000 for food and supplies of all kinds which was arranged for by Food Administrator Herbert Hoover when he was recently in Berlin. One half of the $158,000,000 has been shipped from Berlin to London and placed in the Bank of England, which is the London agent for the Federal Reserve Bank.

The gold for the American banks has to be nine-tenths pure against the eleven-twelfths pure demanded by the English banks. The German specie has to be assayed in London under the direction of the representative of the Federal Reserve Bank before it is shipped to New York and allocated to the various banks in the United States.

The shipment received yesterday from Antwerp included a quantity of English sovereigns dated 1870 and French Napoleons of the same date which were paid by France to Germany as part of her indemnity after the Franco-Prussian War, and had been kept all these years in the vaults of the Julius Tower in the town of Spandau. After the war ended a total of $30,000,000 was taken out and placed in the Reiche Bank, Berlin. There were also Austrian, Belgian, and Russian gold coins in the consignment of $5,125,000 received yesterday in the destroyer Laub.

FRENCH WOULD INSIST ON BALTIC DEMANDS

Rumor That Berlin's Joint Commission Suggestion Has Some American Support.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—Inasmuch as there was no meeting of the Supreme Council today, owing to the absence of Frank L. Polk, head of the American delegation, who is on a visit to the Rhine region, there was no formal discussion of the reply of the German Government to the note of the Peace Conference ordering the immediate withdrawal of German troops from the Baltic provinces.

It is not easy today to predict what the Allies will do with the German suggestion of a joint committee to work out a solution of the Baltic problem, but it seems a good guess that the conference will reject it, although at least one of the American delegates favors it. The French are said to be strongly opposed to making any alteration in the terms laid down and to favor holding Germany strictly to account, which means maintaining the blockade until the German troops are withdrawn. No opinion was forthcoming today from the British delegates.

WILSON'S CONDITION BETTER

He Realizes the Importance of Submitting to a Rest Cure.

BUT HIS SPIRITS VARY MUCH

Frequently He Indicates His Great Desire to be Out of Bed.

GRAYSON DENIES RUMORS

Patient Has Had Neither Slight Abscess on Brain Nor Slight Hemorrhage of Brain.

Physicians' Bulletins on President's Condition

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The following bulletin on President Wilson's condition was given out at the White House tonight:

WHITE HOUSE,
Monday, Oct. 6, 10 P. M.

The President had a fairly comfortable day, with a slight improvement. GRAYSON.

The morning bulletin read as follows:

WHITE HOUSE,
Monday, Oct. 6, 11 A. M.

The improvement in the President's condition noted yesterday has continued. He had a satisfactory night. GRAYSON,
RUFFIN, STITT.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Slight improvement in the condition of President Wilson was announced at the White House tonight by Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, the President's physician, in charge of the case. The morning bulletin, signed by Rear Admiral Grayson, Rear Admiral Stitt, head of the Naval Medical School, and Dr. Sterling Ruffin, also indicated a continuation of the improvement noted in the President's condition yesterday. Admiral Grayson said tonight that he felt better about the condition of the President than at any time during the past three days and that, as compared with Thursday night, there had been a decided change in the President's condition.

Despite the improvement in the President's condition, it can be stated that he is still a very sick man and that the greatest care must be exercised in the handling of the case. Admiral Grayson and those in charge of the case have prescribed an "absolute rest cure" for the President.

They have insisted that the President must be kept as quiet as possible, for fear of the possible consequences of exertion on his part, and want him to rest in every sense of the word. This applies to mental rest as well as to physical rest. For this reason no business whatever is being brought to the attention of the President and none will be submitted to him unless it is of the highest importance and most urgent character.

The President had some ups and downs in his condition today and his spirits were variable. But the net result of the day's care and his rest was such as to enable Admirable Grayson to make the statement that the net gain was a slight improvement. All sorts of rumors have been running the gamut of gossip in the Capitol regarding the exact nature of the President's illness, but these were discounted tonight by Dr. Grayson in his unofficial and informal talk with the newspapermen at the White House.

One of the most insistent reports has had it that the President's real trouble has been a slight abscess of the brain. From such scattered places as Philadelphia and Baltimore this rumor has reached Washington and has also been gossiped around the Capitol. When this rumor was brought to Dr. Grayson's attention tonight he stated informally that there was no foundation for it.

Another very persistent report has had it that the President had suffered from a slight cerebral leakage or hemorrhage, but this was also discounted tonight when brought to the attention of Dr. Grayson.

From all that can be learned about the exact nature of the President's ailment, beyond the statement in one of the earlier official bulletins that the President was suffering from "nervous exhaustion," it can be stated that the greatest concern is being manifested by those in attendance on him over future developments rather than over what has already developed. In the President's present run-down and nerve-weakened condition the purpose is to keep him in as absolute quiet as possible, and to save him mental labor and activity such as might strain some of the finer vessels in the head and lead to more serious consequences.

The President has been assured that the treaty situation in the Senate is not just at present such as to cause him immediate concern, that the business of the executive department does not assume such shape as to occasion him any worry, and that there is every prospect now that the labor conference, over

CABINET MEETS, LANSING PRESIDING

Tumulty Denies Rumor That Marshall May Be Asked to Act as President.

QUESTION NOT DISCUSSED

Dr. Grayson's Report Is Heard and Little Found Requiring Wilson's Consideration.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—A special meeting of the Cabinet was held at the White House this morning to consider phases of the situation created by the illness of the President. Secretary Lansing presided. All other members of the Cabinet were present. Secretary Tumulty later issued this statement:

"The Cabinet was called to consider several questions in which more than one department is concerned. The most important of these is the basis upon which the annual estimates are to be made in view of the new services after the war. Another is the approaching labor conference for the sessions of which complete arrangements have been made.

"Admiral Grayson reported that the President's condition is encouraging, but suggested that only urgent matters be brought to his attention, in order that his rest be made as complete as possible. The state of business in the departments is such that there is little requiring the President's immediate consideration."

The Cabinet meeting gave rise to a rumor that Secretary Lansing and his Cabinet associates were seriously considering the question whether the Vice President should be called upon to act as President during the period of the President's disability should he be unable for some time to discharge the powers and duties of his office, or whether they could perform all the functions relating to their departments until the President had recovered. When Secretary Tumulty was asked whether the Cabinet had considered the matter of asking that the Vice President be called upon to act, he said there was no foundation for the report.

From another source it was learned tonight that no steps had been taken toward asking Vice President Marshall to act. It was learned that the Vice President might not want to act unless requested by the President or his Cabinet, and unless such decision were concurred in by both branches of Congress. If the President's medical advisers should urge the President to request his Cabinet to ask the Vice President to act during any disability of the President, such as is covered by the Constitution, the procedure, it is learned, would probably be to ask both branches of Congress to recognize such a request by passing a concurrent resolution. But it is believed that the President would have to act in conjunction with the executive body before the Vice President would consent to act in the matter.

Section 1 of Article II. of the Constitution provides as follows:

In case of the removal of the President from office or of his death, resignation, or disability to discharge the powers and duties of the said office, the same shall devolve on the Vice President, and the Congress may by law provide for the case of removal, death, resignation, or inability both of the President and Vice President, declaring what officer shall then act as President; and such officer shall act accordingly, until the disability be removed or a President shall be elected.

When you think of Writing Think of WHITING.—Advt.

which he has been much concerned, will get under way with the right foot forward tomorrow.

The President, it is understood, fully realizes his condition, and the importance of submitting to the absolute rest cure prescribed. His spirits have been variable, however, and recurrently he indicates a desire to be out of his bed. This variability of spirit on the President's part is regarded by his physicians as being perfectly normal and human.

"No person," said one close to the President tonight, "least of all the President, likes to be kept on a rest cure, but he has on the whole been a good patient."

There are numerous visitors to the White House daily who make inquiries at Secretary Tumulty's office, but no person outside of the members of the immediate White House family, and the physicians are being permitted to see the President. M. Jusserand, the French Ambassador, who went to Paris with the President, has called every day, and other diplomats continue to call or make daily inquiries. Champ Clark, former Speaker of the House, also made a personal call to make inquiries at the White House this afternoon.

Baseless Report About McAdoo.

William G. McAdoo, the President's son-in-law, former Secretary of the Treasury, who hastened to Washington last week, has left the White House, but will return, it is understood, in a few days. The report current in Wall Street, based on a statement published in a bankers' information publication issued here this morning that Mr. McAdoo had been called in "to take supervisory charge of the executive branch of the Government," and indicating that Mr. McAdoo was acting very much as the President's "alter ego" in this situation, was discounted tonight in circles closest to the President. If Mr. McAdoo has been serving in any such capacity any evidence of activity in that direction has escaped the attention of men who have occasion to visit the White House and the executive departments daily. Mr. McAdoo, so far as can be learned, has not been in conference with Cabinet members and was not in attendance upon the Cabinet meeting today.

There is now little doubt that the reported plan of Colonel E. M. House to return from Paris to Washington at once has been hastened by the condition of the President. It is known that Colonel House was due to return soon, but it was understood that he has left a little earlier than he would if the President had not been stricken down with illness. Colonel House is closer in the confidence of the President than probably any other man, and his presence in Washington this month is expected to have a favorable influence on the President's frame of mind.

All told, the state of the President's illness now has reached the point where, while his attending physicians are pleased with the improvement they have noted, they insist that there must be every effort to bring about absolute rest for the President to prevent either a relapse or complications.

Sympathy from the Pope.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6, (Associated Press.)—President Wilson continued his progress toward recovery today, his physicians reporting that the cumulative effect of several comfortable days and nights slowly was making itself felt in a gain of strength. However, it was emphasized that he still was far from being a well man.

There was no indication that the President would be permitted to resume the duties of his office at any time soon, although it was said he might be able to give attention to some official matters late in the week.

A message expressing the interest of Pope Benedict in the President's illness and saying he prayed for a speedy recovery reached the White House today through the State Department. The message, signed by Cardinal Gasparri, the Papal Secretary of State, was as follows:

The Holy Father is most anxious about the condition of health of President Wilson. His Holiness wishes and prays speedy recovery and would be grateful to be kept informed about the course of illness of the illustrious patient.

Acting upon cabled instructions from the Chilean Foreign Office, Counselor Jose L. Riesco, of the Chilean embassy, called at the State Department late today to express the sympathy of his Government at the illness of the President.

The Foreign Office has instructed the embassy to keep it informed daily as to his condition.

BRITISH TRIBUTE TO WILSON.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The London Times says this morning:

"It is with deep and real concern that English people learned of the serious illness of President Wilson. All the sister peoples of the empire share their sorrow and their anxiety, for to all these vigorous democracies the qualities which gained for him the admiration and regard of our countrymen at home make the same appeal.

"To us and to them he has been above all else an apostle and prophet of what we hope best, and of what we most highly honor in the great nation from which he comes.

"We care nothing about his domestic politics. Millions of our fellow-subjects scarcely know the issues which divide Democrats and Republicans, and among those who do know, the views of the Republicans commend themselves to maybe as many as do the views of their opponents. It is as an exponent and champion of the fundamental convictions and sentiments of Americanism, and not of this or that school or party, that Mr. Wilson has fired the hearts of the British masses as no foreigner has ever done.

"We felt at once that the lofty ideals he held up to his own people were our own. They had come from common stock and, as he poured them forth in one great oration after another, and summoned his countrymen to live for them and to die for them with us, a thrill of rejoicing and of gratitude scarce paralled in English history passed through our land. This man could speak to us as he could speak to his own countrymen, his thoughts and his standards were ours.

"It is not too much to say that no sickbed in our time or, perhaps, in any other time," says The Daily Chronicle, "has commanded such universal concern and sympathy. Not only America but mankind has a lot and part in Wilson's welfare. The words of our own poet have never been more accurately applied than when they were used of him:

"'The pillar of a people's hope,
The centre of a world's desire.'"

LONDON, Oct. 6, (Associated Press.)—The Westminster Gazette this afternoon says:

"The entire English-speaking world follows his progress with sympathy and concern. His collapse is due to the sacrifice of himself for the causes he valued so much—democracy, justice, and peace. If the task is unfinished, that only means that humanity still needs his cooperation all the more."

The Evening News says: "No man in the world of democracy had to bear a greater burden. We trust that enforced rest will restore him to health and strength, so that he may bring his work to a fitting conclusion."

VIENNA, Oct. 5, (Associated Press.)—Vienna newspapers contained today for the first time comment on the illness of President Wilson.

The Volksblatt says: "The spirit of the Master walked through the world, but he from whom we hoped for salvation did not see it. Him, nor did he grasp His mantle. He is now stretched on his bed, where he has ample time to reflect on his lost opportunities."

Recounting the sacrifices made by America on entering the war, the Neue Freie Presse comments on Mr. Wilson's "high ideals at the beginning and his subsequent actions. If they says it his illness forces him to abandon office "it will be an important political event because it would then become doubtful if the Peace Treaty, with the League of Nations, would be ratified by the Senate.

Speculating on world politics as they would develop in such an event, the newspaper predicts "The whole peace of Versailles would totter. The peace is as sick as Mr. Wilson."

TURKEY BIG PROBLEM FOR POWERS AGAIN

Downfall of Cabinet Attributed to Renewed Ascendency of Young Turk Party.

NEW MINISTRY FORMED

Mustapha Kemal Said to Have Army of 300,000 Men in Asia Minor.

PARIS, Oct. 6, (Associated Press.)—The new situation in Turkey, which has arisen through the resignation of the Cabinet, is regarded in French circles as confronting the Peace Conference with another grave and urgent problem. The downfall of the Government is attributed to the occupation of Konieh by Nationalist forces under Mustapha Kemal, who, according to some estimates, has 300,000 men.

The press generally considers that Asia Minor has entirely escaped from the control of Constantinople, and that the Young Turks are regaining the upper hand. Some of the papers point out that there is no force available to deal with the refractory elements, and others ask whether the Entente Powers are sufficiently united and inclined to the necessary powerful intervention.

A new Cabinet has been formed in succession to the Ministry of Damad Ferid Pasha which resigned recently, the new Grand Vizier being General Ali Riza Pasha.

The rescript of the Sultan defines the mission of the new Cabinet as being to arrange for the holding of elections and convene the Parliament.

The Constantinople dispatch carrying the foregoing announcement gives the names of the remainder of the Cabinet as follows:

Minister of Foreign Affairs.—MUSTAFFA RECHID PASHA.

Minister of War.—DJEMAL PASHA.

Minister of the Interior.—DAMAD SHERIF PASHA.

Minister of Justice.—MUSTAPHA BEY.

Minister of Public Works.—HAMED ABOUK PASHA.

Minister of Agriculture.—HADI PASHA.

Minister of Instruction.—SAID BEY.

According to L'Intransigeant the resignation of the Cabinet of Damad Ferid Pasha was the result of the ultimatum from General Mustapha Kemal, the Nationalist leader, who has set up a new Government at Erzerum and has issued a call for elections to a new National Parliament to meet at that place, away from the influence of the Entente. Following the occupation of Konieh, which is connected by railroads with Constantinople (Asiatic side) and Smyrna, Mustapha Kemal called upon Damad Ferid to resign with his entire Cabinet.

French official circles direct attention to the fact that Djemal Pasha, the new War Minister, is the political ally of Mustapha Kemal, and the French generally are of the opinion that the change in the Cabinet may result in stabilizing the Government and extending its authority over greater territory.

The Sultan's decree, according to the version received by the French authorities, outlines a policy, which appears to embody an endeavor to reach an understanding with the Nationalists.

CALIFORNIANS PROTEST JOHNSON'S ATTITUDE

Demand for League by Organizations and Individuals as Read in the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The telegram from Los Angeles read in the Senate this afternoon by Senator Hitchcock was signed by William Bowen, President, and Roy Malcom, Secretary of the Los Angeles branch of the League to Enforce Peace. It read in part:

"The following telegram is sent to you by the Los Angeles branch of the League to Enforce Peace as a brief summary of important actions that have been taken by individuals and organizations in Southern California on the subject of the League of Nations and its ratification by the Senate of the United States during and following the visit and address here of Senator Hiram Johnson, and is intended as a recital of the principal facts showing that the sentiment of the people of the State of California is overwhelmingly in favor of the League of Nations and directly opposed to the attitude taken on the subject by Senator Johnson.

"The morning after Senator Johnson's speech in Los Angeles the following letter as an answer thereto was addressed to him by more than 150 men and women widely representative of all Southern California:

"'Your recent statement that California stands with you in your opposition to the covenant of the League of Nations is incorrect. Hundreds of polls taken by newspapers, clubs, and societies indicate that at least 75 per cent. of the votes are for immediate ratification without amendment, which will be the first great step toward allaying the unrest of the world. Present chaotic world conditions will not, in our judgment, improve until the Allies reach a common understanding in matters of such grave import. We believe a representative ought to reflect the sentiments of the majority.'

"The Board of Directors of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, representing a membership of over 3,000, unanimously passed the following resolution:

"'Resolved, that it is to the best interests of the country that the United States Senate speedily ratify the treaty and League of Nations as it now stands, without amendment.'

"The following signed statement was published by prominent Judges and attorneys:

"'We have given careful study to the covenant of the League of Nations and have given due attention to the arguments which have been advanced in support of and in opposition to the covenant; further, we see clearly that unless the Senate ratifies the Peace Treaty, with the League of Nations, our country must stand alone against the world and we must enter upon a stupendous program for naval and military armament which means a crushing burden of taxation upon every man and woman in America, and that our thought and energy must go for munition manufacturing rather than for reconstruction and development of our resources for peaceful pursuits. We urge every thinking man and woman to consider this matter wholly apart from partisan bias, racial hatred and national jealousy, and to lend his or her influence to secure the ratification of the treaty with the League of Nations.

The telegram proceeds to say that the Central Labor Council of Los Angeles unanimously adopted a resolution stating that we deplore the position taken by Senator Johnson and ask him to cease his opposition to the covenant of the League of Nations.

"At a meeting of Southern California clubwomen, 4,000 club Presidents being in attendance and 10,000 club members being represented, the telegram says, a resolution was unanimously adopted approving the ratification of the Treaty and the covenant.

On the morning of Senator Johnson's arrival in Los Angeles Mayor Meredith P. Snyder was requested by the Johnson committee to make an address of welcome to the Senator. His response was a 900-word signed statement in support of the League.

The Mayors of a number of Southern California cities, including Santa Monica, San Bernardino, Pomona, Santa Ana, Pasadena, and Ventura, sent signed statements enthusiastically indorsing the League.

The lay and ministerial conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church of California adopted strong resolutions indorsing the League, and action to the same effect by other organizations and individuals is set forth in the telegram.

EXPECT LEAGUE COUNCIL TO MEET ABROAD

League of Nations, with Italy's Assent, May Be in Operation in a Month.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—With the prospect that Italy will ratify the Peace Treaty by royal decree soon, and thus effect ratification by three powers, Administration officials here look to see the League of Nations a going concern within the next month, although the treaty may not be ratified by the Senate within that time.

Great Britain has already ratified, the French Chamber of Deputies has ratified, and official advices here say that the French Senate will act within a few days. With Italy, these will make the three nations which it is stipulated must ratify before the treaty becomes effective between them and Germany.

One of the treaty's provisions compels the Sarre Basin Commission to begin functioning within two weeks after ratification, and this is expected to start the League on its career. Much preliminary organization work has been done in London by Sir Eric Drummond, Secretary General, and the Organization Committee, of which Colonel E. M. House is an American member. The sudden departure of Colonel House for the United States is thought here to have some connection with the developments.

The plan at present looks to the meeting, perhaps in London or Paris at first, of the Council of the League, leaving the meeting of the assembly to follow within a reasonable period, for the council under the terms of the covenant is fully empowered to deal with the Saare Basin and other urgent questions. It is also necessary to allow the neutral States sixty days after the ratification of the treaty by the principal powers within which to adhere to the covenant and nominate their representatives in the assembly, which would bring the date for the initial meeting of the latter body early next year and permit the carrying out of the original plan of having the first meeting of the full assembly take place in Washington at the call of President Wilson.

Meanwhile the council will be in operation, it is expected, and the machinery of the machinery of the league will begin to function in accordance with the plans prepared.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—According to a dispatch from Rome, a royal decree ratifying the Peace Treaty with Germany will be signed today.

WANTS REPORT ON PERSIA.

McCormick Asks Information on Representations to Britain.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Senator McCormick, Republican of Illinois, introduced in the Senate today a resolution asking the State Department to report whether any American representatives had gone to Great Britain regarding the Anglo-Persian treaty and if any reply had come from the British Government.

The resolution went over under the rules.

BAN MEETINGS IN TIMES SQ.

Police Order Covers Broadway from Forty-second to Fiftieth Street.

Owing to the increasing congestion on Broadway, Captain Samuel Belton of the West Forty-seventh Street Station issued an order last night forbidding meetings of any sort to be held on Broadway between Forty-second and Fiftieth Streets.

The order will affect the Salvation Army and the Volunteers of America, who have been holding regular meetings in the district, as well as many soapbox speakers who attracted crowds from time to time. The Recruiting Bureau of the 71st New York Regiment has moved its quarters to Broadway above Fiftieth Street.

Col. House Sails for Home.

BREST, Oct. 6.—Colonel E. M. House sailed for New York today on the transport Northern Pacific. He arrived in Brest this morning from Paris.

SAYS NEGRO UNION PLOTTED UPRISING

GOT MONEY FROM MANY

I. W. W. Pamphlets Found in Akron, Ohio, Intended to Inflame Negroes Against the Whites.

HELENA, Ark., Oct. 6.—E. M. Allen of the Committee of Seven, authorized by local officers and Governor Brough to investigate the negro troubles, charges that an organized negro uprising was fostered by a negro who preyed on "the ignorance and superstition of a race of children for monetary gains."

Mr. Allen, who was one of the leading men marked for death, after hearing confessions, examining circulars, and other evidence produced by State and military officers in connection with the work of the committee, issued the following statement to explain what the Committee had found to be the situation leading to the killing of five white men and upward of a score of negroes.

"The present trouble with the negroes in Phillips County is not a race riot. It is a deliberately planned insurrection of the negroes against the whites, directed by an organization known as the 'Progressive Farmers and Household Union of America,' established for the purpose of banding negroes together for the killing of white people. This union was started by Robert L. Hill, a negro, 26 years of age of Winchester, Arkansas, who saw in it an opportunity of making easy money. He had been a farmer all his life, but lately had been posing as a 'private detective doing work in this and all foreign countries.'

"Hill started his first union work in April of this year," Mr. Allen said. He told the negroes it was necessary for all members of the union to arm themselves in preparation for the day when they should be called upon to attack their white oppressors.

"Negroes were charged $1.50 entrance fee and negro women 50 cents," Mr. Allen said in his statement.

"Another form of extortion was to sell shares of $10 each to all the negroes in a proposed building to be erected by the union at Winchester," the statement says.

"His meeting at Winchester in August was attended and addressed by white men. He simply played upon the ignorance and superstition of a race of children—most of whom neither could read nor write.

"I have cross-examined and talked to at least 100 prisoners at Elaine. They belong to different lodges in that section. The stories they tell are almost identical as to promises and representations made by Hill. He even told them that probably some of the negroes would be called upon to die before equal rights would be assured, but they must look upon themselves as crusaders and die if necessary to secure the freedom of the other members of their race.

"As far as oppression is concerned, many of the negroes involved own mules, horses, cattle and automobiles, and clear money every year on their crops after expenses are paid."

Robert L. Hill, named in confessions of prisoners as the leader of the negro organizations, eluded capture in the first roundup of men wanted by civil and military officers. He is believed to have escaped to the canebrakes and a search for him is in progress by soldiers and deputies who have warrants. In an effort to capture Ed Ware, alleged lieutenant leader, and a band of twenty other insurgent negroes believed to be still at large, 500 soldiers at daylight today were thrown out in a cordon encircling an area of approximately thirty-five square miles in southern Phillips County.

AKRON, Ohio, Oct. 6.—Evidence that the I. W. W. organization is endeavoring to arouse Akron negroes to action against law and order was uncovered, police say, in the arrests late yesterday of a number of organizers and seizure of inflammatory pamphlets.

The pamphlets were violent in tone and urged negroes to take immediate steps to punish members of the white race to secure "redress" for imaginary wrongs which were vividly pictured.

Two alleged headquarters of I. W. W. workers were raided.

CLAIMS ON MEXICO PUT AT $25,000,000

Senate Witness Holds Carranza Is Not Responsible for Damages Due to Rebels.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Thomas B. Lill, who reorganized the accounting system of the Treasury Department of Mexico, was asked today by Senator Fall, Chairman of the Senate sub-committee investigating Mexican affairs, what the total of claims filed against the Mexican Government would be. Mr. Lill said he did not believe the total sum would exceed $25,000,000. Senator Brandegee asked the witness if he happened to know a single claim amounting to about $50,000,000 that was held against the Mexican Government. Mr. Lill replied that he did not.

Mr. Lill expressed the opinion that under international law Mexico was not responsible for damages due to the activities of Villa, Pelaez, Felix Diaz, and other rebel leaders.

Mr. Lill said that in his opinion, based on intimate contact with the Carranza Government, Mexico was not anti-American.

URGES WAR ON 'REDS' HERE.

Dr. Eaton Tells Laundry Owners We Must Root Them Out.

With several hundred delegates present from all parts of the United States, the thirty-sixth annual convention of the Laundry Owners' National Association began in the Grand Ball Room of the Hotel Pennsylvania yesterday morning. One of the chief speakers was Dr. Charles A. Eaton of Plainfield, N. J., who has just returned from France and Belgium.

"The war," said Dr. Eaton in his speech, "has given civilized men a new point of view. It has strengthened the lust for blood, and, worst of all, it has inspired many with the notion that by the ruin of our social and political institutions they may obtain prosperity for themselves. As we fought the Hun in Europe, so now we must fight the Bolshevist in America."

"Our institutions are on trial as never before," he added. "We must face this fact and every citizen must re-learn the meaning and machinery of his Government. We must find our faults and weaknesses and cut them out with relentless hand. Our political institutions need improvement, but we shall do the improving ourselves and not have it done by imported anarchists."

"When we quit holding revolutionist conventions and class conferences," he said in conclusion, "and the enacting of fool laws as a substitute for production and get down to brass tacks and go to work, we shall begin to see our way out of the woods. All that you employers find lacking is good will. The old social binder of moral obligation is gone. We must bring the employer and employe together again. As man to man they must face their mutual interests."

The convention adopted a resolution expressing confidence in the National Industrial Conference in Washington. The morning session was devoted to hearing the reports of committees and the address of the President, Otto Rice.

GEORGIA MOB BURNS TWO NEGROES ALIVE

Citizens Await the Delivery of Accused Blacks to Sheriff and Then Seize Them.

CHAIN VICTIMS TO STAKES

Whole Affair Is "Orderly"—Lynchers Disclaim Any Feeling Against Negroes.

Special to The New York Times.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Oct. 6.—Jack Gordon and Will Brown, negroes, were burned at the stake at 4 o'clock this morning, at Wright's Institute, about a mile and a half from Lincolnton. Deputy Sheriff Roy Freeman, whom Gordon is alleged to have shot Saturday night, which act precipitated the tragedy, is dying.

When word reached Lincolnton late yesterday that Gordon had been captured in Wilkes County and turned over to Sheriff Callaway, who had placed him in the county jail, immediately a large posse of citizens set out for Washington, where they waited for hours the arrival of Sheriff Jim Kelly of Lincoln County, to which the prisoner was to be delivered.

The Lincolnton citizens were orderly while in Washington, making no effort to storm the jail, but being determined that Sheriff Callaway should not spirit the negro away.

During the long wait a portion of the posse left Washington for Lincoln county and about thirty minutes after their departure (it was then after midnight), Sheriff Jim Kelly arrived and Gordon and another negro, Will Brown, who had aided Gordon in making his escape from Lincoln County, were delivered to him.

As the officer set out from Washington for Lincolnton tonight, he was followed by ten or twelve autos filled with citizens. When Wright's Institute, about a mile and a half from Lincolnton was reached, the citizens overpowered the sheriff, forcing him to release the prisoners.

Iron stakes were driven into the ground to which the two negroes were chained and after cord wood was piled about their bodies, the torch was applied.

The mob which overpowered the Sheriff was orderly and not a gun was fired throughout the transaction. The negroes were not riddled with bullets but burned.

The lynching is said to be in no wise an evidence of ill feeling toward the negro race in Lincoln County as the anger of white citizens was directed solely at the negro Gordon and his accomplices. Quiet reigns today and no further trouble is expected.

LINCOLNTON, Ga., Oct. 6.—Deputy Sheriff Freeman, shot, it is alleged, by Jack Gordon, one of the negroes who was burned alive by upward of 1,000 white citizens of Lincoln County near here today, died of his wounds late tonight.

His death is the fifth since Sunday morning, when his alleged shooting by Gordon precipitated mob violences in which three negroes were killed.

GREENVILLE, S. C., Oct. 6.—A posse last night failed to capture Joe Turner, the negro charged with having killed two officers here yesterday during a raid on a card game in the negro quarter. The pursuit is being continued. Quiet prevails here and no race trouble is anticipated.

Succeeds Dean Gay at Harvard.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 6.—The appointment of Wallace B. Donham, a Boston banker, as Dean of the Graduate School of Business Administration, was announced by the Board of Overseers of Harvard University today. He succeeds Edwin F. Gay, who resigned recently to become publisher of The New York Evening Post. Mr. Donham has been Vice-President of the Old Colony Trust Company and served for several months as receiver of the Bay State Street Railway Company.

40 TO PREVENT TREATY 'KNIFING'

ting it beaten," said Mr. Hitchcock, "and the blame for defeating it would have to be on them."

Asked if the minority leaders might come to a compromise with the Republicans on amendatory reservations, so as to avert the eventuality of rejection of the treaty, Mr. Hitchcock replied:

"We are not talking compromise. I can see no tendency toward it on the Democratic side of the Senate."

Republicans Firm on Program.

Republican Leaders, appraised of Mr. Hitchcock's assertion that the Democrats would vote to reject the treaty if the projected reservations were adopted, were not disposed to take the threat seriously. They argued that the Democrats probably would balk, at the last moment, at taking the responsibility on their own shoulders for defeating the treaty.

The Republicans will go ahead with their reservation program, their leaders said, with the assured prospect, as they see it, of adopting all of the committee reservations, with a change in Article X., to meet the views of the middle-ground Senators. The Republican Leaders at this time count upon the entire forty-nine Republicans and at least five Democrats to vote for their reservations.

Owing to the absence from the Capitol today of Senator Lodge, the majority leader, who was on his way back from Boston, the Senate failed to go into debate on the Lodge amendment to restore the economic privileges on the Shantung Peninsula to China. Mr. Lodge, it was stated, would open the debate on it tomorrow. The Republican leaders still expect, they say, to reach a vote on the Shantung amendment by the latter part of the week.

Today's debate was confined chiefly to the Johnson amendment, although it was not before the Senate for immediate consideration. Senator McCumber, Republican, of North Dakota, who has offered a reservation as a substitute for the amendment, opened the debate and it was participated in by Senators McCormick, Republican, of Illinois; Lenroot, Republican, of Wisconsin, and Walsh, Democrat, of Montana.

McCumber Assails Amendment.

Senator McCumber assailed the amendment as being entirely unnecessary. He argued that Great Britain and its Colonies and Dominions could not, in fact, outvote the United States on any matter involving the two countries, as the League constitution explicitly provided that nations could not vote in any disputes in which they were interested.

Mr. McCumber characterized as "false" the arguments of those who were saying that, in every dispute among nations, Great Britain would have six votes in the League of Nations assembly against one for the United States. By insisting in increasing this alleged inequality of voting upon the public mind, the Senator said, the League critics were producing an antagonism, based upon a fictitious premise.

"All over the country Senators are shouting day and night that Great Britain, with a diplomacy which has outwitted every other country, has secured an advantage of a six-to-one vote over each and every other country represented in this world conference," said Senator McCumber. "What a compliment that is to the intelligence of the representatives of every other country!

"As a matter of fact, Great Britain never could get these self-governing dominions should have separate membership in the league at all. She was quite willing to assume the responsibility of representing them. But, they preferred to represent themselves just as they had represented themselves in declaring war—just as they had represented themselves on every field of carnage during the four long years of the bloodiest battles this old earth has ever witnessed.

"These nations, rising from the battle trenches, bleeding and blood begrimed—these nations with the fever of battle yet in their hearts—these nations which for four years had witnessed their brave men mowed down by the merciless machine guns and mangled by bursting shells—these nations standing by the sanctified graves of their noble dead—these nations that have passed through the mouths of a thousand hells that this earth might be made safe for free people and free governments, demanded of their own right the privilege of sitting in the council chambers of the Assembly—demanded the modest right to speak on the affairs of the world they had fought to save with a voice as potent as that of Haiti or Uruguay or Liberia.

Spurns Distrust of Dominions.

"No nation represented at this great world conference had the courage or the right to deny them this little recognition. And as an American who honors heroism and loves justice I shall never cast a vote of distrust against a single one of them."

Arguing that Great Britain would not be able to outvote the United States in any matter involving the two countries, Mr. McCumber said that the only power which the delegates in the Assembly would have in any dispute would be to "say what the facts were in any controversy."

"Neither the Council nor Assembly is constituted a board of arbitration," he said. "Neither even enters a judgment or an award."

If the Assembly is deciding what the facts are between Czechoslovakia and Turkey, both the British Empire and Canada would, I think, have a vote. If the question were one in arriving at the facts pertaining to a dispute between Massachusetts and the British Empire and any other nation, neither that nation nor any member of the British Empire would have a vote.

"Why? Because the parties to a dispute are eliminated from the decision by the provisions of Article IV., and the dispute with a part of an empire as I have stated, is a dispute with the whole empire, and a dispute with a dominant member is a dispute with each part. I do not think any one questions that proposition."

Mr. McCumber recalled that ten countries of the Western Hemisphere, following the lead of the United States, had declared war on Germany. He said that "the foster children and wards of the United States in South and Central America" would stand with this country on questions that might arise in the League.

Senator McCumber urged the adoption of his reservation as a substitute for the Johnson amendment, to provide, in effect, that in disputes involving Great Britain and any other power in the League, neither Britain nor any of its colonies or dominions shall cast a vote.

Lenroot Challenges McCormick.

In replying to Senator McCumber, Mr. McCormick declared that it was obvious from the attitude taken by President Wilson and Premiers Clemenceau and Lloyd George at Paris that Canada, as one of the component parts of Great Britain, was to have representation, not alone in the League of Nations Assembly but in the Council as well.

"The Canadian Premier was assured, in the letter signed by the three statesmen at Paris, said Mr. McCormick, 'that Canada's insistence upon recognition in the League Council would prevail.'

"I do not see how any one can argue that the United States, with but one vote, is protected against the six votes of Great Britain. These six votes, if Great Britain cared to mass them, could be used against the United States in any controversy in which Great Britain and the United States voted. That gives Great Britain an unfair advantage of six to one against the United States. I fail to see how that can be ignored."

Senator Lenroot, who is opposed to the Johnson amendment, asked Mr. McCormick if he thought the representation of the United States ought to be increased to six votes in the League Assembly.

"What is the remedy the Senator proposes?" asked Mr. Lenroot.

"If the League covenant is to remain as a political instrument I believe the representation of the United States and Great Britain ought to be equal," replied Mr. McCormick.

"But if Great Britain with its six votes cannot vote in any dispute involving her and the United States, how would the inequality of vote hurt us?" demanded Mr. Lenroot.

"I maintain that many instances will come up in which the inequality of vote would seriously affect the interests of the United States," insisted Mr. McCormick.

Differ on State Sentiment.

Early in the day various Senators indulged in an interchange of comment upon recent developments outside the Senate in the treaty controversy. Senator Hitchcock, the minority leader, started it by putting into the record a lengthy telegram he had received from the California League to Enforce Peace stating that Senator Johnson had been repudiated by his own State in his opposition to the League of Nations. The telegram stated, among other things, that the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, representing over 3,000 members, had adopted a resolution urging that the treaty be ratified speedily and exactly as written.

Senator Borah of Idaho countered with a reference to the action of the Massachusetts Democratic Convention on Saturday in urging that an amendment similar to that of Senator Johnson to equalize the votes of the United States and Great Britain in the League Assembly be adopted by the Senate.

Replying to this, Senator Hitchcock remarked that the Massachusetts Republican Convention, on the same day, had urged that the treaty be speedily ratified and had put itself on record as opposed to the Senate majority amendments.

"According to my construction of the Republican convention's action," replied Mr. Borah, "it is an unqualified indorsement of reservations vigorous enough to accomplish certain specific purposes. That may not be my own program, but it is certainly far from that of those on the Democratic side of the chamber, who favor ratification without any change whatever."

"I suggest that Senator Johnson may be able to recoup any losses among California Republicans by the gains he will make among the Democrats of Massachusetts."

Mr. Hitchcock said that the Massachusetts Republicans had unequivocally repudiated the attitude of Senator Lodge in urging the amendments reported by the majority of the Foreign Relations Committee.

"From developments all around, it seems that Republicans as well as Democrats are urging ratification of the treaty without the drastic changes advocated by the majority leader and those standing with him," said Mr. Hitchcock.

When Senator Borah requested that the Massachusetts Democratic platform be put in the record, Senator Nelson, Republican, of Minnesota asked:

"Why not insert the platform adopted by the Massachusetts Republicans, which might throw light on the subject?"

Senator McCormick interjected a reference to the recent Congressional election in Alabama, in which he said the Democratic candidate pulled through by the narrow margin of some 400 votes against his Republican adversary, on a League of Nations issue.

Senator Edge of New Jersey referred to the action of the Democratic State Convention at Trenton last week, which, he said, had expressed itself as declining to indorse the League of Nations as part of its party platform unless it took, proper care of the people of Ireland.

"This, mind you," said Senator Edge, "was in the President's own State and with a democracy that has, perhaps unfortunately, been of some consequence to the Democratic forces of the country."

Penrose Sees Ratification By Nov. 1.

Senator Penrose today predicted that the Peace Treaty would be ratified, and that the extra session of Congress which convened on May 19 would come to an end by Nov. 1. This statement was made after Senator Penrose had conferred with the Senate leaders. It is his belief that no textual amendments to the treaty will be adopted, but that reservations covering all the principal objections raised against it will be embodied in the ratification resolution.

"The Senate," he said, "is working hard and conscientiously on the Peace Treaty. No time is being lost. But the treaty involves an enormously important proposition, which should not be handled hurriedly lest mistakes be made which the American nation would regret for all time.

"It is impossible to tell now when the Johnson amendment to give the United States equal representation with other nations in the League of Nations Assembly will pass. The lineup is very close and the refusal of several Senators to state positively their attitude makes it all the more impossible to predict how the amendment will go. Two votes may decide its fate one way or the other.

"But if the Johnson amendment is not adopted the Senate is sure to adopt a reservation covering the important question which it involves. Reservations are certain if amendments fail because we are sure of more than sufficient votes to adopt reservations.

"Really there is little difference between an amendment and a reservation. All the squabble over amendments and reservations is but time wasted over technicalities and a reservation will show the world where the United States stands toward the treaty and League of Nations as clearly as an amendment would.

"I expect Congress will adjourn until the regular December session as soon as the treaty can be disposed of, or about Nov. 1. There is little to be gained by remaining here and clearing up the few legislative matters that may be hanging fire when the treaty is ratified. Besides, the Senators and representatives will want to be home in November to vote at the elections."

GERMANS TO BE TRIED LISTED BY THE ENTENTE

Hearings for Accused Officers Will Be Rushed When Treaty Goes Into Effect.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—England, France, and Belgium have submitted to the Peace Conference their final lists of German military officials to be delivered up by Germany according to the responsibilities clause of the Peace Treaty. The United States has not and will not submit any names. This does not mean that the United States disapproves of the trial of Germans who violated the laws of war and of humanity. America will probably participate in the action against those Germans accused by the Allies. In view of the probable early date of the treaty's coming into effect, a list of the accused Germans is being rushed to completion.

It is known that many Frenchmen including some high-ranking Generals, did not approve of the policy of trying the German military officials, but the latest developments indicate that they have lost suit and that those Germans responsible for atrocities on French soil will be brought to justice within a month after the third Entente power ratifies the treaty. This list will be served upon the German Government, which will be called upon to surrender those named.

The name of the Kaiser is not on the list. It is supposed he will be dealt with as a separate undertaking.

Harbord Returning from Turkey.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—Major Gen. James G. Harbord, who has been heading an American mission to study the situation in Turkey and the Near East, has advised the Supreme Council that he is returning from Tiflic to Paris. He will probably arrive in about ten days.

BRITAIN RESUMING RAILWAY TRAFFIC

Return of Strikers Makes Nearly Normal Operations Possible Today.

BARNES CONDEMNS STRIKE

Labor M. P. Calls It "a Wanton Attack on the Wellbeing of the Community."

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The railway strikers in most cases went back to work today, and the usual passenger services will be running tomorrow. It is now divulged that London could have withstood a food siege for three weeks, so well had the Government stored thirteen great warehouses on both side of the Thames.

Another fact is that not one-tenth of the complete arrangements made for the strike had been carried out before the settlement came—a point which illustrates the strength of the Government's position.

More than this; the whole of the milk scheme, down to the last detail, had been worked out months before and was put into operation immediately the emergency call came. The forethought of the Food Ministry in providing against such a contingency months before it occurred saved many thousands from suffering. So ably had this plan been carried out that all that remained to be done was to telegraph code words to responsible organizers in different parts of the country. Similar plans for insuring the supply of bacon, cheese, etc., were also in hand, and had no settlement been arrived at the country could have withstood the abnormal conditions indefinitely.

Barnes Praises Both Sides.

G. N. Barnes, M. P., Labor member of the War Cabinet, gave an interviewer today his impressions of the strike as "a guide to the well-wishers of labor and the State." He said he saw in the strike a significant revelation of class solidarity and the spontaneous sympathy of all ranks of labor with the railwaymen.

Again, he noted the sense of responsibility recognized by the transport workers' organization and the other trade union representatives who acted as mediators. These men could have brought many workers out at a time when feeling was high, but instead they applied themselves to mediation and to allaying ill-feeling.

In the third place, the men on strike behaved with great restraint. There had been a few stupid cases of sabotage, but these only brought into relief the general orderliness and discipline of the men as a whole.

It should be noted, also, that the Government had shown equal restraint. There had been no parading of soldiers, no awkward commitments, and no unnecessarily provocative acts. The men's places had been held for them, and, generally speaking, the road to a settlement had been kept open all the time.

The strike, he said, has brought out in a remarkable degree the tremendous resources of the State faced with stoppage of the main arteries of the country. The Government had improvised emergency services in a remarkably short space of time and with such efficiency as to lessen the inevitable inconvenience to the public and the hindrance to the food supply.

Barnes Condemns the Strike.

The "lightning stroke" of the railwaymen was not the formidable menace many thought it to be. Road transport, internal combustion engines and the existence of a Food Ministry were new factors that should have a moderating effect on the minds of many who thought it was within the power of the railwaymen to paralyze the community into submission in a few days.

Mr. Barnes said that the railwaymen's loyalty and discipline have been exploited. Negotiations had been broken off by their executive when the Government was willing to go on. He believed the strike as needless; the men could have got by negotiation quite as much as they obtained by the strike. Those responsible for the strike were guilty of a wanton attack on the well-being of the community.

The Government, he thought, should be relieved of these labor disputes. At all events, in the first instance it was absurd to hold up other public business while the Government was engaged in the settlement of disputes to which it had made itself a party. Adjustments should be made by independent authority. They were so made for all other Government workers, with a final appeal, of course, to the Government or a strike. In the case of railway employes he would favor adjustments by a board of some kind, on which there might be representatives of the railway executives and also of the users of the railways. Among the latter might be labor representatives.

Lastly, he said, the fact had been demonstrated that public opinion was the great force which ultimately settled everything.

Relieving Dock Congestion.

One of the revelations of the nine days' strike was the rapidity with which the most efficient motor transport service on record was organized to meet the sudden call for the continuance of the nation's daily food supply. It was more wonderful than anything accomplished in the same line during the war. A full account of it has not yet been compiled, but its achievements are known to all householders in London and the large provincial cities, who found their daily requirements met almost to the full, in spite of the paralysis of railway transport.

This magnificent service, organised under the direction of the Food Ministry, is now partly disbanded so far as commandeered trade vehicles are concerned, but service trucks and many of the emergency motor vehicles brought from the Slough depot and elsewhere and manned by volunteers have now been switched off to the relief of the congested dock warehouses of the Thames.

This congestion constituted another emergency which called for urgent treatment, and today a great motor truck column is attacking every dock in the hallwick of the Port of London Authority. Further service may be required of this newly formed transport auxiliary, and it has been suggested to the Government that it would be wise to keep a list of volunteer transport workers who can come to the assistance of the community in case of another emergency.

The record made by the Food Ministry is a strong argument for its continuance as a permanent part of the administration. At any rate, it is urged that a skeleton organization should be maintained after all the emergency work of next Winter is done. There is a popular demand for continued control as a means of keeping down food prices, as well as for the fair distribution of supplies, and the experiences of the last Summer and of the last week have shown how the power of charging according to supply can be abused. Moreover, it is generally recognized that the food resources of the country are still insufficiently organized, although the agricultural side has been vastly improved by Lord Lee, both in his capacity of Director of the Food Production Department and as Agricultural Minister. The Food Ministry and the Wheat Commission, however, regulate the great volume of food imported and the fish supplies, and there is great responsibility attaching to the control of these food resources during the period of high prices, of which at present the end cannot be foreseen.

A Defeat for Extremists.

One of the best comments on the strike was made today by Sir Donald MacLean, leader of the Independent Liberals in the House of Commons, when, speaking at the Manchester Reform Club, he said that the "wild men" on both sides had been beaten by the settlement. He described the sudden strike order as hitting a bit below the belt—a practice which the British people always resented. In future, he said, the nation would demand more publicity on such disputes. There had been far too many private conferences. Secret negotiations produced calamities. Industrial trouble was worldwide, and, with all these terrible dangers hovering about, the people should be taken into the confidence of the Government and the labor unions.

As a sample of the anonymous threats that were addressed to London newspapers last week The Daily Mail publishes the following message sent by a "press worker" to Lord Northcliffe:

"Don't worry about stopping the publication of your different journals, because long before that occurs—very likely at the beginning of next week—your workers will have taken control and will run The Daily Mail for themselves; likewise all other London newspapers. Arrangements are being rapidly completed."

Most Strikers Resume Work.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Great Britain's railway system was again in operation today as the result of the settlement yesterday of the great railway strike, averting what threatened to develop into an ominous spread of the nation's labor troubles. Virtually every man engaged in railway work in London returned to his duty before 9 o'clock this morning. The various rail services did not speedily reach the normal state, however, because of the displacement of the railway's material that had resulted from the suspension of work. In the country districts also the resumption was general, except in the outlying districts, where telegrams announcing the settlement and ordering the men back to work could not be delivered last night.

The railway companies promised today that virtually regular service would be in operation on their lines tomorrow.

Work in the coal fields, which had been stopped owing to the lack of freight cars, is now being resumed rapidly. The Irish mail service has also been started again.

J. H. Thomas, Secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, said this morning that in some rare instances strikers had refused to return to work with men who had volunteered to continue work during the strike, but he hoped that this difficulty in carrying out the terms of the settlement would be overcome. On the other hand, one company declined to permit strikers to return, thus creating a serious situation, but Mr. Bonar Law is endeavoring to rectify the matter.

SHIPS CLEARING FOR BRITAIN.

Shipping Board Partly Lifts the Embargo Due to Recent Strike.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The embargo against the sailing of Shipping Board vessels to Great Britain was partly lifted today by the Shipping Board, as a result of the ending of the railroad strike in that country.

Agents of the board at Atlantic and Gulf ports were instructed to clear and dispatch immediately all vessels now completely loaded, and to proceed with the loading of vessels for which the cargo was at the docks or booked. The agents were instructed, however, not to resume bookings beyond commitments already made.

There was no indication today when the embargo would be lifted completely, but immediate action was not expected, because of the congestion at the docks in Great Britain, resulting from the strike of railway workers.

HAND LAUNDRIES CLOSED.

Workers Ask Recognition of Union and Arbitration on Wages.

Practically all of the so-called hand laundries, exclusive of those conducted by Chinamen, on the Upper West Side, as well as many in other parts of the city, were closed yesterday on account of the strike of workers, whose demands had not been granted by the employers. The steam laundries, some eighteen in number, were also affected to the extent of 1,000 or 1,500 workers who were engaged in the branch of the industry that handles the washing for the hand laundries.

Estimates of the total number of workers out varied from 5,000 to 10,000, as did also the estimates of the number of workers employed in the industry in this city. Charles H. Van Doren, Chairman of the committee of the Steam Laundry Owners' Association, said that there were about 12,000 workers engaged the laundry industry in New York City, and not more than 1,500 or 1,500 in the steam laundries are engaged on work sent from the hand laundries.

A series of conferences were held yesterday between union leaders and the owners both of hand and steam laundries, but no agreement had been reached at a late hour last night.

STREET CLEANERS MEET.

Drivers and Sweepers Want Further Increase in Wages.

The joint committee of the drivers and sweepers of the Department of Street Cleaning and a committee of the American Federation of Labor, headed by Hugh Frayne, met at Washington Hall, in Eighth Street, yesterday afternoon to discuss a plan for a rehearing of the previous demands of the workers for an increase in wages.

The men are not satisfied with the proposed increase of $330 a year, it was said, and want the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to reopen the matter. A representative of Mr. Frayne said that no public announcement would be made of the program to be followed until Street Cleaning Commissioner Arnold B. MacStay had been consulted.

While all talk of a strike in the event of a denial of the application to have the case reopened was avoided around Washington Hall yesterday afternoon it was said that if the hearing is denied the committee will ask that the increase in wages be effective as of Sept. 1, 1919, instead of Jan. 1, 1920.

Silk Workers Get Rise, Drop Strike.

SCRANTON, Penn., Oct. 6.—The first break in the silk strike which has tied up a score of mills in Lackawanna County came today. Employes of the Klotz Mills in this city, Carbondale, Forest City, Simpson, and Archbald accepted a compromise offer of the company and returned to work. They receive an increase in wages, but no reduction of hours. About 2,500 employes are affected. Strikers at the Petersburg mill of Roilling & Schoen have received virtually the same concessions and will probably return to work Wednesday morning.

MORE PRINTERS OUT; TAKE 'VACATIONS'

Publicity Chairman of "Big Six" Declares 3,000 Members Are Idle Through Sympathy.

FEW OBEY ORDER TO RETURN

Periodical Publishers Say Work on Most of November Issues Has Been Discontinued.

Less than fifty of the 1,200 members of "Big Six" Typographical Union, who went on "vacations" last week in sympathy with the locked out pressmen and feeders, returned to their jobs yesterday morning in compliance with instructions of the Executive Committee of the union and ratified at the mass meeting of the organization Sunday afternoon, according to the reports made to the headquarters of the Association of Employing Printers. But the number of "vacationists" was increased by the walkout of 600 additional compositors.

S. Oppenheimer, Chairman of the Publicity Committee of "Big Six," said that there are now 3,000 members of the union idle in New York City, one-third of this number because there is no work for them to do, as the pressrooms are closed, and the other 2,000 had taken "vacations."

Many of the "Big Six" members, who are on "vacations" visited union headquarters yesterday to learn their status in the union. When they were told that they must return to work or their places will be filled, nearly all declared their intention of remaining out and taking others with them. The "vacation" method has been adopted rather than call a strike, so that the union's standing in the international organization will not be affected.

No Conferences Held.

Meanwhile there were no conferences yesterday between employers and union officials looking to a settlement of the controversy, it was said. President Leon H. Rouse of "Big Six" had communicated indirectly with the employers and it was expected the Printers' League section, which meets this morning, will have a request for him for another joint meeting. The meeting probably will be held tomorrow.

James J. Bagley, President of Franklin Union No. 23, composed of job press feeders, one of the principal "outlawed" unions, said yesterday that between 105 and 110 printing offices in the city had signed an agreement for the $14 increase and forty-four-hour week, including four members of the Printers' League. The agreement, he said, is for all branches of the craft, including "Big Six" members. He said that agreements had been signed for 850 of the 3,000 pressmen in the city. The pressmen who are working, he said, have agreed to give their extra salary of $14 a week toward the assessment fund for the benefit of the men out of work.

November Issues Held Up.

The Dispatch Printery and Bindery Corporation, 2 Lafayette Street, is one of the places that has signed up. E. E. Tooker, President of the company, said that he was a member of the Printers' League. His pressmen walked out and the International Union sent five men to take their places. Pickets for the "outlaws" soon took three of them away. He was then notified, he said, that if the two others remained the typographical men would not put it was then that he decided to sign the new agreement. But his troubles were not to end here. When he thought he was about ready to start up he received notice from F. W. Ringler Co., 28 Barclay Street, that electrotypers and stereotypers, that the company had been told that they must make no more plates for the Dispatch Printery or the stereotypers would quit. Mr. Ringler said that he would place the matter before the Employing Electrotypers and Stereotypers' Association at a meeting in the Central Savings Bank Building this afternoon.

John Adams Thayer, Secretary of the Periodical Publishers' Association of America, with offices at 200 Fifth Avenue, said yesterday that work on the November issues of most of the big publications in New York City had been entirely closed down as a result of the labor controversy. The publications, he said, continue to receive overtures from other cities to move their offices, but so far none has decided to leave New York. The publishers do not appear as hopeful for an early settlement of the controversy as they were a few days ago and are preparing for a waiting game that may last several weeks.

8-HOUR DAY FOR NURSES.

Presbyterian Hospital Announces a New Schedule of Duty Hours.

The Presbyterian Hospital announced yesterday that it had adopted the eight-hour day for student nurses. Heretofore nurses on the day shift have worked nine and a half hours, and those on night duty eleven hours. The new schedule provides a fifty-six-hour week for night and a fifty-two-hour week for day duty. It is expected by the management that the shorter hours will bring more efficient service and improve the health of the nurses.

The fifty-two-hour week includes eight hours a day for five days and six hours for the remaining two, giving a free half day on Sunday and forty-four per day during the week. Those in authority feel that, in addition to other advantages, the nurses will have more time for study and for their home life in the building given by the late John S. Kennedy for the use of the students of the school.

11 INVENTORS CLAIM TANKS.

Royal Commission in England Will Decide Who Was First.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Settlement of the much-discussed controversy as to who invented the tanks may be arrived at through an investigation of the Royal Commission on Awards to Inventors which began its session today. No fewer than eleven inventors are making claim to the bounty in respect to the original conception of the tank or to improvements in construction.

The Chairman, Mr. Justice Sargant, said each of the claimants was making a claim to the bounty of the crown, although it might be that no claimant was entitled to anything, having regard to all circumstances. The crown was in the position more or less of a defendant. The Attorney General and other counsel would make a general statement as to the historical evolution of tanks. It is believed that Winston Churchill will place his knowledge of the matter before the commission. It would be open to counsel to cross-examine Churchill within certain limits. Then each claimant would be allowed to present his case and witnesses would be called and examined. The cases will be taken in historical order.

Claims have been made by, among others, Major Gen. Swinton, Sir E. Tennyson Deyncourt, Commodore Sueter, Lieut. Col. Boothby, Sir William Tritton, and Colonel Crompton.

REGISTER AND ENROLL TODAY.

Unless you register you cannot vote in the general election Nov. 4; if you fail to enroll you cannot vote in next year's important primary election. Registration hours every day this week to-Friday 9 P. M. to 10:30 P. M., on Saturday 7 A. M. to 10:00 P. M.

MANY ROOSEVELT MEETINGS

Memorial Association Plans Gatherings of Confreres of Late President.

The many sidedness of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is to be emphasized in a variety of ways in the campaign to be made in the week beginning Oct. 20, to obtain additional members for the Roosevelt Memorial Association, according to a statement given out yesterday by Colonel Lloyd C. Griscom, Chairman for the Borough of Manhattan, of the local committee of the association.

"Plans are being matured," said Colonel Griscom, "for a memorial meeting of naturalists and nature lovers, in token of his unusual achievements as a faunal naturalist. There will be gatherings of big game hunters, of athletes, and of men who served in the Spanish-American War.

"Perhaps few will remember that Colonel Roosevelt was at one time a student in Columbia University Law School, although he was never admitted to the bar, but there is a movement among lawyers for a special tribute to him as one of their profession. A group of literary men is planning a meeting of writers and journalists to commemorate his rather unusual ability in the fields of authorship and journalism. His former relations with the New York Police Department, and with the Navy Department of the United States will be the subjects of special meetings of tribute. So too, it is expected, will the fact of his having been in his youth a Captain in the National Guard of New York, be commemorated as one of the collateral features of Roosevelt Week."

It was announced yesterday from the local headquarters of the movement that no partisan line will be drawn under any circumstances, but that on the contrary, the co-operation of members of other political parties than that with which Colonel Roosevelt was affiliated, is especially welcome.

REFUSES LEGION OFFICE.

Supreme Court Candidate Accepts Nonpartisan Declaration.

Philip J. McCook, candidate for the Supreme Court, refused yesterday to accept an office in the American Legion which was offered him, on the ground that if the legion were to accomplish the things which the future holds for it to do it must be kept freed from the taint of partisan politics.

"Much as I appreciate the honor," said Mr. McCook, "I do not feel I should accept the office. I am a candidate for public office, and as such I do not think I should have an executive position with the legion. The New York County organization recently passed resolutions opposing the holding of office in the legion by a candidate for public office, and I am heartily in favor of that action."

The resolutions to which Mr. McCook referred were adopted a week ago.

directed the passengers to get their luggage together and be prepared to leave the ship the moment she docked.

Propelled largely by her own power, the Lexington made her way to the dock of the New York and Queens Electric Light and Power Company at Mills Street, Astoria. The O-1 reached the same dock a few moments later.

From the submarine a wireless was sent to the Brooklyn yard, telling of the collision and advising that the boat was in no danger of sinking. When the navy tug arrived its commander megaphoned to Commander Junkin, asking if the O17 was able to proceed alone to the yard. The reply was that the submarine had a little power of her own, but that she would require a tow.

Tide Carried Submarine.

"We were proceeding down the East River, bound from New London to New York," Commander Junkin then explained to newspaper men, "and a moment before the collision something went wrong with our steering apparatus. We were powerless to control her. We saw the Lexington coming on, of course, and we tried to avert the accident by reversing our engines, but the strong tide carried us on and sent us into the bow of the Lexington. We shall proceed to the Brooklyn yard for repairs."

Commander Junkin expressed his gratification when he learned that none of the Lexington's company was injured.

Captain Gray at first directed his passengers to disembark and proceed by trolley to the Colonial Line's offices in West Houston Street. There, he assured them, they would be sent on to Providence by rail. Most of those aboard followed his directions. But when they learned that it was his intention to have the Lexington towed back to her pier, after examination showed her to be less badly damaged than had been feared, about thirty decided to remain on board. They went to their berths with the Captain's permission. Then it was decided not to attempt the tow in darkness, but to lie alongside the Astoria dock till this morning when the Lexington will be brought back to New York. The passengers, however, were left undisturbed in their beds.

Passengers who went to the company's office received rail transportation, or refunds of their fares.

BIG INDUSTRIAL CONFERENCE OPENS

ployes Department of the A. F. of L., brought about an agreement among the railway men, and persuaded them to appear.

Besides the official delegates from the three groups, many spectators and perhaps 100 newspaper men were present, as well as Secretaries Daniels, Houston, Baker, and Burleson. Others were Ray Baker, Director of the Mint; Grosvenor Clarkson, Secretary of the Council of National Defense; Joseph P. Tumulty, the President's Secretary; John C. Koons, First Assistant Postmaster General, and William Z. Foster, Secretary-Treasurer of the organization committee of the steel workers.

Neither John L. Lewis, acting President of the United Mine Workers of America, whose organization has announced a strike for Nov. 1, nor Frank Duffy, Acting President of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, was present today, and this caused some comment, as their names had been included in the list of labor delegates.

Absence of President Felt.

Even with the personnel present, the absence of President Wilson made the occasion somewhat like the play without Hamlet. There was no intimation today of any special wish of the President other than the original letter he sent out calling the conference. When Secretary Wilson was asked if it was fair to assume that he would convey to the conference the desires of the President, he said:

"I would not wish any impression to be given that the Administration desires to influence the conference."

In opening the conference Secretary Wilson introduced John Barrett, Director General of the Pan American Union, who made a short speech of welcome. Rowland B. Mahany, former Minister to Ecuador, acted as temporary Secretary. When he called "Elbert E. Gary," Mr. Gary interrupted, "H.—H. Gary," he corrected. Mr. Mahany omitted the name of Paul L. Feiss of Cleveland. Later Mr. Feiss rose and announced his presence.

"Mr. Feiss, called Mr. Mahany in a startled fashion, "there was a report that there was a death in your family, and the Secretary was not sure but that it was yourself."

"We hesitated, Mr. Feiss, to announce your name under the circumstance," hastily put in Secretary Wilson.

The Secretary of Labor made a prepared address in which, after dwelling upon the problems facing the world as the result of the wastage of war and the financial inflation in all commercial countries which had played havoc with the relative values of money, wages, and commodities, he continued:

"The effect of these things has been reflected in the high cost of living, and the consequent demand for higher wage rates to meet the increasing burden of the family budget. Yet increases in the wage rate do not always give relief. The more productive we are the sooner we will replace the wastage of war, return to normal price levels, and abolish the opportunity for profiteering.

"For that reason we are all interested in the maintenance of industrial peace, but there can be no permanent industrial peace that is not based upon industrial justice. Surely human intelligence can devise some acceptable method of adjusting the relationship between employer and employe.

"Upon your shoulders rests a splendid responsibility. Before you the doors of opportunity are open. If you, in the abundance of your combined wisdom and experience, can produce an acceptable document of this character, the results of your work will find a place in the hearts of men like the Magna Charta, the Bill of Rights, the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution of the United States, and the Emancipation Proclamation."

Sincere applause from all three groups met the closing words of the Secretary. Arrangements were then made for the appointment of the memberships of the committee. The groups returned during a recess, and then announced the memberships of these committees as follows:

Nominating Committee.

Representing the Employers.—Herbert F. Perkins of the International Harvester Company, representing the Chamber of Commerce of the United States; J. W. O'Leary of A. H. O'Leary & Sons, Chicago, National Industrial Conference; Edgar L. Marston of Blair & Co., New York City, Investment Bankers' Association.

Representing Labor.—Frank W. Morrison, Secretary of the American Federation of Labor; Daniel J. Tobin, Treasurer American Federation of Labor, and L. E. Sheppard, Orse of Railway Conductors.

Representing the Public.—A. A. Landon, American Radiator Company, Buffalo; E. T. Meredith, editor Successful Farming, Des Moines; Robert S. Brookings, Washington University, St. Louis.

Rules Committee.

Representing the Employers.—Edwin Farnham Green, Pacific Mills, Boston, National Industrial Conference; Harry A. Wheeler, Union Trust Company, Chicago, Chamber of Commerce of the United States; T. C. Atkeson, National Grange, Washington, farmer's organizations.

Representing Labor.—W. D. Mahon, Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes; Matthew Woll, Vice President American Federation of Labor; W. G. Lee, Order of Railway Trainmen.

Representing the Public.—Bernard M. Baruch, formerly Chairman War Industries Board; Thomas L. Chadbourne, New York; John D. Rockefeller, Jr., New York.

After these committee members had been announced, W. D. Mahon of the labor group asked for an adjournment of the conference until tomorrow morning. This immediately met with opposition from Mr. Chadbourne, who said:

"We are here to work as rapidly as possible and to adjourn as little as possible. I know the men representing the public are willing to work day and night if necessary."

Mr. Mahon explained that there would be an important meeting of the Executive Committee of the A. F. of L. this evening, and Mr. Chadbourne withdrew his objection. But Gavin McNab, who had not heard Mr. Mahon, burst out:

"Well, I don't think we should make the principal feature of the work an adjournment."

Mr. Mahon explained again, and then Mr. McNab said:

"Well, in future I'm going to move we work and thus set an example to the United States."

The conference then adjourned until tomorrow.

GEN. WOOD TAKES COMMAND IN GARY

auto trucks with their equipment and were on their way.

The motor column passed through Chicago at 6 o'clock and reached Gary about 9 o'clock tonight.

The news of the coming Federal troops had a quieting effect upon the strikers.

Tension has been increasing since the arrival of the militia last night. Today crowds of strikers swarmed the streets in anticipation of further troubles. At first it was intended to turn the situation over to the police this morning, but as more crowds began to collect, fresh troops were ordered from Indiana Harbor and the streets were again patrolled.

Thousands of men lined the sidewalks and hooted at the troops as they marched by, yelling, "Who won the war?" and "Run the tin soldiers home," but there was little disorder, only seven men being arrested during the day.

Strikers Parade Streets.

In the afternoon groups of returned soldiers began to appear on the streets, mingling with the strikers and hooting at the militia. The word was given to mobilize for a parade.

No parades have been permitted in Gary since the strike started and this one was held by the strikers to bring a "show down." It was led by several hundred discharged soldiers in uniform. The insigne of a dozen combat divisions were visible among the marchers, and former Captains marched shoulder to shoulder with the former buck privates.

A soldier, carrying an American flag, led the procession.

Thousands fell in behind the soldiers waving their hats and shouting themselves hoarse. Thousands more moved abreast of the column along the sidewalks. Bystanders regardless of their sympathies, honked automobile horns and cheered.

As the parade neared the centre of town the officials became greatly disturbed. It was rumored that the men intended to march on the steel mills and force an entrance, yet no one dared oppose them. Although the parade was in direct violation of the Mayor's specific orders, traffic police held up the street cars and pushed back the crowds. The militia, assembled in front of the City Hall, was called to attention, remained at attention while the shouting, jeering column move past.

The parade wound through the city and disbanded in the East Side Park, another violation of Mayor Hodge's orders, which expressly prohibited open-air meetings.

Ex-Soldier Addresses Strikers.

Richard Wiersma, an ex-soldier with two wound chevrons, climbed up on the band stand and made a speech. It was not eloquent but it stirred the mob. He advocated peaceful picketing in uniform until the militia was driven from the town.

"Thirty-four men were arrested yesterday and the day before for picketing the streets," he said. "The police seized them on a charge of inciting riot and threw them in jail. They are now held at Crown Point. When we visited the County Jail with writs for their release, the writs were thrown in the waste basket. These men are locked up in one room and refused legal aid or advice and we are told they are being held for the military authorities, while Mayor Hodges denies that Gary is under martial law."

"Let's go get them," shouted some one.

The temper of the crowd was such that it only needed a leader to carry out the suggestion.

Wiersma announced that a mass meeting of returned soldiers would be held tomorrow morning and urged every ex-service man to put on his uniform and attend.

Company officials assert that the parade was an elaborate plan to provoke a situation which would bring an encounter between the strikers and the reserve militia in an attempt to win over public sympathy.

An encounter was avoided by Mayor Hodges.

Before the parade reached the central section of the city Major D. W. Depres, in command of the militia companies here, sought out the Mayor and asked for instructions. He was told to break up the parade.

The troops began to move off, but the Mayor suddenly appeared and countermanded the order.

"It would be suicide," he said. "I've just requested Federal troops and they are on their way. We can control the situation tonight."

The thirty-four men whose detention has aroused the strikers were arrested on charges of inciting the outbreaks that have occurred in Gary during the last two days. Among them is City Councilman Frank Spychalski.

Negroes Get Arms by Mail.

GARY, Ind., Oct. 6, (Associated Press.)—After an investigation following the arrest of a negro on a charge of carrying a weapon, C. L. Huber, Assistant Postmaster at Gary, declared today that many firearms were reaching negroes at Gary through the mails. He expressed the belief that the Post Office authorities could not refuse delivery of the arms after they once had been placed in the mail.

On the arrival of the Federal troops the State units were withdrawn from Gary and concentrated in Indiana Harbor and East Chicago.

GOVERNOR FEARED OUTBREAK.

Says Gary Reported State Militia Unable to Control Situation.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 6.—Governor James P. Goodrich in a statement tonight said that Federal troops to augment the force of State militia on duty in Gary had been asked because of fear that the State troops alone would not be able to handle the situation.

"Federal troops were asked by me entirely on the advice of Mayor Hodges of Gary and Adjt. Gen. Harry B. Smith," said Governor Goodrich. "Both officials expressed alarm at the attitude of the 10,000 strikers in Gary and said they feared that the small number of State troops stationed there was insufficient to cope with the situation."

MONESSEN STRIKERS SHOOT AT WORKERS

Twenty Are Arrested for Attack on Steel Car Bound for the Steel Plant.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Oct. 6.—Disorder and shooting at Monessen and Blair this morning marked the attempt of the steel companies to resume operation on a larger score at those places. Additional guards and police were posted at Homestead, Braddock, and Clairton and other places to protect workmen because of reports that strikers were preparing to use rough tactics, but no trouble developed at these points.

In the morning, the reports of the Carnegie Steel Company and some other plants showed a falling off in the number of men at work, a condition which was attributed to the fear of many workmen that there would be trouble. There were big gains in the number of men on the night shift, according to the bulletin of the Carnegie Steel Company.

According to a circular letter given out today by Organizer Foster the men on strike in the steel industry now number 367,500, a gain of 88,500 since Sept. 21, the first day of the strike. The circular does not admit that there has been desertions from the ranks of the strikers at any place.

Twenty arrests were made at Monessen after a number of shots had been fired at a street car carrying men to work to the mills of the Pittsburgh Steel Company and the Page Steel and Wire Company, which resumed operation today. More State Police are on duty now at Monessen, where a citizens' league has been formed to prevent further violence. Several shots were fired at men returning to work at Blair, a town near Clairton. The State Police arrested four men with revolvers.

STRIKE ENDS IN COATESVILLE.

Union Leaders Advise the Few Men Still Out to Go to Work.

COATESVILLE, Penn., Oct. 6.—The steel strike in Coatesville is ended.

The strike leaders this morning advised those men still out to hunt for other jobs and go to work.

When the strike began, two weeks ago, 1,700 of the between 5,000 and 6,000 men employed by the Coatesville branch of the Midvale Steel Company and the Lukens Steel Company quit work. The number of strikers dwindled each day until today there were only about 300 out.

STEEL CHIEFS SEE GOMPERS.

Unions Report at Executive Meeting of the Federation.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Reports from representatives of unions engaged in the steel strike and in the walkout in the New York printing trades were heard tonight at the quarterly meeting here of the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor.

Representatives of the steel unions refused to discuss the report they had made to the Executive Council, and after their meeting with the council said any statement must come from the council. President Gompers and Secretary Morrison of the Federation of Labor refused to discuss the meeting when the session adjourned at mid-night.

The council was told by representatives of the "Big Six" union in the printing trades that the strike had forced suspension of publication by 18 per cent. of the magazines and regularly published periodicals having plants in New York.

PRAISE FOR ARNOLD VOLPE.

Musical People Give Dinner to the Stadium Orchestra Conductor.

Praise for the work of Arnold Volpe, conductor of the orchestra which concluded its season at the City College Stadium last month, was given at a gathering of musicians and musical people at a dinner last night at the Hotel Astor. Adolph Lewisohn, donor of the stadium and Chairman of the dinner committee, was to have been a speaker, but being unable to attend sent a telegram paying warm tribute to Mr. Volpe.

Among those present were: Henry de Forest Baldwin, Harold Bauer, Sada Cowen, Mrs. Helen Fountain, Anna Fitzuis, Osslp Gabrilowitsch, Rosa Ponselle, Mrs. L. R. De Cravioto, Margaret Matzenauer, Mrs. Arthur M. Reis, Samuel J. Reckford, Edward F. Sanderson, Alfred F. Seligberg, Helen Stanley, Dr. Thomas A. Storey, Max Rosen, Leopold Auer and Nahan Franko.

CHANLER SUES AUTO CO.

Artist and Miss Herter Ask Damages for Accident.

Robert W. Chanler, former husband of Lina Cavalieri, opera singer, who was seriously injured in an automobile accident in Central Park on Aug. 31, 1918, when an automobile in which he and Miss Adele Herter, an artist, were riding was driven into a tree, sued the W. A. Trock Automobile Company yesterday for $50,000. Miss Herter also sued for $25,000. Both plaintiffs allege that the accident, which occurred on the East Drive, was due to the negligence of the chauffeur.

Mr. Chanler alleges that his right leg was broken in several places, and that he sustained other serious injuries which kept him in St. Luke's Hospital for eighty-two days. He says that one of his legs is shorter than the other, that he spent $3,797 for treatment, and for a long time was unable to follow his vocation of artist. Miss Herter alleges that she was compelled to undergo long and expensive treatment.

74,573 OF OUR MEN GASSED.

Were More Than a Third of the Wounded in the Army.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The War Department made known today that 33.6 per cent. of our men wounded in the great war were gas casualties. The number wounded in action was 220,044, of which 74,073 represented gas casualties. The number of fatal gas casualties was 1,164 or 1.6 per cent. The number of wounded from other causes who died was 16,519, or 6.7 per cent.

Those gassed and admitted to hospitals, by type of gas, were as follows:

PISTOL SHOT ROUTS BROADWAY ROBBERS

Bank Messenger, Blinded with Pepper, Fires On Thieves and Saves $61,000 in Cash.

TWO SUSPECTS ARRESTED

Chase After Attempt to Get Bank of Naples Money—Clue to Missing Messenger.

Three men attacked a party of four bank messengers at Broadway and Spring Street in daylight yesterday and attempted to steal $61,000 from them, but one of the messengers, blinded by pepper that had been thrown into his eyes, frustrated the attempt by opening fire with his revolver. Two arrests were made by the police.

The messengers had just stepped out of the Bank of Naples, on the east side of Broadway, at Spring Street, and were on their way to the Metropolitan Bank, one block north, at Prince Street, when the three men rushed suddenly from a doorway and threw pepper into the eyes of all four of the messengers. While they were trying to force the grips of the messengers on the two heavy packages of money Albert Estosio, one of the bank employes, drew his pistol and began to shoot.

When the would-be robbers saw that their act had attracted the attention of hundreds of pedestrians, and that they would not be able to take the money without a fight, they started to run away. On Broadway, about a block from the spot where the robbery was attempted, Patrolman J. E. McCormick of the Elisabeth Street Station arrested a man who said his name was Antonio Farrar and who declared that he had just reached the city from Akron, Ohio.

A second man, who described himself as John B. Valtaggi, of 69 Central Avenue, Brooklyn, was arrested on the west side of Broadway, near Prince Street, by Patrolmen Slavins and Conlon. Valtaggi denied that he had taken part in the attempted robbery and declared that he was a Brooklyn grocer on his way to a wholesale house to purchase supplies. Farrar denied knowledge of the attack, but, with Ultaggi, he was held for further investigation.

It is the custom of the messengers of the Bank of Naples to transfer large sums of money daily in carrying on business in foreign exchange and export, and they are always heavily armed, even when they are walking the short block to the Metropolitan Bank. Nicola Giorna, one of the clerks whom the would-be robbers had seized yesterday, was carrying $41,000 in cash in a small box. Roberto Cossa, the cashier of the bank, had about $20,000 in a similar box. Sassario Capio and Albert Estosio, the armed guards, were walking close to them.

Boy Suspect Arrested.

A telegram was received yesterday by the police from Ocala, Fla., saying that a boy had been arrested there in response to the call for the arrest of Benjamin Binkowitz, who disappeared on Aug. 12 with about $178,000 in bonds belonging to Richard Whitney & Company, of 14 Wall Street. A body found near Milford, Conn., on Aug. 20 last was identified on Sept. 9 by Mrs. Ida Binkowitz, of 169 Eldridge Street, as that of her son, Benjamin. The coat and trousers on the body matched the vest that had been left at his home by Binkowitz on the day he disappeared.

George Binkowitz said yesterday that he considered it possible that the boy held in Florida was his son and that he had never completely accepted the identification of the body found near Milford because the face was mutilated. The boy held in Florida, Binkowitz said, did not bear the distinguishing marks of his son. He added that he was sure that the clothes found on the body in Milford were those of his son. The National Surety Company has no definite information on the Florida arrest.

Boy Confesses to Burglaries.

Detectives from the Hunters Point Station in Long Island City last night arrested a 15-year-old boy who admitted, according to their report to their superior officers, that he had committed one burglary every night for four nights, or since he escaped from the detention house of the Children's Society in Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn. He is Michael Richette of 139 Jackson Avenue, Long Island City.

"Go-Between" Testifies Immunity Was Promised in Navy Cases.

Louis Markowitz, the Manhattan jeweler, who acted as the "go-between" in arranging with navy officers to get easy berths for his friends in the service, continued his testimony yesterday at the court-martial of Lieut.-Commander Christopher Marsden at the navy yard in Brooklyn.

Replying to questions by counsel for Marsden, he said he received $1,500 for assisting friends to be enrolled in the Naval Reserve. He said he sent this money back by registered mail to those who gave it to him after he learned Lieutenant Benoit J. Ellert had been brought up on charges. Lieutenant Ellert has pleaded guilty to accepting graft for aiding navy applicants to enroll.

Markowitz testified that he gave Lieutenant Ellert approximately $600 in cases in which he was interested, and that he gave $200 to the defendant for enrolling Michael Schear. He said Schear gave Lieut.-Commander Marsden two bottles of champagne.

"What prompted you to help men to enroll?" he was asked.

"Lieutenant Ellert promised me large contracts. I was in the jewelry business and in a position to supply navy insignia."

"Why did you testify in this case?"

"I wanted to help the Government clear up the situation."

"Was immunity promised you?"

"I was assured by my attorney that I was promised immunity if I told the truth."

Michael Schear was called to the stand.

"I wanted to get into the navy, but could not," he testified. "I went to Canada shortly before the draft. While there I received word from my folks that I could get into the navy if I returned. I did, and learned my folks had arranged with Mr. Markowitz for me to go to see Commander Marsden. Mr. Markowitz suggested I take two bottles of champagne with me.

"Commander Marsden turned me down, because he thought I was an Austrian. But Mr. Markowitz told me he would see Commander Marsden again. I saw him the next day and convinced him I was an American."

"How much money was paid for your enrollment?" was asked.

"I understand $200 was given to Markowitz by my folks, and later I learned that Markowitz gave it to Commander Marsden."

Schear's application for admission to the navy was dated Aug. 2, although he testified he did not apply until Sept. 11.

The court-martial will be continued today.

MURDER MYSTIFIES POLICE.

No Clue to Slayer of Man Found in Bronx Lot.

The police are mystified as to the slayers of the man whose body was found, cut and beaten, with a handkerchief rammed down the throat, in a Bronx lot Sunday morning. The only clues are laundry marks on the victim's shirt and collar, and the fact that the man had only four toes on his left foot.

Detectives learned yesterday that the man had patronized a Chinese laundry in East 116th Street, but the laundryman could not recall anything about the person who left the garments with him.

Several letters and telephone calls have been received from persons who know a man with four toes on his left foot. Among the informants was a Dr. Hall of Stonybridge, Conn. The police believe the victim was a resident of the Bronx who was murdered in a house and whose body was thrown from an automobile into the bushes where it was found.

WANAMAKER BUTLER HELD IN BOMB PLOT

Former Employe Confessed, Police Say, to Sending Explosive to Merchant's Wife.

FIND CLUES IN TOWN HOUSE

Prisoner Said It Was Intended for a Maid—Package Aroused Mrs. Wanamaker's Suspicions.

An attempt to injure Mrs. Rodman Wanamaker, wife of a Special Deputy Police Commissioner, by means of a bomb sent through the mail by a discharged butler, Ernest Albert Gustav Kurth, a German subject, the police say, was frustrated by the suspicion and caution exercised by Mrs. Wanamaker in opening the package. Second Deputy Police Commissioner William J. Lahey of the Detective Bureau said Kurth had confessed yesterday to mailing the bomb. He had been under arrest since Thursday as a suspect, but was held on the charge of larceny and had been sent to the medical ward at Bellevue Hospital for observation and treatment.

The bomb was sent from the post office substation at 132 Fourth Avenue, near the Wanamaker store, on Sept. 25. The police say Kurth confessed that he had mailed it there and had used a piece of wrapping paper from the Wanamaker store so that suspicion might be directed from himself to some employe of the store. Kurth declared he had not intended that Mrs. Wanamaker should personally receive or open the package, but had intended the bomb for Mary O'Brien, a maid, who he believed was responsible for his dismissal from his position as butler in the Wanamaker city home at 37 West Fifty-sixth Street.

According to Kurth, the maid had opened all packages sent to the house and he had supposed she would open his bomb package. Mrs. Wanamaker, however, received the package at her country home, Tuxedo Park, N. Y., on Sept. 27. Although she recognized the wrapping paper as similar to that used in the Wanamaker store, and noted that her name and address on it were on a printed label kept in the establishment for her personal purchases there, she was suspicious of the box.

Mrs. Wanamaker turned the package bottom upward and pried open a corner of it very carefully. Looking through this tiny opening she saw grains of black powder, a piece of sandpaper with the head of a match resting against it.

Mrs. Wanamaker ceased further investigation and sent the package to Police Headquarters by her husband's valet, George Ellis. There it was found that the bomb, consisting of a piece of blast-tubing, was filled with gunpowder, pieces of brass and glass and packed with cotton. A powder fuse led from the matches and sandpaper to the powder and cotton, so that when the box was opened from the top the mass would be ignited. It was said the bomb would probably not have caused the death of the person opening the box, but would have caused severe injuries to face and hands and perhaps the loss of eyesight.

TELLS OF MURDER IN AUTO.

Chauffeur Gives Jersey Police Account of Killing in Taxicab.

The police were yesterday asked to look for the slayer of a man believed to have been Joseph Morrito of 146 Bleecker Street, who was shot while riding in a taxicab in North Bergen, N. J., late Sunday night. The man was hailed from the automobile, while his murderers forced the chauffeur, at the point of a pistol, to drive on. Identification was made of the body by finger prints found in the police records at headquarters here.

Walter Ryan of 1005 Willow Avenue, a jitney chauffeur, has given the North Bergen police a complete story of the shooting which is being investigated. Chief of Police Marcy of North Bergen said last night that he expected to make an arrest today. Here is Ryan's story:

"I was at the West Shore ferry when I received a call to go to the Hotel Savoy in North Bergen. I drove there, and a man and a woman got into the car. They told me to drive them around and to hurry up. I had hardly started when a man came running out of the hotel and yelled for me to stop. I looked around and saw he was pointing a pistol at me. I stopped.

"This man got into the car and once more I started. I was afraid even to look around, but kept right on driving. As we went along I heard the people behind me quarreling. I couldn't tell what it was about, but the men seemed to be swearing at and threatening each other. Suddenly a shot was fired, and I heard the door open and a heavy body thrown out into the road.

"I could not help but look around this time, and as I did so the man in the machine—it was not the man who had run out after we started—pointed a pistol at me and ordered me to get along and to keep my eyes on the road.

"I drove through Englewood and Paterson and on through Newark, where the man and woman got out. They paid me and told me to drive away without looking back."

Ryan said that he went at once to his employer, Chris Verdon of North Bergen, who told him to report the matter to the police, which the chauffeur did. After questioning him, the police released him and a search for the man who did the shooting began.

'CAVE OF THE WINDS' THRILLS ROYAL PAIR

King Albert and His Queen Marvel at the Wonders of Niagara.

Is Officially Received with a Guard of Honor at Buffalo — Will Visit Toledo Today.

BUFFALO, Oct. 6.—The King and Queen of the Belgians and their son, the Duke of Brabant, were enthralled this morning by the mighty cataract of Niagara. They overstayed by two hours the time allotted for their visit there, and even then were reluctant to leave. "Marvelous!" exclaimed Queen Elisabeth at each new wonder. The King was seeing the Falls for the second time, but was evidently happy at the opportunity to show them to his wife.

The royal party saw all there was to see, and saw it thoroughly. To gain a more comprehensive view of the American side they crossed over into Canada for half an hour as the guests of the Dominion Government.

As a courtesy to the Canadians, the American officers attached to the Belgians stopped in the middle of the International Bridge where the Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack wave side by side. They declined the invitation to cross into Ontario, so that the Reception Committee, headed by N. W. Rowell, President of the Privy Council and Secretary of State for External Affairs, might dewote all their attention to their Majesties.

Exploring the "Cave of the Winds" was probably the most thrilling experience her Majesty has had since she left the battle lines. It was an event not on the program and was the subject of an animated discussion at the breakfast table as the royal special neared Buffalo.

"I am going," the King announced. The Queen declared that if his Majesty went she would, and Prince Leopold announced an emphatic determination not to be left behind. They donned oiled skins, but the King wore brown overalls, as there were no yellow trousers long enough for him. When he was dressed the attendant who was helping him announced "All right, King, you're ready," and his Majesty smiled.

Once into the cave the King stalked ahead, tramping through pools of cold water without noticing them. Gusts of wind blew showers of spray into the faces of everyone in the party and the roar of the cataract over their heads was deafening. The Queen was guided by H. O. Wright, and when the trip was over he exclaimed admiringly, "She's a mighty game little woman!" Her Majesty expressed disappointment because there was no time to go through twice.

After viewing Horseshoe Falls from Goat Island and visiting Three Sisters Island, the party donned oil skins again and took the sail in the Maid of the Mist, without which no wedding trip to the falls has been complete for half a century. They laughed as the wind swept showers of spray into their faces and tucked their feet under their chairs to keep them dry.

It was after the trip on the Maid of the Mist that they crossed into Canada for their brief visit, driving through Victoria Park and then to the home of George Y. Grant, Chairman of the Park Commission, where a brief reception was held. Upon the return to the American side the party was far behind its schedule, but the Belgians insisted upon taking a ride on the Gorge trolley road to see the whirlpool rapids. Only then were they content to board their special for Buffalo.

The train was stopped at Terrace Station and the party stepped from their car to a landing platform which led to a temporary receiving stand, where they were greeted by Mayor Buck and a committee of citizens. Albert responded briefly to the welcoming address, saying that he had come to America to thank the people of the nation for their services to his country.

In the square opposite the station was a guard of honor of hundreds of American soldiers, many of them wearing decorations for valor. They marched in review before the commander of Belgium's army, who stood at salute while they were filing past, as did Prince Leopold.

The party returned to the train at 8 o'clock and started for Toledo, which is to be the last definite stop on the trip to Santa Barbara.

King Albert was so much delighted with the reception given him in Boston that his Ambassador to the United States, Baron de Cartier de Marchinne, sent a message to the Belgian Consul in Boston in which he said:

"Never say anything again about Boston sleepers or cold roast beef. We Belgians know better."

ALBERT DECORATES PILOTS.

Sends Medals to Airmen Who Took Him on Flight Over City.

The aviators from the Rockaway Point Naval Air Station who took King Albert on a flight over the city Saturday, were decorated yesterday. The presentation of the decorations was made by Lieut. Commander Thomas B. Hasler of the First Naval District, following a luncheon in the Lawyers' Club, 115 Broadway.

The medal of the Order of Leopold was awarded to Ensign Frank Lamb of Sacramento, and to Ensign Paul W. Carter of New York, pilots, and to Chief Boatswain's Mate Wayne L. Carletan, and Machinists' Mate, first class, W. E. Smith, crew. In communicating his desire that the aviators be decorated, the King said he still "felt the thrill" of viewing the city from the hydroaeroplane.

Coming to Plan the Prince's Visit.

REGINA, Sask., Oct. 6.—Lieut. Col. E. M. Grigg, military secretary to the Prince of Wales, was on his way to Washington today to confer with Viscount Grey, British Ambassador to the United States, in reference to the Prince's visit to Washington and New York in November. Beyond the fact that the royal party will spend "Armistice Day" in Washington, no details of the visit to the United States have been settled.

BOSTON GIVES MERCIER BIG PUBLIC WELCOME

BOSTON, Oct. 6.—Cardinal Mercier, heroic primate of Belgium, today received a public welcome to the city. The course of an automobile procession from Boston College, where he addressed the student body in the forenoon, to Faneuil Hall, where the official reception was held, was lined with thousands of persons, regardless of a drizzle. The rain made the use of closed cars necessary, but the Cardinal bowed his response to the cheering crowds.

It was an active day for the elderly churchman in contrast with the comparative seclusion and quiet of the first two days of his visit. From Faneuil Hall his program took him to St. John's Theological Seminary for luncheon and a reception, and to Harvard University, where he received an honorary degree.

Cardinal Mercier was welcomed at the Faneuil Hall exercises by representatives of State, city and the churches as the man who "with apostolic fortitude defied the brute force of might." To this, Cardinal O'Connell added: "He stood for conscience at a moment when the world seemed to have lost its bearing, and pointed to the law of God as a fixed star in the heavens. He shielded a whole nation by his fidelity and courage."

Cardinal Mercier said that Belgium had saved Christian civilization to the world in its immortal defiance to Germany. "You shall not pass," and that the United States was the savior of Belgium. He continued:

I go home recompensed and fortified by your sympathy, and when I tell my people they also will be fortified.

I can say to you that America has become a sacred name in Belgium.

More than one year ago, before the signing of the armistice, I gave instructions to all my clergy that as soon as we got peace I would see that in each parish church of my diocese one stone should be kept, and on that stone should be engraved an inscription to commemorate America's sympathy for Belgium. There will be erected in my country a monument, a church dedicated to the sacred heart of Jesus, and in that basilica a chapel will be dedicated to the United States of America.

What I consider one of the factors in our victory was the self-abnegation of that great man, General Pershing. Owing to his self-abnegation we finally attained in our armies the unity of command which had powerfully contributed to the success of the German armies. We owe another debt of gratitude for the work of relief for Belgium under Mr. Hoover, a man of genius and of character.

An illuminated address, "A testimonial to the wonderful power of your influence towards great and noble ends —the re-establishment of peace, justice and liberty," was presented to the Belgian Primate by the New England Belgian Relief Committee.

Cardinal Mercier received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws later in the day from Harvard University, which twenty-four hours earlier had conferred a similar honor upon King Albert of Belgium. The Cardinal was accompanied to Sanders Theatre by President Lowell, Cardinal O'Connell, and other distinguished guests, and his appearance was the signal for an ovation that continued for several minutes. Upon the conclusion of the ceremony there was another demonstration even more enthusiastic than the first.

In conferring the degree, President Lowell termed the Cardinal "a man, who in the desolation of his country stood as the shadow of a great rock in a weary land." The Cardinal, in his address of acceptance, at the suggestion of President Lowell, spoke in French. He said in part:

Hundreds of your comrades left for war, for the horrors of bloodshed. Many of your elders helped with the Commission for Belgian Relief. I had the honor myself of receiving several of the heroic people who were giving their service to Belgium without remuneration. I thank you and congratulate you.

A university teaches you not only by example and precept. It is not solely a scientific institution. Besides intellectual development young men are taught the use of their responsibility to guide them through life. I join in asking you to work for the formation of your moral personality to serve the social order.

Mercier Returns Today.

Cardinal Mercier will return today from Boston, arriving at the Grand Central Station at 7 o'clock. He will stop in New York until Saturday. At 12:30 o'clock he will be the guest of the Merchants' Association at a luncheon in the Hotel Astor, and in the afternoon will visit and inspect Columbia University. He will be the dinner guest of the Inter-Racial Union at the Plaza tonight.

Your Highest Style Ideal
At Last Made Real!

A painter of war scenes, in a towering rage because he couldn't depict the foam on a cavalry horse's mouth, dashed his brush against the canvas and achieved a miraculous result—by sheer accident. An accident of the shears might turn out a Ready-Made Suit which could pass for a Custom-Tailored Suit, though it would never pass a Custom Tailor. Since the Ready-Made Clothing Industry of America was in knickerbockers, it has tried hard to grow up to garments on a parity with the intensely individualized handiwork of the Custom Guildsman, who measures his man.

Clemons Complete-To-Wear Custom Clothes

Tailored By A Tailor, Not Just Retailed By A Retailer

Genuine Journeyman Suits And Overcoats, $40 to $80

At Last! Complete-To-Wear Clothes Tailored by A Merchant Tailor Bred to The Guild and The Goose

AS Merchant Tailors, we can understand what is left out of even the best ready-made clothes and how to put it in.

Our Custom Tailoring Business has doubled with the last two years. Labor conditions forbid us to turn out this increased amount of custom-tailored clothes on time. Men do not order their clothes until need flogs them. 60 per cent of our work has to be executed within a week. 44 hours of labor and no over-time, as distinguished from the former working hours, has caused us to forfeit 30 per cent of our weekly production.

After due deliberation, we have decided to draft an intensely individualized line of Ready-To-Wear Clothes tailored by a tailor, not just retailed by a retailer, and at last making real that ideal toward which all clothiers have vainly groped. They are drafted after the same fashions as for our Custom Customers, paying absolutely no attention to the ordinary ready-made fashion plates. The modes are not from a Clothing Designers' Convention, but pre-advanced, bench-bred, Guarded Custom Fashions.

Our Complete-To-Wear Clothes are tailored from the same custom woolens in the same custom patterns that repose on our shelves for made-to-measure garments. They are exclusively Fluffy, Long-Staple Worsted Yarns from Pure Virgin Wool, the same stock as is used in the proudest and rarest Custom Tailored Clothes.

Not "Ready-Made" In A Factory, But Custom Complete-To-Wear From A Tailor Shop

BECAUSE these Complete-To-Wear Clothes are custom tailored in our own shops, it goes without saying that they are hand-tailored. We see no more reason for a custom tailor to boast that his clothes are hand-tailored, than for a man to extol his honesty or a woman her modesty.

We have not taken bolts of cloth and power-knifed them into miles of suits ranging in size from 34 to 44, but we have set aside select Custom-Tailoring Woolens from our regular stock and cut from them no more than a few individual garments for a particular size and type of man.

Here are garments to make a man feel that here at last is his dreamed-of ideal made real in Complete-To-Wear Custom Clothes.

Genuine Journeyman Suits And Overcoats, $40 to $80

Don't Confuse Clemons Complete-To-Wear Clothes With Shouted And Touted Lines

THESE are clothes you can't find anywhere but here. We exclusively draft them—we exclusively offer them—we exclusively set the price for which they are to be sold—we whittle away the manufacturer's profit percentage—they go straight from the designer's board to the wearer's back.

Controlling every process of production, from the uncut cloth to the finished coat, we can give fuller intrisic value than others, because we buy our own woolens for our Made-To-Measure and Complete-To-Wear lines direct from the Importer and the Mill, and thus are in hourly touch with the primary markets. The ordinary Retail Clothier is simply a middleman, a handler, a distributor.

We Are Not Going Out Of Custom Tailoring! We Are Going Out For Tailoring Customers In Complete-To-Wear-Clothes!

Comparison will prove that Clemons Complete-To-Wear Clothes of Sturdy Worsteds from Pure Virgin Wool are as low-priced, often lower, than common clothing of sleazy wool or "re-worked" wool, which enters into 60 per cent of the ready-made clothes sold in America.

Being Custom Tailors with an establishment in New York only, we know New York fashions only. Our modes bespeak Manhattan Island, and just begotton, not long forgotten Merchant Tailoring thoughts. Like all true Custom Tailors, we insist that our garments, made-to-measure and complete-to-wear, shall fulfill an artistic ideal before they serve a commercial purpose.

WOMEN APATHETIC IN REGISTRATION

Reports for the First Day Indicate Little Eagerness to Qualify as Voters.

FIGURES FOR MEN HEAVY

Late Reports Show That Male Registration Is Above Normal for Other Years.

Women showed little interest in the registration of voters yesterday—the opening day. During the five and one-half hours that the registration places remained open only 35,847 women registered in the entire city, to a total of 198,708 men. This gives a ratio of about four men to every woman registrant.

The total registration of men and women by boroughs, compared with the registration last year and in 1917, when a municipal election was held, is given in this table:

Boroughs.	1919.	1918.	1917.
Manhattan	49,700	40,336	46,350
Bronx	17,651	12,601	13,515
Brooklyn	61,917	36,655	57,622
Queens	12,961	5,153	6,439
Richmond	2,604	1,771	1,852
Grand total	124,508	90,148	90,778

This is regarded as an "off year" in politics. The last previous year when only minor offices were filled in the election was 1915. The total registration in the city on the first day of that year—when the registration was crowded into four instead of six days as at present and when women had not yet been enfranchised—was 11,934. In 1916 when President and Governor and other State officers were elected, the total registration on the opening day with the women not participating was 126,421.

The following table shows the registration of men and women by Assembly Districts, as compared with the registration of men and women last year, the first in which women voted in this State:

Political and civic leaders have been straining every nerve to arouse interest in the registration this year. The former were actuated by a desire to have every potential voter of their respective parties register so as to be able to enroll for participation in the important Presidential and State primary election next year. The latter were on the alert for a big registration so as to give the way for a big vote in the anti-Tammany fight for the emancipation of the Judiciary which will culminate at the polls on Nov. 4.

A special appeal was made yesterday to women voters by the leaders of this civic movement and this may have the result of bringing out more of the newly enfranchised voters during the five remaining days of registration. Reports from practically all parts of the city indicated that women were exceedingly slow in coming out to register, few districts furnishing exceptions to this rule. One such exception was the Yorkville district, where there is a lively fight in the Tammany organization.

A man said to be the oldest voting resident of the east side, where the bulk of the population is of alien birth, registered in the Fifteenth Election District of the Second Assembly District, Public School 2, at 160 Chrystie Street. His name is Gabriel Wolf. He was born in Prussia and was naturalized in Connecticut in 1868. Nicholas T. Lucas, Chairman of the Election Board in the district, said that Wolf had never missed registering in an election in his memory.

The police reports did not indicate any disorders or arrests during the early hours of registration. The returns were late in coming in from all sections of the city.

The registration places will open again this evening at 5 o'clock and remain open until 10:30. The same hours of registration will be observed on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. On Saturday the registration booths will be open from 7 in the morning until 10:30 at night.

ROOSEVELT MAKES HIS BOW.

Delivers First Speech as a Candidate at Oyster Bay.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, Oct. 6.—Lieut. Col. Theodore Roosevelt made his first political speech before his home folk tonight, when, as candidate in the Second Assembly District in Nassau County, he addressed 300 men and women voters. His address was in the local club rooms, where his father made several speeches.

Colonel Roosevelt said Republicans in this election must face the voters squarely and not be overconfident. Dissatisfied Democrats must be shown what the Republican Party has accomplished during the war and in national constructive methods. He declared the woman voter was the equal of the man voter and that women should go seriously into party politics.

Industrial unrest, he said, had a tendency to make many persons turn reactionary. This he characterized as worse than useless, and fraught with danger. The sane course to pursue was a constructive liberalism, he asserted. The people should always be receptive to new ideas, carefully testing them as they go along.

Single Tax Candidates Seek Writs.

Justice Benedict in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, yesterday reserved decision on the application of Jens P. Hanson and Daniel Duffield, Single Tax candidates for the Assembly in the Third District, Queens, and the Twelfth District, Brooklyn, respectively, for a writ of mandamus to compel the Board of Elections to accept their nominating petitions. The board rejected the petitions on the ground of fraud in that many signatures in the two petitions appeared to be in the same handwriting.

REPUBLICANS INVITE HELP OF DEMOCRATS

Elihu Root Heads Signers of a Circular Appeal to Enroll in Their Party.

SEE MOVE FOR WADSWORTH

Senator Faces the Opposition of "Drys" and Suffragists in Re-Election Fight.

Many Democrats living in this city and the counties of Westchester, Nassau, and Suffolk, received yesterday a circular letter signed by prominent Republicans and thus qualify for participation in the Republican primaries next year.

A President is to be elected then, and two primary elections will be held, one in April and one in September. The Spring primaries may determine control of the Republican State organization for the ensuing two years and a half, for members of the Republican State Committee and of local party committees will be chosen, as well as who shall control the delegation from this State to the Republican National Convention. At the September primaries, a successor to Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., is to be nominated together with candidates for all elective State offices, the Legislature and the House of Representatives.

Room 404, 34 Pine St., New York.
New York, Oct. 6, 1919.

Dear Sir: We believe that you will desire to share in the selection of a Republican candidate for President to succeed Woodrow Wilson;

A Republican candidate for Senator to succeed James W. Wadsworth, Jr.;

A Republican candidate for Governor to succeed Alfred E. Smith.

You can take no part in the Republican primary elections of 1920, at which your choice may be expressed, unless you register this week and at the same time enroll as a Republican.

An enrollment blank will be given to you at the time you register. Make a cross (X) under the Republican emblem.

We are interested in the nomination of men of courage and conviction who will represent the patriotic and order-loving history of our country, and, therefore, believing that your desires in this respect are similar to our own, we are sending this letter to emphasize to men and women voters the fact that unless they enroll this week their opportunity to vote at the primaries of 1920 will be lost.

The days and hours of registration are Oct. 6 to Oct. 10, inclusive, from 5 P. M. to 10:30 P. M., and Saturday, Oct. 11, from 7 A. M. to 10:30 P. M. Very respectfully yours,

Elihu Root,	Theodore Roosevelt,
Nicholas M. Butler,	Chauncey M. Depew,
James R. Sheffield,	William D. Guthrie,
Job E. Hedges,	Ogden L. Mills,
Charles D. Hilles,	Henry W. Taft.

If you desire further information as to the location of polling places or other matters pertinent hereto, write or telephone to Mr. Robert S. Conklin, 34 Pine St. Telephone 3276 John.

Republican leaders not personally identified with the sending out of the circular letter expressed their opinion last night that the action was prompted primarily by a desire to strengthen Senator Wadsworth in his fight for re-election.

The Senator has aroused the resentment of woman suffragists by his consistent opposition to endowing women with the right to vote through amendment to the Federal Constitution.

Mr. Wadsworth also has engendered active opposition to his candidacy from the New York Anti-Saloon League through the stand he took against the Federal Prohibition amendment. William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the New York Anti-Saloon League, in a recent circular urged all advocates of a "strict" construction of the Federal Prohibition amendement to enroll as Republicans so that they might be able to vote against the renomination of the Senator.

Deputy State Attorney General Robert S. Conklin, to whom reference is made in the circular letter and from whose office that document was sent out, said that approximately 75,000 such communications had been mailed. The expense, he said, was defrayed from private subscriptions.

15 months of smooth, clean shaving with every 12 blades

HOW many good shaves do you get with a dozen razor blades? Is it as many as five hundred?

The first shave with each blade is always the best shave. But soon after, your unstropped blade begins to dull. It grows progressively worse—and your shaves become less comfortable.

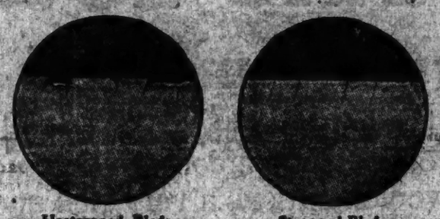
Why shaving dulls the blade

The tiny microscopic teeth which form the edge of a razor blade are thrown out of alignment on the very first shave by the wiry bristles of the beard. That's when the blade really begins to "pull." The original smooth, fine edge of the blade grows rougher with every shave—unless the blade is stropped.

Stropping smooths the tiny teeth of the blade back into alignment, and keeps the blade sharp and fresh.

The need for a safety razor that would provide in itself the means of stropping each blade has long been recognized.

It was to meet this necessity for a self-sharpening safety razor that the AutoStrop Razor was designed. It combines the safety of the modern razor with the keen stropped blade of the old-fashioned razor.



Unstropped Blade
Seen under a powerful magnifying glass, an unstropped razor blade, after use, looks like a saw edge

Stropped Blade
Stropping keeps the tiny teeth of the blade in perfect alignment, and provides a smooth, keen edge for every shave

A fresh, keen edge for every shave

A remarkable stropping device, simple and efficient, is built right into the frame of the AutoStrop Razor. It provides the means for keeping the blades keen-edged and fresh. You don't have to take the razor apart—nor even remove the blade. You simply slip the strop through the razor head.

This unique feature of the AutoStrop Razor means a blade that stays sharp—a keen, freshly stropped blade every time you shave. It means that you can get a shave every morning like that first, smooth, clean shave with a new blade. 500 good shaves — fifteen months of comfortable shaving—are guaranteed from every dozen blades.

The AutoStrop Razor is the only safety razor that sharpens itself, shaves and cleans without removing the blade. A touch of the thumb adjusts the blade for a close, medium, or light shave. These features mean quick and efficient shaving.

Don't put up any longer with the scrape and smart of fast-dulling blades. Begin tomorrow to get the comfort of a fresh, keen edge for every shave.

SEA-TO-SEA FLIGHT TO BE A ROUND TRIP

Aviators Must Fly Back Across the Continent After a Rest of Two Days.

PLANES ARRIVE AT MINEOLA

Two Americans Will Pilot German Fokkers, Which They Expect Will Show Well in the Race.

Interest was added to the army's continental air race between Roosevelt Field at Mineola and San Francisco, which starts from both places at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, by an announcement from Washington last night that Major Gen. Charles T. Menoher, head of the air forces in this country, had decided to make the race a round-trip event. Orders have been issued that contestants who successfully cross the continent must fly back to their starting points after a two-day rest.

Officials of the American Flying Club, which, in conjunction with the Air Service, is managing the contest, said that as the entrants must fly at least 100 miles an hour under the conditions of the contest the 5,400-mile trip should be completed in about fifty-four hours of actual flying. It will take much more time to cover the course, however, as competitors must stop at least thirty minutes at each of the twenty-one control stops between the Atlantic and the Pacific.

All day yesterday planes were arriving at Roosevelt Field and mechanics were set to work getting them in readiness. Two German Fokkers which American pilots have entered in the contest were among the first to arrive. Army fliers are generous in their praise of this enemy type, which they believe will make a splendid showing in the race. The British, French and Italian planes, which are to be flown by the air attaches of those countries, are already at the field. Air Commodore L. E. O. Charlton of the British Air Service and Captain de la Vergne of the French air forces are announced as the pilots of the first two foreign entries.

Major Gen. Thomas Barry, commandant of the Department of the East, and Brig. Gen. William Mitchell, Director of Military Aeronautics, are to start the sixty contestants from Roosevelt Field. The names of the starters at the San Francisco end have not been received. It is planned to start the planes at two-minute intervals, but this is likely to be changed, as many of the pilots have protested that there was danger of too many machines arriving at the first control station, a small field at Binghamton, N. Y., at the same time. The Contest Committee will take up this point this morning when the opinion of the entrants can be obtained.

Army officials interested in the race arranged yesterday for messages regarding the contest to be given the right of way over the lines of the Postal and Western Union. The progress of the fliers will be shown on a large map at the American Flying Club, which, after the first day, will be the headquarters of the Contest Committee and other officials of the race. To accommodate requests made by flying clubs all over the country, a bulletin service will be maintained.

Ninety-one members of the American Flying Club, including many of the contestants in the transcontinental event, greeted Captain Sir Arthur Whitten Brown, who with Alcock shares the honor of first making a non-stop flight across the Atlantic, at a luncheon given yesterday at the clubhouse, 11 East Thirty-eighth Street. The luncheon was informal, and there were no speeches. Before the luncheon, Lawrence La Tourette Driggs, President of the club, presented the members to the aviator. Sir Arthur was accompanied by Captain Alan Bott of the Royal Air Force.

YALE'S WAR MEMORIAL

Alumni Board Urges Quadrangle as Site—Asks $150,000 Fund.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 6.—Yale's war memorial will be a structure erected on the university quadrangle, if the recommendation of the executive committee of the Alumni Advisory Board is followed. A meeting just held at the Yale Club of New York City urged that this be done. The committee also recommended the appropriation of the sum of $150,000 for this purpose.

The committee appointed its Chairman, George Grant Mason of the Sheffield Scientific School class of 1888, to appoint a committee to raise the necessary $150,000 "for the erection, with suitable setting, of a memorial to the Yale men who gave their lives in the world war."

Some of the most distinguished sculptors of the country will be invited to send designs, as soon as the site has been determined.

The meeting at the Yale Club was attended by George G. Mason, C. Ballard Thurston, Noah H. Swayne, William H. Corbin, Charles H. Hamill, H. U. Fisher, Chairman of the Alumni Fund Association; Grosvenor Atterbury of the University Committee on Memorials, and Secretary Stokes of the University.

More Drunkenness in Hartford.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 6.—Hartford Police Court figures show 177 charges of drunkenness in September as against 71 in August and 60 in July. The chief cause is laid to wood alcohol. Connecticut is supposedly the "driest" State in the East.

Teeth are born white —and good care keeps them white

Unhealthy conditions in the mouth can discolor the whitest of teeth.

Three things are necessary.

First, to determine what the conditions are. Second, a good tooth brush. Third, the absolutely right dentifrice.

By stimulating the healthy flow of normal saliva, Pebeco Tooth Paste helps to keep the teeth free from tartar and other deposits that stain and discolor the teeth. And it also helps to neutralize the mouth acids which are considered to be the chief cause of tooth destruction.

Examine your face and neck closely in the mirror. See if hairs which tend to grow back under the skin form an irritating "collar-line."

Eliminating the "collar-line"

HAVE you noticed how many men you meet on the cars at night are adjusting their collars, trying to ease the irritation where the edge rubs on the lower part of the beard?

Those men are suffering from a "collar-line." They are probably making it worse every time they shave.

Examine your beard. Look at the skin of your face and neck closely in the mirror. It is not perfectly smooth. With a microscope you could see that the skin is really a series of tiny hills with the hairs rising from depressions.

If when shaving you stretch the skin of your neck and shave against the grain, you actually cut off the hair below the surface. The hair is curled in as it grows again. The result is an irritated "collar-line."

How to prevent this irritation

To do away with the "collar-line" the beard must be softened thoroughly before shaving. Stretching the skin in order to get a close shave is then unnecessary.

The hair of the beard is composed chiefly of keratin, the same horn-like substance that makes the finger-nails hard. Each hair is surrounded by a film of oil supplied by the skin. The creamy, thick-textured lather of the new Woodbury's Shaving Stick instantly dissolves the oil film around each hair and works quickly to soften the keratin.

Even a razor that is but moderately sharp will not pull. Irritation is prevented and you get the quick, velvety shave you have always longed for.

The after-effect on the skin will be a welcome surprise, for the face is left smooth and refreshed.

You will find that every druggist is ready to supply you with the stick in the metal container at 35 cents and re-fills at 25 cents. The Andrew Jergens Company, New York, Cincinnati, and Perth, Ontario.

The Youth's Companion

America's Most Unique Publication

Through an unequaled record of service to the reader, the family and the nation, The Youth's Companion has become more than a mere periodical. It has made the home life of five generations a very rich and delightful thing.

The Youth's Companion does not invent or press "reforms," does not "expose" chicanery or sprinkle disinfectants; but it does crowd 52 issues each year with glorious sunshine which renders those things unnecessary. For that it is published. For that it is purchased.

Mother

just can't help liking The Companion through and through. She likes it for herself, likes to know what the children are feeding their minds upon, likes the stories, the Family Page, The Companion receipts and the doctor's corner. And above all she believes in it—because she sees the results in the home.

Father

finds Youth's Companion Editorials are the clearest cut, most impartial and widest in range of any editorial page published. You will catch him reading the adventure stories, too, as well as the big articles. Nature and Science and Current Events columns keep him posted. He knows that Y.C. humor is famous.

The Children

have a weekly page of appropriate things to be read to the little ones before they are able to read for themselves. Nothing in publishing is harder to produce of a high order than a children's page. Strange how all ages read it, isn't it? Are we all just children grown bigger and older?

The Boys

think the paper is all theirs. Their heads are into the adventure stories, the Boys' Page, the short stories, things to make, Stamps to Stick, games, trapping and everything that delights and helps your boys. If your eye is on their future this is the kind of reading you will wish them to have.

The Girls

find the Girls' Page "after their own hearts." The Family Page also interests them, and, strange to say, they like the adventure stories quite as well as do the boys, although every issue has a special girls' story. Y.C. receipts, dainty things to make, pin-money ideas, special articles and other things of interest.

The Companion is a friend, a story-teller, an informer, a money saver and a humorist. It is both clean and able. It meets the need of family life in these times. It inspires, suggests and always entertains. The Companion creates an atmosphere of loyalty to the family, the home and the country. Who can fail to see the peculiar prestige and strength that the Ageless Companion has with the family?

In the 52 Issues for 1920 there will be Strong Serial Stories of action and purpose, hundreds of Short Stories, Poems, Rare Articles by authorities, Current Events, Nature and Science, Games, Sports, Home Efficiency Suggestions, Money-Making Hints, the Doctor's Corner, and a flood tide of the far-quoted Companion humor—all for less than 5 cts. a week.

There Are Several Reasons Which May Not Have Occurred to You, But Which Are Plainly Evident When Analyzed.

OF course you go to the theatre. In New York, every one does—that is to say, every one of education, imagination and means.

Theatre audiences, therefore, comprise practically all the discriminating buyers—all the discriminating people—all who are judges of quality and value, in New York.

Subconsciously, you realize this. You feel that no advertiser, unable to deliver value, would risk using a medium reaching exclusively such experienced and capable judges. So the first reason is that the advertising itself passes the strictest board of censors, and thus wins your confidence.

But there are other reasons. At the theatre you are in an attitude of mind that makes the advertisers' appeal stronger. You are in an atmosphere and environment that stimulate your pride and sense of quality. You are surrounded by people representative of the best in New York, and while you are in their presence, your ambition, your desire for better things—for improvement, is sharpened, whether it be in your living, your appearance or your home.

So at this time, particularly, you are eager to learn of anything that would tend to secure that improvement for you. You are mentally receptive to any appeal to your sense of quality.

And while you are in this attitude of mind, the opportunity is provided you to read such arguments, without trespassing upon or diverting you from the object of the evening—the play. The advertisers (who, through the very fact of advertising to the discriminating audience have won your confidence) describe to you, in the pages of the program, those things in which your interest is keenest.

Naturally, the object of your visit to the theatre is not to read advertising, but to be diverted—to see the play. But there is the intermission and the time prior to the rise of the curtain when, aside from casual conversation, there is practically nothing to do. It is then the advertiser delivers his message—delivers it without intruding upon your diversion—delivers it when you want it, when your mind is receptive.

It does not necessarily follow that program advertisers are the only ones you patronize. Of course, you read advertising elsewhere, but at no time when you are so free from domestic cares, or business responsibilities—at no time when the advertising is so free from any trace of intrusion—at no time when you are so stimulated to the consideration of better things and, consequently, at no time when the impression made is so strong and lasting.

COURTS MERCIFUL TO ANXIOUS TENANTS

Few Deserving Rentpayers Are Compelled to Vacate Apartments Immediately.

STRIKES FROWNED UPON

Landlords Sent to Mayor's Committee for Adjustments—Courtrooms Crowded.

Long before the Municipal Courts had opened yesterday morning crowds of tenants, many of them women with babies in arms, gathered around the court houses in the rain, eager to learn from the Judges whether they were to be dispossessed forthwith or were to retain their homes.

The greatest throng of rent litigants gathered at the Bronx Court at Brook Avenue and 161d Street, but there was no disorder and little work for the eighteen policemen assigned to the neighborhood. The good humor of the crowd inside the court house was helped by the evident desire of Justice Harry Robitzek, who heard the cases, to avoid putting hardship upon the tenants, while at the same time adhering to a fair interpretation of the law and discountenancing rent strikes. He appealed again and again to landlords to remember that conditions were extraordinary, and in several cases where immediate dispossession was urged, reserved the right to take fourteen days to make a decision. In cases where rent had not been paid because the tenants deemed increases unjust, the Judge insisted that the old rent be paid for the protection of the landlord, and urged that settlement be made through the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering before the tenth of the month. In other cases tenants were given until Nov. 1 to move, and when tenants protested that they could find no apartments the Judge made it clear that the power conferred upon him by law made it impossible for him to help the tenant further.

Scenes in the Bronx Court were in a large measure duplicated in every other Municipal Court in the city. Justice Samson Friedlander in the Seventh District Court, in West 125th Street, disposed of 485 cases.

The tenants of 535 West 173d Street complained that H. Stolz of the Foro Realty Corporation had refused to accept rent from certain tenants and had served them with dispossess notices on the first of the month. Harry Levy, a tenant, told the Judge that his wife was in such a condition that the physician had ordered her not to move. Although the rent of his four-room apartment, he said, had been raised from $18 to $30, he was willing to retain it on account of his wife, but Stolz had refused to accept the rent. He said the use of the elevator and telephone had been denied him and his family. The Justice directed that Stolz restore both services and that Levy and the other tenants should have twenty days to find apartments. In nearly all the other cases coming up before this court the tenants received the full limit of time to move.

In the Third District Court in Lee Avenue, Brooklyn, 300 cases were decided by Justice D. Grant Esterbrook, most of the tenants receiving extensions. The congestion in court was so great and the heat so excessive that Mrs. Minnie Hoffman of 26 Bushwick Avenue, with a baby in her arms and two little girls tugging at her skirts, fainted and was carried from the room.

TAKE UP RAND SCHOOL CASE

Hearing on Attorney General's Application for Reopening Begins.

After many adjournments due to the illness of Samuel Untermyer, appearing as voluntary counsel for the Rand School in East Fifteenth Street, the application by the Attorney General to reopen a default taken last July when the suit of the Attorney General against the American Socialist Society, the legal name of the Rand School, was dismissed by Justice McAvoy, came before Supreme Court Justice Gavegan for argument yesterday. Deputy Attorney General Berger argued that the State is in earnest in its efforts to revoke the charter of the school on the ground that its activities are subversive of the best interests of the people of the State of New York and the United States, and contended that the default was made necessary because the Attorney General was not prepared to proceed with the trial of the case when directed to do so.

Justice Gavegan interrupted Mr. Berger during his statement of the case to ask why he did not begin a new action and Mr. Berger replied that the Attorney General deemed it wiser and fairer to ask that the default be opened and the original case tried on its merits. Mr. Untermyer contended that he could render no more important public duty than to try to stop the "official persecution" of the American Socialist Society. He declared that he does not believe in the tenets of the society, but insisted that the Attorney General acted against the Rand School for political purposes and took advantage of a time during the war when all free speech was being curtailed.

Mr. Untermyer conceded that the society was convicted by a Federal Jury for violation of the espionage law and was fined $3,000, from which it has appealed, but said that lecturers of the school working in various cities and states throughout the country are of the highest standing.

Mr. Berger will conclude his argument tomorrow.

CHARITIES GET BULK OF SCHINASI ESTATE

Cigarette Importer's Will Directs Son to Establish Memorial Hospital.

WEALTH OVER $10,000,000

$2,400,000 Left to Eight Institutions—Widow to Have Income of $50,000.

After the funeral yesterday of Solomon Schinasi, who made a fortune by introducing Turkish cigarettes into this country, his only son, Leon, announced the terms of his father's will, of which he is executor. The estate is valued at more than $10,000,000, it was said, and the bulk of it eventually will be used for public purposes.

The son is directed to use a large part of the estate to the establishment of the Solomon Schinasi Memorial Hospital, along lines worked out by Mr. Schinasi. The amount for this purpose is not specified. Gifts of $300,000 each are made to the Woman's Hospital, Lying-in Hospital, St. Luke's, Sydenham, Presbyterian, and Children's hospitals, and four others to be selected by the son.

The testator asked that each close friend, and every servant and employe be remembered.

Mrs. Schinasi receives a trust fund to yield an income of $50,000, and the remainder of the estate goes to the son. The property includes homes in New York, Atlantic City and Paris.

Leon Schinasi announced that he will retire from business soon, and devote himself to carrying out the spirit of his father's bequests.

Boston, Mass.

My dear Rogers;

Taking up my Transcript as usual last Saturday evening, (Sept. 20) in which as near as I could estimate there were 240 columns of advertising: I was reminded of a remark that I made at the Executive Board meeting of our American Association of Advertising Agencies. The discussion turning upon circulations and advertising rates, I said:

"Gentlemen, the Boston Transcript enjoys the unique distinction of having the highest rate for advertising per thousand circulation of any metropolitan Daily in America, furthermore, it gets by and makes good."

You are certainly to be congratulated on the success that the Transcript has, maintaining as you do, a well printed, fearlessly edited and clean journal, both in reading and advertising columns.

Very truly yours,

Have you measured this new FORCE in farm buying?

Some facts from country storekeepers that will interest you

More than two million farm boys are back home again from the war.

They have seen the big places—New York, London, Paris. For months they have lived and fought side by side with the boys from the towns and cities.

A popular song writer sensed the problem these boys present when he wrote, "How 'ya Gonna Keep 'em Down on the Farm After They've seen Paree?"

FARM AND FIRESIDE wondered about this, too, and sent investigators into rural communities to find out.

Here are some of the things they saw and heard.

The new farm boy

The farm boy has changed.

Changed in his ideas about people and living, about clothes and amusements and creature comforts.

The whole thing is summed up rather picturesquely by a merchant in the little town of Macomb, Ill., who says, "Tobacco chewing is going out of fashion with farm boys while cigarettes are coming in—a 'city way' they learned in the army."

And by another storekeeper in the same town, who asserts that "Silk shirts are a fad now and we sell as many to the farm boys as to the town folks. And at $10 up."

And by still another instance, a jeweler out in a country town in Pennsylvania—Blairsville—who says, "The farm boys are sprucing up in the little niceties of personal wear. They are buying a class of merchandise of which I sold very little before the war."

Here is the answer

Similar reports from many merchants reveal the answer to the song writer's question.

The boys in the majority are staying at home and changing things about, to make farm life what they want it to be.

They are looking not to the cities but to their own parents, local merchants and community leaders to satisfy their new ideas and new ambitions.

Obviously here is a tremendous new force in farm buying that the advertiser should measure and reckon with.

An appreciation and keen understanding of such changing conditions as this in farm life, is what makes FARM AND FIRESIDE the magazine to which more than 600,000 progressive farm homes respond.

WORLD'S FINEST ARMOR IN MUSEUM

Equestrian Suit of 1527, Worn by Gigantic Warrior of Francis I., Exhibited on Horseback.

IS OVERLAID WITH GOLD

Seven Colossal Statues of Lion-Headed Goddess of War Sekhmet Also Among Rich Accessions.

The finest suit of armor in the world, an equestrian armor for man and horse, every inch of its wonderful mechanism covered with finely etched engraving and the whole heavily overlaid with gold, was placed on exhibition in the most prominent position in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the big entrance hall, yesterday afternoon.

"It is a harness of regal splendor," Bashford Dean, Curator of Arms and Armor of the Museum, said. "It is finer than any of the suits of armor of that great King Francis I. which have come down to us." It is dated 1527.

This famous suit of armor was first seen by William H. Riggs, famous collector of Paris thirty years ago, on a military exposition in the French capital. It was a harness too fine to belong in any private collection, Mr. Riggs believed, and for more than a quarter of a century he has been using every effort to obtain it for the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

Sieur Jacques Gourdon de Genouilhac, a courtier and warrior in the days of Louis XII. and Francis, was the original owner of the armor, which, shut up in an old castle in the dry air of Southern France, has come down to the present day in a wonderful state of preservation. Even the lining and some of the straps remain and the covering of gold is almost intact. Beneath the breastplate it is what Dr. Dean calls "mint pure."

Men of olden days, as their armor tells the tale, were men of small stature, but this wonderful old harness belonged to a warrior and knight of gigantic proportions. To determine the size one of the attendants of the museum, a man more than six feet and of proportions agreeing with his height, and weighing 225 pounds, put on the armor, and he, as some one said, "merely rattled around in it."

The old armor was part a purchase with the Rogers Fund of the Museum and part gift of Mr. Riggs. A remarkable feature is that it is in no way restored, as is the case with many pieces of armor, but has in no part a modern piece. It has also for a harness of its kind a greater number of pieces de renfort than any other armor described.

Another magnificent gift, this from Henry Walters, second Vice President of the Museum, is a series of seven colossal seated statues of the lion headed goddess of war Sekhmet, made of black granite, wonderful old pieces of Egyptian sculpture, from a forest of such statues set up by Amenhotep III. in the temple of Mut at Karnak. From the 500 odd statues which the king, a man of peace, set up as a propitiary measure, others have gone to the museums of the big cities of the world. The Metropolitan Museum already had one and this with the seven new ones makes a magnificent presentation in the twelfth Egyptian room of the museum. Since 1830 the seven have been in the possession of Lord Amherst of Hackney in his important collection of Egyptian antiquities. Lord Amherst acquired them in 1864 or 1865 of Dr. John Lee. The statues appear in the catalogue of the collection of Hartwell House in 1838 and can be identified as part of a collection sold at Sotheby's in 1823. At one of the sales of the big lion-faced goddesses they were found too heavy for the sales room and were placed on Waterloo Bridge in London and sold from there. Unfortunately some passerby not liking the appearance of the lion-faced ladies overturned one of them and the finest of the museum seven has a break at the waist line, caused by this vandalism.

A rich collection of accessions was put on view yesterday at the museum and in the Recent Accessions Room is a fine first edition of Breydenbach's "Itinerary of a Voyage by Sea to the Holy Land," date, 1486, written in Latin, printed by Erhard Reuwich. An interesting print of Venice is unfolded as the book is shown in the case. It is an important addition to the print collection of the museum.

CAFE OWNER FINED AGAIN.

Hanley Ordered to Pay $500 for Selling Liquor Second Time.

John J. Hanley, proprietor of a café at Broadway and Ninety-second Street, was fined $500 yesterday by Federal Judge William B. Sheppard after pleading guilty to a second violation of the Wartime Prohibition act.

After a previous raid by agents of the Department of Justice, Hanley was fined $500. Soon after that he was held up by automobile bandits, who took a large sum of money from him. Recently he was arrested a second time.

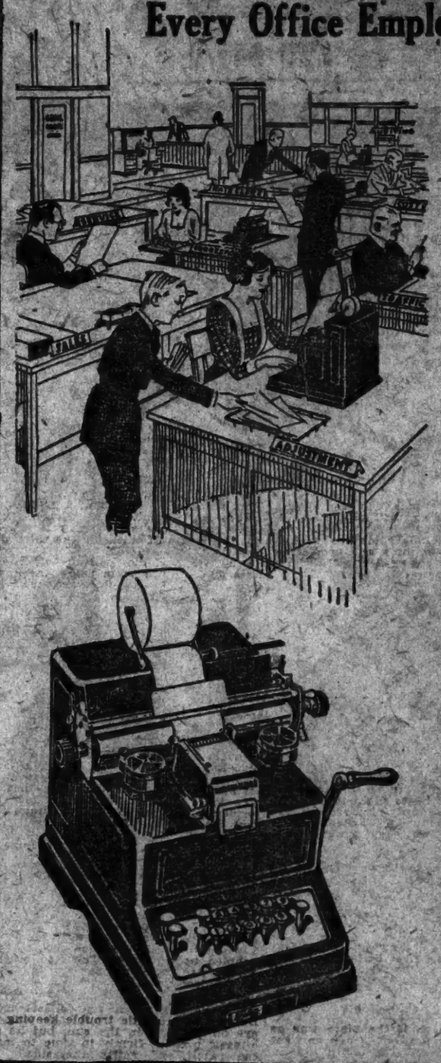
Dalton

ADDING-CALCULATING MACHINE



Every Office Employee can and will use a 10-Key Dalton

Time is the most precious commodity of any office. Figuring machines should be purchased that can and will be used by every one.

And unless a machine invites use thru its simplicity, it will not be used. In the branch offices of the biggest corporations, like Goodyear, 10-Key Daltons are being installed because clerk after clerk uses it during the day.

The Dalton invites use. Executives use it who would ordinarily hesitate to approach a figuring machine. Employees like it because it relieves them of mental effort, such as column selection.

It is a better investment for any office because it is simpler in construction and operation, and because it combines a mechanical calculating brain with an adding and listing brain. Fastest adding-multiplying machine made. Make a test.

Phone for Demonstration

The demand for Daltons today exceeds the supply although we have doubled and tripled our production. This is simply the result of the business world knowing the Dalton better, understanding its greater efficiency and broader figuring service.

ELLER'S PITCHING AND BATTING ARE TOO MUCH FOR THE WHITE SOX IN FIFTH GAME OF SERIES

ELLER IS BEST OF SERIES' PITCHERS

Mathewson Says Hod's Work Is Most Sensational Ever Seen in Big Event.

REDS ARE BETTER CLUB

Results Prove Superiority—Playing of White Sox Outfield Is Disappointing.

By CHRISTY MATHEWSON.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—When I was talking with Hod Eller about thirty minutes before the start of Saturday's game, he was a very downhearted pitcher.

"Hod," I inquired, "Who is going to work?"

"Jimmy Ring," he replied in a discouraged tone. "He can beat the White Sox. We all think he can beat them, and it is for the good of the team, but I sure would like to get into this series."

As I walked away I found myself also wishing that he could have the opportunity to pitch a game against the Sox. It was partly because I have a personal pride in having discovered Eller, but it was mostly because I had told several of my friends that, if Hod worked a game, he would make monkeys of the White Sox sluggers.

Today we both got our wish. Pat Moran evidently decided that the American League champions ought to be shown some real shine ball pitching, and he called upon Eller to do the demonstrating.

What this husky redleg did to Gleason's club swingers made the Sox rooters bawl with anguish. His shine ball made them wish for a squad of opticians to adjust their eyes. The only enjoyment the big crowd got out of the game was the gratification of being present to witness some of the most sensational pitching ever flashed in a world's series.

Pitchers in former years have scored shut-outs. Pitchers have held their opponents to three hits or less, but never before in the big series have six successive sluggers, not the weaklings of the team but the best, strode to the plate and then, one by one, slouched away again dimly conscious of the fact that the umpire was singing that sickening song: "Three strikes, you're out." That happened today in the second and third innings, when Gandil, Risberg, Schalk, Williams, Leibold and Eddie Collins took the count in succession. The six of them in eighteen strikes fouled only four balls.

Eller Is a Puzzle.

Eller kept up his great work in the fourth inning, when he retired the first two men on puny grounders to himself, and then struck out Hap Felsch for the third out in the inning. In the fifth two men were out when Schalk singled, but Williams struck out, making Eller's eighthvi ctim out of twelve batters. In all, he had nine strike-outs. During the entire game only one White Sox batter hit the ball really hard. That was Weaver, who landed on one after two batters were out in the ninth inning and drove it for a triple in Chicago's dying effort.

Besides stopping the White Sox almost without help from his chums, Eller started the fireworks in the sixth, when the Reds came to the bat. The smashing up of contests by making hits seems to be Eller's specialty. His supporters were not doing much to Williams, and Hod evidently thought it was time for some one to bust one, so he started it. He did the same thing in the fifth inning of the game in the decisive series that virtually clinched the pennant for the Reds. He landed on one of Jess Barnes's offerings for a smash into the left field bleachers, scoring two men ahead of him.

The showing of the White Sox outfield was a disappointment to me after hearing so much about their great work. The fielding of Felsch and Jackson was not up to the advertisements. They allowed one to go over him without even seeming to get started after the ball until it was first him, and Felsch misjudged one hit by Roush that put an end to all doubt [illegible] they didn't look that kind in their own league, but, after today, National Leaguers must reserve judgment as to their real ability. Possibly the Sox outfielders are getting a little discouraged because of their inability to find any kind of pitching that the Reds offer them.

Roush certainly was due to hit something in the series, and apparently he was saving up until bingles were needed. He planted one where it counted most and made the only real solid wallop connected with Eller's pitching, proved enough to discourage the White Sox even if it failed to convince them they are not the better ball club.

Kopf Makes Deciding Play.

Eller was pitching such great ball that the Reds were not compelled to extend themselves on defensive work. Most of the chances were easy ones, excepting the one accepted by Kopf in the first inning, which, to my way of thinking, was the deciding play of the contest. Eller was wild at the start, walking Leibold, and the White Sox began to rush the attack, playing the hit-and-run. Collins sent a bounder down to Kopf in deep short. He made a remarkable stop and throw which caught the speedy Eddie by inches at first base.

Had that been a hit it might have turned the tide, as Weaver singled immediately afterward. However, Eller made his either glisten, and from then on Chicago had no real chance to score a run.

The irritability that must be present when ball players are in earnest presented itself when Ray Schalk kicked himself out of the game after losing a close decision at the plate when Groh scored the third run of the game. He might have saved his temper, as two runs already were in, and two were as good as a thousand with Eller going the way he was.

The series appears to be almost over. The Reds are confident they will wind it up without having to return to Chicago. Moran probably will send Ruether in Cincinnati tomorrow and Gleason will choose Kerr.

ning two-bagger out of Felsch's reach in left centre field.

When Eller had reached second Felsch tried to make a throw to third, but the ball went wild, caromed off Risberg's glove, and rolled into foul territory. Eller went to third.

It was the chance that the Reds had been waiting for. They were impatient at the bench. They grabbed for the bats and began swinging, getting ready for the annihilation which was to follow.

Rath smacked a hard single into right and Eller romped home with the first run. Moran whispered something to Jake Daubert, and the former Brooklyn player laid a sacrifice down the third base line. Rath went to second while Weaver was tossing Daubert out.

Lefty Williams began to wilt like a morning glory in the sun. His wildness came back to him with a rush. Heinie Groh was at the bat and Williams couldn't find the plate. Groh walked. Eddie Roush was at the bat. Edward cracked the ball good and plenty and the ball went soaring on its way, high over Happy Felsch's head in centre field. Felsch, for a moment, misjudged the ball, then got his bearings and ran backwards to get it. It was beyond his reach and he only touched it as it flitted down to the turf.

By this time Rath and Groh were tearing toward the plate. The ball came into Ray Schalk as he stood at the plate. Rath was across, and Groh came sliding in with a mighty leap. Schalk down for the count of two at the plate and then hurled himself over flat on the ground and tried to touch Groh. Umpire Charley Rigler stood over the play and declared Groh was safe.

Schalk Put Out of Game.

For once in his short life Ray Schalk lost his head. He was sure Groh was out. He jumped up and made a rush at Umpire Rigler. Although only half the umpire's size, Schalk bumped violently into the umpire, and Rigler had to keep him away with a mighty shove. Ray was on the war path and tried to swing at the burly umpire.

Rigler put him out of the game. It isn't often that a player carries on so hysterically that it is necessary to put him out of a world's series game. The last one who was chased was Frank Chance, the peppery pugnacious in 1910 that he was exiled.

Kid Gleason rushed up to the plate when Rigler sentenced Schalk to the guard house. Way down in his heart Gleason might have liked to see Ray, who had the spunk to put up his tight little fists right into the face of heavyweight Rigler. But it was bad business at this time. Out in any alley or in an open lot this might have been more entertaining, but at the series when Ray should have curbed his temper.

The Reds were jubilant. Groh, Jimmy Smith and some of the others mocked Ray's pugilistic efforts and roared with laughter as the latter threw off his mask to take off his mask and chest pad and walk to the bench in humiliation amid the taunts and boos of the rival players and Cincinnati fans. Lynn took Schalk's place behind the bat, but with Schalk gone, one of Gleason's best performers was out of the game.

The Chicago fans were silent, and the Redland rooters flared up into another spasm of joy. Pat Duncan walloped a fly to Joe Jackson, and Roush raced toward the plate after the catch. Jackson made a good throw to the plate, but it was late, and Roush was doubly safe when Lynn let the ball trickle away from him. The inning was over when Neale hoisted a fly to Felsch.

Felsch Makes Mistake.

Once again the White Sox had been outwitted. When Eller came to the bat at the beginning of the inning, Happy Felsch moved over toward right field. There was a hole between Felsch and Jackson wide enough to send a regiment through. It is difficult to understand why the White Sox thought that Eller was a right field hitter. Their scouting must have been bad. If they only remembered how Eller beat the Giants in New York one day last Summer by plastering the ball into the left field bleachers for a home run, they would never have been under the impression that he was a right field hitter. This is only one of the many instances where the Reds have shown themselves a smarter lot of ball players than the American Leaguers.

This sumptuous collection of four runs was plenty for the Reds. It was more than enough to win, for Eller, slated over his success, was the personification of coolness and the Sox under control all the time. More than that, he had the ball under control, too.

The fifth and last run for the Reds was scored in the ninth. Roush rolled an innocent little grounder to Eddie Collins, and the star of so many world's series chose this occasion to make an error. It was the first error he has made in eighteen consecutive world's series games. Mayer, who had supplanted Williams, gave Duncan a pass, and Kopf sent them along with a sacrifice. Neale rolled a hopper at Risberg and, while the Swede was tossing him out at first, Roush scored.

White Sox fans looked back at the chance Gleason's men had in the opening inning and moaned. They should have won the ball game right then and there.

Miss Great Chance.

Eller was a bit uncertain at the start, and gave Leibold, the first Chicago batsman to face him, a base on balls. Eddie Collins was thrown out at first on a close play by Kopf, Leibold going to second. Buck Weaver soaked a hard bounder off Eller's glove, the ball rolling over toward Groh, but Buck was safe before Groh could get the ball, and Leibold was at third. The Sox couldn't have asked for a better layout than this—runners on third and second and only one out. It was little wonder that the inhabitants of the inland metropolis got excited and stood up and shouted. Look who was at the bat, Joe Jackson!

Moments like these are trying to the souls of baseball fans. When Joe took a swing at the ball and whirled all the way around when he missed it, there were a thousand fans who had to hold themselves in check to prevent jumping out onto the field to take the bat away from him and take a swing at it themselves. When Eller got two strikes on Jackson, even his best friends in the grandstand and his greatest boosters began to call him names. Joe got another healthy wallop at the ball and a high fly shot up over the infield like a geyser.

Wow, what a disappointment! The Chicago fans were so het-up that a word from a leader the world have taken Joe out and bolted him in oil. They turned from Jackson in disgust, and pinned their hopes on Happy Felsch. When Happy came up to the bat he was hissed while the outfielders spread all over the lot. They moved out toward the fence, and Eller faced the slugger with a look on his face which seemed to say, "Now let us see you hit it out of their reach if you can."

Felsch tried his best to pole the ball out of the lot, but his calculations went badly astray. He hoisted a fly to left which was easy picking for Pat Duncan, and the inning was over. The Chicago fans, who had bet a-plenty that the Sox would win today's game, kissed their currency good-bye right there.

Eller was at the topnotch of his pitching skill in the second and third innings when he fanned Gandil, Risberg and Schalk in the second, and sent Williams, Leibold and Eddie Collins back to the bench with their heads down in the third.

Superlative Pitching.

It was superlative pitching. He exercised a sort of black magic over the ball. It obeyed the sensitive touch of his fingers with uncanny discipline. It curled and coyly dallied with the White Sox bats without permitting itself to touch them. There was a snappy break to his curves and they twisted out of the plate. Eller made the ball sit up, roll over and play dead. He shot it over the corners of the plate, and rarely during the game did the ball find the deadly alley across the center where heavy hitters aptne to see it. He fanned everybody on the White Sox team except Jackson and Felsch. He made Williams whiff the air twice. The name of Hod Eller is added to the growing list of notables who can have the whole town for the asking when they get back to Cincinnati in the morning.

After Weaver's scratch bang in the first inning, the Sox didn't get another hit until Ray Schalk cracked a single in the fifth inning. The third and last hit came when two were out in the last of the ninth. Rath flipped Leibold and Eddie Collins out at first in this round. Buck Weaver got the only healthy swipe at Eller's fast pitching when he cuffed a three bagger to the deepest corner between the right and centre terraces. But Weaver did not get beyond third. Jackson had another chance, but Eller had him just where he wanted him. Jackson rolled a grounder to Larry Kopf, who threw the ball over to Daubert, and the game was over. The Reds were within a step of the world's championship.

When Daubert caught the ball, jubilant Redland fans poured over the boxes on to the field. They rushed at Eller but he brushed them away. He ran over to Daubert and asked Fats for the ball. Daubert handed the ball over and Eller thrust it into his back pocket and was swallowed in a seething, turbulent mob of hysterical Cincinnati admirers.

In the far-away golden future when Hod Eller is a tottering, old white-haired man, he will gather his children and his grandchildren about him at Christmas time and will take a dusty old baseball from the shelf. He will take it in his thin, bony fingers and show the kids how he pitched back in 1919 in Chicago, when he made two players, Jackson and Felsch, famous in their day as fence busters, look like a couple of boobs.

The White Sox are a downcast, crestfallen lot tonight. They have been patiently waiting for a break in the luck and in the meantime the Reds have been knocking wide bruises in their best pitching.

The Reds look for a picnic in Cincinnati tomorrow. It will be another holiday for Redland. The heroes will go home with four victories attached to their belts, and are so confident that the series will end with tomorrow's game that they are already making plans to go back to the home folks on Wednesday.

EVEN MONEY ON 6TH GAME.

White Sox Backers Scarce and Few Wagers Made in This City.

"The I told you so" fans are out in force in New York, and White Sox rooters are as scarce as seats in the subway during a rush hour. Of course, the world's series is not actually a thing of the past. The Reds must win another game before the bets can be paid off, but New York now regards this as a mere formality. In various places along the route they White Way last night it looked as if some of those who had backed the Cincinnati club to win were out spending the money. Not even a vague doubt seemed to punctuate their joy. Chicago rooters vanished as if by magic. It is feared that some of them hedged orally, if they could not financially. There was none to sponsor the wilting cause of the American Leaguers. Occasionally a fan with a disgruntled look was detected mumbling to himself, but there was no other visible sign to indicate that he had been a Gleason adherent.

In one place an inquisitive young man caused a small sensation by asking in a tremulous voice "What are the odds on the series?" He immediately became the object of close scrutiny. "Odds on the series!" murmured some one near him. "For the Iuva Mike, can you beat that?"

There were not any odds on the series. That is, if some one had insisted on betting on the White Sox he might have been accommodated at his own price, but as no one wanted to commit financial suicide, no one heard anything like odds. One fan caustically remarked:

Looks to me as if Moran could pitch himself and stop those birds.

Even with Ruether slated to pitch for the Reds today, however, there were some who figured the law of average must be in their favor and took a flier on the White Sox to win this afternoon's game. The odds on the proposition were even money.

SOX CALCULATIONS OVERLOOKED ELLER

Chicago Player-Authors Emphasized That Sunday Rest in Pre-Game Dope.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—That enforced rest over Sunday had been counted upon by the White Sox partisans as the first lucky break the team had had in the series, and members of the team, most of whom are temporarily attached to Chicago sporting staffs in the capacity of signers of daily articles, had said as much emphatically. They thought that the Sunday postponement would give the players time to settle down and strike their stride, in which case class would tell, said these prophets. Claude Williams, too, would be benefited by the additional rest, according to the theory, and, altogether, that rain was a glorious happening. The only blunder in the computation appears to have been the omission of the unknown quantity, X, or Eller, who certainly excelled in today's game, and the failure to add one day's rest to the Reds, side of the equation.

Groundkeepers were up and about the park long before the gates were thrown open at 9:30 o'clock this morning, and early birds, filing into the bleachers and pavilions, were regaled with the spectacle of strong arms manning the massive tarpaulin, which was dragged at full length into left field. Immediately the workers busied themselves on the infield with rakes, sweeps and rollers, ironing out every kink and spreading the playing lines with a fresh Kalsomine. At 11 o'clock the diamond was as dry as the proverbial bone and the outfield, uncovered throughout the heavy rain of Saturday night and yesterday, was rapidly becoming fit for rapid stepping by the fly-chasing gentry due to perform three hours later.

The score board at Comiskey Park didn't work true to form here this afternoon. In fact, it went on strike and absolutely refused to work at all for a time. When Williams served up the first pitch to Rath, which was a ball, the indicator followed the play. But there it stopped and the fans had to guess at subsequent strikes and balls. They followed a strike, a ball, another strike and then enough balls to give Rath a pass, but you couldn't tell it from the mute reflector in centre field.

The remainder of the inning the scoreboard was on its bad behavior and didn't even register the first ball, as it had done in the beginning. So the fans had to guess at the progress of the duel between Williams and the batters opposing him. Groh came up to bat however, and Liebold had a ball and a strike called on him, the scoreboard suddenly took on a new lease of life and showed the fans how the count was going. Thereafter the indicator worked unerringly.

Some natural born counter, one of the chaps who revel in figures, has estimated that the 600 feet baseballs in each game of the series. These spheres now cost the clubs $20 a dozen and about four dozen lose their white lustre in each game. Most of them are fouled into the stands where the fortunate catches or the victors in scrambles promptly jab them into coat pockets. They are seldom returned in a world's series game, whether their flight is into the stands or boxes, or into the field along the foul lines. In ordinary games throughout the season, through the vigilance of special officers, some of them find their way back on to the field, but in these games they are valued as highly as souvenirs and the crowds are so massed that it's a hopeless task to seek to recover them.

That little Reds' jamboree today probably nipped in the bud a record-breaking performance in the way of world's series attendance. The attendance record, made in 1912, is 251,801, and the record in receipts, made in the same year, is $460,500. The latter figure will be surpassed when the next game is played.

It had been calculated that, with the Chicago and Cincinnati ball yards accommodating, respectively, 30,000 and 35,000, an eight-game series would make the receipts clip a cool $775,000. The probable brevity of the series, however, makes it appear likely that the record figures for attendance will not be surpassed this year.

The third pitch to Roush in the fourth inning came sailing in head high and Eddie had to duck lively to avoid a collision with the pill. The Red fly chaser didn't like the proximity of the ball to his head and looked huffily at Williams, while telling him to control his pitches. On the eight pitch Roush lost his grip on the bat which went sailing out to the box at the feet of Williams. Claude picked up the bludgeon and tossed it back to Roush.

One fan, seated in a ringside box near the Reds' bench, employed a unique method of spearing a foul fly. In the fifth inning Rariden popped up a high foul, which sailed out of reach of Gandil, into the crowd. A fan with a red megaphone, held the funnel shaped implement above his head and allowed the ball to fall into it with a plump. Then he pocketed the ball.

If cooler heads hadn't prevented a mix-up, the home plate and vicinity would have been a battle ground in the sixth, when Schalk was ordered out of the game for kicking to Umpire Rigler. Sox and Reds exchanged batter, uninterrupted until the managers of the teams and the umpires came on the scene, and through it all Cy Rigler stood like a dictator.

Many fans got souvenirs of the game during the afternoon sport. There were enough fouls batted into the upper and lower stands to support a couple of sand lots teams for a season. Scrambles to gain the coveted prizes were frequent even in the press box, where several landed amid the toiling scribes.

When Eller returned to the Red's bench after fanning Williams, Leibold, and Collins in the third, several of the Cincinnati players rushed at Hod, doing a shimmy and proffering the Red twirler a sweater with which to keep him arm warm.

There was noticeable dearth of early arrivals when Comiskey's gateman showed up for duty. At 8 o'clock the only persons congregated about the bleachers and pavilion entrances were the employees of the park system who had no thought of witnessing a ball game.

Adolfo Luque was instructed to warm up with Ivy Wingo in the first when Eller seemed in difficulty, but Hod got safely through the inning and Luque ceased his warming up exercises for the afternoon.

Buck Weaver's three-base smash to the fence in right centre in the ninth halted the crowd in its flight toward the exit. They were only delayed an instant, however, for Joe Jackson ended the game with an easy grounder to Kopf.

An enthusiastic Sox supporter, seated in the upper stand above the Reds' bench, collected a red sock on a string and lowered it over the heads of the Cincinnati clan. The jinx didn't have any effect whatsoever.

There was only scattering applause as Williams shot the first ball wide of the plate. Evidently the Sox supporters have stopped shouting and are now hoping for the best. That certainly seems forlorn now.

Mayer pitched as if the plate was as wide as the pitchers' box, when he went to the mound for the Reds' finish. Grover Lowdermilk was sent to the Sox side of the field to warm up for an emergency.

The Sox bat boy was walking to the plate in the fifth, with the catching paraphernalia, mask, chest protector, knee pads, and mitt, when Schalk was at bat. Ry fooled the kid, however, when he crashed a single to left.

In the fourth nine balls were served Roush, a record in the number of balls pitched to a batter during the game. Roush finally got on through Risberg's error.

In the fourth Groh started to swing at the second ball served him, changed his mind after leaning out of his peculiar position, and suddenly dropped into a thud in the dirt about the home plate.

Eller fooled Gandil with a high one for the third strike in the second inning. Gandil almost strained his back muscles trying to connect with the pill.

Jimmy Smith was right on the job for a scrap in the sixth when Schalk was ejected from the pastime. He didn't get a chance to indulge in any trouble.

CHICAGO FANS ALMOST WILLING TO ADMIT DEFEAT IN WORLD'S SERIES

SOX ROOTERS LOSE HOPE AS REDS WIN

Cincinnati's Fourth Victory Extinguishes Last Flame of Cheer in Chicago.

ALL OVER BUT SHOUTING

Windy City Fans Are Almost Ready to Admit Defeat in the World's Series.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—The zip and tang seemed to have been extracted from the baseball brew of Chicagoans today, and their spirit compared with that of Friday and Saturday as Bevo compares with Culmbacher, and heaven knows they are only third cousins by marriage. The blow which they endured on Saturday afternoon, when Mayor Edward Cicotte of the South Side hospitably presented certain quests from Cincinnati with a very choice ball game in the presence of the fans and without due regard for their feelings, had been the hardest of three jabs all in the same place.

The sore spot had become numbed in the course of a rainy Sunday, and there was something almost akin to indifference this morning in the spirit with which they discussed the probable outcome of the fifth game of the world's series. All the numb the place needed though was a good hot poultice in the shape of a victory in today's encounter to restore the circulation and banish the lethargy. With the Sox unable to furnish the required stimulant the callousness spread, and tonight utter indifference is the attitude of Chicago, an attitude which only a baseball miracle can change.

Whatever baseball bustle there may have been in this city today was not in evidence in the streets. It was kept entirely in the background, where after all a bustle really belongs. Even the never-say-die street urchins were pessimistic in their curbstone chatter, and White Sox badges and streamers were not pressed for sale, but lay neglected, if not scorned.

Hope Is Revived.

Nevertheless, as the time for the game drew near a steady exodus set in from all parts of the city toward the portals of Comiskey Park. Spirits mounted as the fans drew near the White Sox shrine, and when they were once within the gates and sat looking out on the pretty field where they had seen their pet athletes maltreat so effectively the best that the American League could send against them throughout the season, their spirits rose perceptibly, and the recent unpleasant happenings became only a nightmare, to be scoffed at when the gang was all together in the sunlight.

So hope revived, even if confidence was laggard, and there was a determined effort at displays of enthusiasm. It was a case of now or never, the fans believed, for another setback would just about make it necessary to measure the Sox for a plain but choice catafalque, while, on the other hand, a victory would sink the deadly teeth of the Chicago team in the coattails of the flying Reds. Therefore there was a note of supplication in the cheers with which they greeted the alabaster-hosed warriors as they trotted out to take the field.

The high gods had kept the promise made in their names by the often-execrated weather prophets, and it was "fair with moderate temperature." That is to say it was fairly fair, with occasional clouds, and moderately moderate, with something of an edge to the westerly wind which set in from Butte, St. Paul and Keokuk to see the game. This same wind appeared bent on crowding its way into the lofty press section as the choice vantage point, and if there was any of it left to bother the grand-stand crowd down below it must have been a pretty husky, well-developed breese when it first entered the grounds.

He Who Laughs Last.

The writer and some others among the scribes in the press box laughed at the cutting air currents. They were the ones who had patiently carted about the country through scorching days and nights overcoats and other thick garments, less often visible to alien humanity, but closer and more comforting than a brother in time of chilly stress. They laughed, too, with some crudity at certain members of the correspondents' brigade who had scoffed at them and their heavy burdens for a week, and who now sat with teeth chattering and lank limbs shivering, clad in light array. These poorly protected individuals disappeared every little while to get warmed up in the bards' room and to enjoy there a hospitality than which there is none more whicher, or even quitte as which, in all baseballdom.

As game time drew near a burst of rampant melody was launched over the crowded bleachers and half filled stands, and the now famous Reds' band marched forth upon the field, rousing the Cincinnati rooters to outbursts of enthusiasm. These same bandsmen have been putting in three arduous days in this city on the lake. When not blaring music for the rooters' song at the ball park they have been playing sparkling light music in the hotel lobbies, ever and anon irreverently jassing some dignified operatic selection.

As the Cincinnati band paused for breath in the middle of its musical rooting the opposition band across the field burst forth with a homely retort in the familiar strains of "What the — do we care?" After the visiting musicians had marched around the inclosure the two aggregations settled down and took turns in entertaining the crowd with nonpartisan melodies.

No Dove of Peace.

When Rigler, the chief arbiter, called "play ball" there was a packed house. The crowd filled all three dimensions and overflowed into the fourth. A pure white pigeon, which fluttered from somewhere as the first batter, Rath, faced Claude Williams, was greeted fondly as a harbinger of peace and good tidings for the local team. This dove was probably nothing but a whitewashed raven, or it may have been up there to tip off to the ruby legged batters the signals which Ray Schalk sent to the Chicago pitcher. In any event it was an entirely ineffectual fowl as far as the Sox were concerned.

The twirling duel that developed in the early innings of the game maintained suspense and, therefore, interest until the avalanche came in the sixth inning. Thereafter all was apathy save for some hundreds of Cincinnati fans who made the day vocal and, to their nearest neighbors, hideous also, with cheers which presently became shrieks, and shrieks which degenerated into gasps as wearied throats refused further service.

At the close the Red rooters swung wads of easily won yellowbacks and greenbacks in the air and demanded loudly that Hughie Fullerton, the prophet-mathematician, be paged. This little red-badged current of humanity surged through the great grey masses of Chicagoans on the way out, with taunts and jeers which were wholly unable to stir the disillusioned local fans from their lethargy.

SERIES BETTING ENDS.

Wagers Now Deal with Single Games, Not on Final Result.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 6.—The betting in Chicago on the world's series has become almost entirely a matter of one game at a time. There is talk tonight of a few wagers at long odds, two of them being at fifteen to one, on the ultimate result, but the sums were comparatively small.

A good many bets were laid this morning on the outcome of today's encounter. Two wagers of $1,000 at even money were posted and one White Sox supporter got $2,600 against his $1,800. He figured that if Williams came down to earth and was parsimonious, instead of generous with passes, the Cincinnati team couldn't beat him.

For tomorrow's game at Redland Field the prevailing quotations here are 7 to 5 and 8 to 5 on the Reds. Back at home, in the midst of their highly elated fellow citizens, it is generally figured here that they are likely to close out the series in quick order.

Echoes of the Series.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Even the Chicago players applauded Eller when he returned to the bench after setting a world's series strike-out record of six in a row. The crowd gave Eller a great ovation when he came to bat in the sixth. He connected for a double that started the Reds to victory. He fanned the next time up. Eller retired the Sox on five pitched balls in the sixth.

The crowd of 34,379 was the biggest of the series. There were 13 more persons jammed into the park than on Saturday. Every inch of space was occupied and thousands were turned away. Scalpers got as much as $20 for a box seat.

Buck Weaver, the Sox third baseman, staged a batting rally all by himself in the ninth with two out. His triple was the only long hit the Sox made.

The teams left at 10 o'clock tonight for Cincinnati, where the sixth, and perhaps final, game of the series is scheduled for tomorrow. If a seventh game is necessary it will be played in Cincinnati Wednesday. The Reds were in a hilarious frame of mind after the game. They slapped each other on the back, yelling that tomorrow's game would make them baseball champions of the world. Twelve special trains were required to transport the baseball players, newspaper men, and fans to Cincinnati tonight.

Kid Gleason still wears his cap on the side of his head, but he wasn't much in evidence on the coaching line today. Moran, however, coached his players from the first base line.

Biddie Murphy, the Sox pinch hitter, had a chance again today but he fanned. Te is participating in his fourth world's series and will draw a full share of the receipts for going to bat twice so far, plus whatever else he may doin the remaining games.

Schalk and Williams addressed a peppery collection of remarks to Rigler to the effect that the umpire was not calling strikes when Williams cut the corners. It was the fore-runner of Schalk's impending expulsion. This was the second time in a world's series that a player was ever expelled. Frank Chance, the old Cub leader, was the first.

Of the forty-six strikes which Eller pitched, thirty-six came in the first five innings, and half of that number were recorded in the second and third when he struck out six successive batsmen. In the third inning Leibold was the only Sox player to touch the ball, and his best was a high foul into the upper tier of the grand stand for a strike. In the sixth Eller threw only five times. One of these efforts was a ball, another was fouled, and a fly and two easy grounders disposed of the three batters. The big Red twirler missed the plate eighteen times in the first three innings, but in the last six had only seven bad ones called. This was largely due to the fact that he was putting practically every ball across the plate and the Chicago men quit trying to wait him out.

All told the Chicago pitchers threw 128 times. Eller got through with 94 throws. While Eller's wrk was unusual, Williams pitched a fine brand of ball and made a creditable record. He had 43 strikes in eight innings and only 28 balls, a performance which was far ahead of his exhibition at Cincinnati in the second game. Williams was working the inside corner constantly, and it was a piece of this species below his knees that Eller lifted between Jackson and Felsch after waving weakly at two similar offerings. Williams yielded four hits to Eller's three, struck out three to Eller's nine, and gave two bases on balls as compared with Eller's one. Mayer, who pitched th n inth for Chicago, exhibited a lack of control, giving a pass and missing the plate twelve times out of twenty-one attempts.

PROS BOX TO DECISION.

Fans See First Bouts of That Nature in New York in Twenty Years.

More than 6,000 persons filled the armory of the First Field Hospital and Third Ambulance Company to capacity last night to witness the first series of bouts to decisions between professional boxers held in this city since the repeal of the Horton law, more than twenty years ago. Long before the time set for the first bout to go on it was necessary to close the doors and detail a squad outside the building to keep the hundreds of disappointed fans in the street from battering down the barriers. Eventually it was necessary to call the police to clear Sixty-sixth Street.

It signalized the beginning of a campaign by Billy Roche, the veteran referee, under the sanction of Major J. Franklin Dunseith, the commanding officer, for the purpose of recruiting the First Field Hospital and Third Ambulance Company to full strength. Bouts to a decision between professionals in this State are a decided novelty. Only the "oldest inhabitants" can remember the days when the paid fighters battled in the ring to decisions by the referee. That decision bouts are popular was proved last night when the fans turned out in unexpected numbers to see them.

There were fourteen bouts in all. They were of three, four, and six rounds. In the more important events Jack Britton, welterweight champion, was given the decision over Young Otto at the end of three rounds; Joe Lynch of the West Side won from Tim Hagen in three rounds; Richie Ryan got the verdict over Otto Jacques in six rounds; Sailor Volk and Billy Ahearn boxed four rounds to a draw, and Paddy Burns, the A. E. F lightweight, boxed a draw with Walter Farrell in four rounds.

Mike O'Dowd was scheduled to box, but an injured hand compelled him to refrain from donning the gloves. However, he refereed all of the bouts except the one between Britton and Otto. This set-to was refereed by Billy Roche.

It was announced that a similar tournament would be staged in the immediate future.

AMATEURS IN FAST BOUTS.

Frank Cassidy, Champion, Wins Twice at 12th Regiment Armory.

Eight amateur boxers crowded plenty of action into twelve rounds of boxing at the 12th Regiment Armory last night. Arranged by Benny Lewine and staged under an A. A. U. sanction, the bouts were held to aid recruiting in the regiment. In every respect they were a pronounced success. It was estimated that nearly 4,000 fans jammed the building.

There were three bouts in the 135-pound class and a special bout in the 125-pound class. In the first bout S. Mahler, of the Morningside Athletic Club, was given the judges' decision over J. Schwartz, of the Clark House Athletic Association, at the end of three fast rounds. In the second bout Frank Cassidy, of the Ozanam Association, the national and metropolitan amateur champion, outpointed E. Freibaum of the Clark House A. A. in three rounds. Cassidy also won the final bout in this class. He was pitted against Mahler, the winner of the first bout, and one of the fastest jousts between amateurs seen in this city in some time resulted. There was nothing but action, and it was only by clever use of a fast left hand and a snappy right cross that Cassidy earned the judges' decision at the end of the third round.

In the 125-pound special bout Henry Brown of the Clark House A. A., defeated S. Jacobs, unattached. This clash went the limit of three rounds.

INJURY HOLDS UP HARVARD CAPTAIN

Murray's Wrenched Leg May Keep Him Out of Active Football for the Week.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 6.—When the Harvard football coaches looked over their eleven today they found a tired lot of players, but few among them who will not be able to pick up hard work again tomorrow. Today's drill was light, as usual, for the first day of the week, the blackboard instructions being long and a good deal of time being spent on individual coaching.

Two regular players, Captain Bill Murray and Philbin, who has been going along so well at centre, will have to go easy this week, and it is possible that neither will be able to play next Saturday. Murray wrenched his leg severely before the Boston College game, and hurt it again Saturday. He was on the field today, but did no work except to walk through some plays.

The signal drill was unusually short. Hamilton was lame and not able to run through plays at left half back, and Nelson, Gratwick, and Humphrey alternated in his place. Desmond, the right end, was with the substitutes, and Crooker, a former freshman player, was on the right wing for the regulars.

The squad drilled in the care owing to the rain, and Coach Fisher is beginning to add new plays to the general attack. Kane, who played so well at right tackle, has a bad ear as a result of a crash on Saturday, but, except for the mishaps to Murray and Hamilton, the squad came through its first hard game in good shape.

Hubbard, the regular left tackle, who hah been out of the game ten days, reported for work again today, and Howard Brooker, a 220-pound guard from the 1920 freshmen team and a candidate the coaches have been looking for, also reported, having just returned from overseas.

CORNELL WASTES NO TIME.

Speedy Rush Holds Monday Scrimmage Instead of Indoor Drill.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 5.—For the first time in years a Cornell football squad took the field for a Monday afternoon's practice today. Some of the men were late in getting into togs, being detained in classrooms, but Coach Rush managed to get nearly all of his leaders on the field in time for a long scrimmage in which defensive play was emphasized. Under Al Sharpe's régime here the men did not get into togs on Monday but listened to a blackboard talk and lecture.

The Ithacans are in good shape as they start their campaign for the Williams, Colgate, and Dartmouth games. Carry, right halfback, is the only man on the injured list, and he was on the field today, but unable to play. Mayer, who did surprising offensive work in the Oberlin game, was unable to report today, and Saugher, a promising second string back, played right half. There were no other changes in the 'Varsity lineup, but frequent shifts were made. Coaches Cool and Vanorman gave a great deal of individual attention to the linemen and ends, while Coach Rush was quick to correct back field errors.

COLGATE IN HARD DRILL.

Football Coaches Try to Eradicate Evils Shown Against Susquehanna.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Oct. 6.—After the poor showing of the Colgate team in the game with Susquehanna last Saturday, the squad today was put through the most vigorous workout of the year. The coaching staff was absolutely relentless, and several men dropped with exhaustion. Browne, centre, received a severe blow on the head, which will put him out of the game for some time. There was no scrimmage, and emphasis was laid upon tackling, which was the glaring weakness of the team in Saturday's game.

The back field men were drilled in tackling until they could hardly stand upon their feet. Practice has arrived at the stage where the dummy has been laid aside and a live runner substituted. The coaches remarked that the squad would be drilled daily in tackling and falling upon the ball until the men showed a much better class of football.

The coaches are extremely dubious as to the team's chances with Brown Saturday.

Webster, 'Varsity man on the 1917 team and all round player, was seen on the field in uniform, but he was not used in practice. Webster has been out of the play for a week, since he was injured in scrimmage. He will undoubtedly be used in all the big games. It is hoped he will be able to start in the Brown game. Anderson, Woolsey, Barton, and Harris were not in uniform this afternoon, due to minor injuries sustained in Saturday's game. Toward the end of practice the gates were opened to the students for cheering practice.

The afternoon was rounded out by an attempt on the part of the coaches to remedy another weakness of the team as shown against Susquehanna. It was in starting. For twenty minutes the squad was shown how to make a quick start, and then all broke for the showers.

TIGERS REFUSE RUTGERS.

Proposal for Game at Big Football Pageant is Abandoned.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 6.—Princeton has definitely refused to give Rutgers one of the open dates on the Tigers' football schedule or even to play a ten-minute exhibition with the locals as a part of the big football pageant which is to be held here to commemorate the first intercollegiate football game played in America, which was between Rutgers and Princeton in 1869.

"Big Bill" Edwards of New York is Chairman of the Princeton committee for the football pageant, which is to include exhibitions of all the styles of football from 1869 to the present time. John W. Herbert of New York is the Chairman of the Rutgers committee. A banquet will be held here at which the Princeton and Rutgers 'Varsity teams will be guests.

JACKSON SCORES KNOCKOUT

Stops Eddie Morgan of England in Four Rounds at Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 6.—Willie Jackson, the New York lightweight, knocked out Eddie Morgan of England in the fourth round of a six-round bout here tonight.

Jackson showed his superiority from the start, and at the end of the third round he had the English boxer hanging on the ropes. The bell saved him. In the next round a hard left to the stomach, followed by a right to the jaw, sent Morgan down for the count.

The bout between Louisiana of this city and Jimmy Rocco of Boston was stopped in the fifth round to save Rocco from further punishment. The Boston boxer was bleeding profusely from the mouth.

SUNDAY FOOTBALL ILLEGAL.

Decision of Corporation Counsel Checks Plans of Brickley's Team.

The plan to play professional football at the Polo Grounds on Sundays has been abandoned. The promoters were under the impression that the law which allowed baseball on Sundays would also permit the playing of the gridiron game, but they have discovered that this is not the case. William Burr, Corporation Counsel, last night rendered a decision that football playing on Sunday would be illegal, and the game between Charley Brickley's Giants and the Massillon, Ohio, Tigers, scheduled for next Sunday, was immediately canceled.

As a result of the decision it is expected that Brickley's team, which held its first practice at the Polo Grounds on Sunday last, will be disbanded. It would be possible to play professional football here on Saturdays, but three choice dates already have been taken for intercollegiate games on Oct. 25, Nov. 8, and Nov. 29. This leaves such a limited number of dates that the plan of having a professional team here probably will be given up.

LINE BOTHERS POP WARNER.

Pittsburgh's Football Forwards Need Much Work Before Saturday.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 6.—Pop Warner this afternoon began preparations for the first hard test of the University of Pittsburgh football squad, scheduled for Saturday, when the West Virginia University team is met at Forbes Field. The showing made by the Panther outfit at Geneva Saturday was disappointing, and the veteran coach has a big job ahead whipping his line into proper shape. He will be able to give the problem his entire attention, however, because the backfield men have shown themselves fit. Hastings and Dehart, Davies, and Morrow are experienced in Warner's style of play, but the linemen, with two exceptions, are green.

After a lecture on the faulty play of Saturday, Warner put the squad through a stiff scrimmage this afternoon, and intimated that at least three more sessions of the same kind will be held this week. McLean apparently has won a regular place at guard.

MISS HARDIN GOLF VICTOR.

Makes Best Gross Score in Women's Tournament in Orange.

Miss E. A. Hardin, playing from the home club, won the prize for best gross score yesterday in the women's one-day golf tournament at the Essex County Country Club in Orange, N. J. The event was one of the series arranged by the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association and was played as an eighteen-hole handicap. Miss Hardin rounded the new west course of the Essex Club in 102, leading the field of thirty-two. Low net was won by Mrs. Cortland Smith with a 108—10, 98. Mrs. Stanley Wilde of Fairview had a score of 104—7, 97. There were two women in a tie for third honors, Miss Violet Miller of Orange, 109—5, 96, and Miss Julia Bredt, Essex County, with 107—9, 98.

Mrs. C. W. Smith won the eighteen-hole putting contest with a score of 35.

STATIONERS IN GOLF TEST.

East to Meet West in Richmond for Trophy of the Trade.

One of the most important of the trade association golf tournaments of the Fall will be held at Richmond, Va., on Friday, Oct. 17, when the stationers of the East will meet in competition the Western paper men for the Eberhard Faber Trophy Cup. This prize is now held by the Chicago district stationers, but all the sections from Pittsburgh eastward are now marshaling their linksmen in a grand effort to wrest the cup away.

J. R. Brundage, Chairman of the Tournament Committee of the New York Stationers Golf Association, has already had assurances from a representative group of low handicapped golfers, and a strong team will go to Richmond. He is now receiving entries at his offices, 381 Fourth Avenue, in the hope that as many men as possible will enter this series.

CREW PRACTICE POSTPONED

Columbia Oarsmen to Have First Workout on Harlem Tomorrow.

Crew practice at Columbia, which was to have commenced yesterday on the Harlem River, was postponed until tomorrow afternoon. Jim Rice said that although the barges had been put into excellent condition by Pete Rosette, the perennial Columbia boatman, they are still at the old Columbia rowing quarters at Edgewater, N. J., and will not be moved to the Union Boat Club house on the Harlem River until this afternoon or tomorrow morning. Due to the crowded condition at the Union Club house, it has been found necessary to transfer some of the club's craft to the old Columbia shed for storage, in view of the fact that Columbia is moving its scene of operations to the Harlem course.

COMERFORD JOINS COACHES AT YALE

Former 'Varsity End Added to Football Advisory Board—Team Tries New Plays.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 6.—A driving rain compelled the Yale football warriors today to abandon plans of holding outdoor gridiron practice. They transferred their base of operations to the Artillery Armory, working for two hours, but confining their activity to signal rehearsal, including several new formations, and to breaking-through practice. Considerable forward passing was also essayed.

Charley Comerford, brilliant end of Yale's last intercollegiate eleven, joined the coaching staff. Jim Braden, because of recitations, did not report for practice, Jack French of the Freshman eleven of two seasons ago, being assigned to halfback in his place.

Thorne Murphy, who has been running the third eleven, was promoted to the Field General's position of the second, and Herbert Kempton, whom he succeeded, went to halfback. The coaches are undecided whether to use him at half or quarter this Fall.

Biddie Egan, the pugilist, who won the middleweight competition at the military tourney in Paris in May, was assigned to the fullback berth on the second eleven. He has been tried at tackle and is improving rapidly, but there is a necessity of heavy backfield material, and, for the present, Egan will be used as a plunger.

Captain Callahan was back in the line-up for some of the signal work. Chick Neville, whose quarterback work has developed remarkably, was in the line-up part of the session. His namesake, Joe Neville, who was injured last week, is expected to report in uniform tomorrow.

Today's line-up:

MERRITT JOINS DARTMOUTH.

Former Freshman Star Centre May Be Tried at End.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 6.—Signal drill for an hour and a half featured today's workout for the Dartmouth squad, which came out of the hard Norwich game last Saturday in fairly good shape with the exception of Cogswell, right end, who suffered minor injuries. Coach Spears has planned a hard week for the Green warriors with special attention to be given to the backfield. Time and again the backs dropped the ball in Saturday's contest, giving the visitors several excellent chances to score.

Mel Merritt, centre on the Freshman team in 1917 and Captain elect of the Green nine, was out in togs for practice this afternoon. The former Dean Academy star played wonderful football as a member of the Freshman aggregation and every indication is that he will wage a hard fight for a permanent place on the 'Varsity. It is possible that Coach Spears will try Merritt at end.

GOODWIN TO HELP AT W. & J.

Former Quarter Back Coming This Week to Assist in Coaching.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Penn., Oct. 6.—A stiff signal drill was held by W. & J. today with an especial effort to improve the interference of the backfield, only two regulars, Smith, full back, and Wickerham, right end, were absent, suffering from injuries. Smith will be able to work again tomorrow, but Wickerham may not be able to play next Saturday against Carnegie Tech.

Russell Goodwin, former Captain, regarded as the greatest quarter back the Presidents ever had, and field general of teams which twice defeated Yale and once tied old Bill, sent word from his home at Wheeling today that he would be here some time this week to lend his aid in the development of the backs. The news was received with enthusiasm here, and Morrow will likely ask the former star to concentrate his efforts on the three leading quarter back candidates, Benkert, Jirk and Bixler.

YACHTSMEN EXPECT THAT NEW YORK Y. C. WILL ACCEPT AMERICA'S CUP CHALLENGE

CUP RACE FOR 1920 PRACTICALLY SURE

Belief Among Yachtsmen That Lipton Challenge Will Be Accepted Promptly.

NEWPORT COURSE FAVORED

Change from Sandy Hook Probable —New York Yacht Club Committee Will Announce Decision Soon.

The announcement, made exclusively in yesterday's New York TIMES, that a challenge for the America's Cup had been issued by the Royal Ulster Yacht Club, naming Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock IV. as its representative, was followed yesterday by an official announcement from Secretary George A. Cormack of the New York Yacht Club. The challenge was received less than two weeks ago, and at once referred to the Cup Committee, which, however, has not yet been able to meet for a full discussion of the challenge. The members of the America's Cup Committee are as follows: L. C. Ledyard, Chairman; E. D. Morgan, C. Oliver Iselin, W. B. Duncan, C. Ledyard Blair, Dallas B. Pratt, and Grenville Kane.

Although Sir Thomas Lipton was asked to withdraw his last challenge, which was considered "untimely," because of the effect of the war here and abroad, conditions have changed decidedly since that time, and the consensus of opinion among yachtsmen at present is that the new challenge will certainly be accepted. A single meeting of the Cup Committee should be sufficient to settle the matter, and this meeting is likely to take place in the very near future. Questions concerning the course and other details will be decided later by mutual agreement. There is, however, a general feeling that better racing conditions would be found off Newport than over the old Sandy Hook course, and it is quite possible that such a change will be suggested.

Revival a Simple Matter.

Since the Shamrock IV. is still in Brooklyn, where she has lain in drydock ever since the Summer of 1914, it will be an exceedingly simple matter to revive the historic series of international yacht races. Two of the candidates for the honor of defending the America's Cup in the first year of the war, the Resolute and the Vanitie, are still available, and one of these yachts is almost certain to be sent against the Shamrock IV. in 1920. The Vanitie is at present at City Island, while the Resolute has remained in the care of her builders, the Herreshoffs. The Defiance, which was withdrawn from competition long before the time scheduled for the races of 1914, has been sold and turned into a houseboat.

The Resolute is still known as the "Flag Officers' Boat," because she was built and backed by a group of six men, all of whom had at some time held the office of Commodore of the New York Yacht Club. They were Henry Walters, J. Pierpont Morgan, George F. Baker, Jr., Arthur Curtis James, Cornelius Vanderbilt and the late Frederick G. Bourne. The Vanitie, on the other hand, belongs to Alexander S. Cochran alone. She was designed by William Gardner, and built by the George Lawley & Son Corporation, of East Boston. The Defiance was built by the Bath Iron Works, Maine, after the designs of George Owen, and was backed by a syndicate, headed by George M. Pynchon and R. Walter Clark, of Philadelphia, owner of the schooner Irolita.

Designed by Nicholson.

Shamrock IV. was designed by C. E. Nicholson, probably the most successful producer of racing yachts in England, although never before indentified with a challenger for the America's Cup. She was built within the limit of a 75-foot waterline, as were the protected American defenders, according to an agreement made by cable in the Summer of 1913 between Sir Thomas Lipton and the New York Yacht Club.

It may be assumed that the conditions which were to govern the races scheduled for September, 1914, will, in all their essentials, hold good for next Summer, and that the America's Cup race of 1920 will actually be the delayed accomplishment of plans which had been completely made six years earlier. Whether or not any new defenders are built in the interval, the resumption of the famous event will mean a tremendous boom for yacht racing in America.

TRUCE IN TURF STRIKE.

Paris Trainers Refuse to Re-engage Stable Boys Who Walked Out.

PARIS, Sunday, Oct. 5. (Associated Press.)—Efforts to reach a settlement of the strike of stable boys at race tracks near Paris have met with an obstacle, after the terms were arranged. Four trainers refused to re-engage strikers, but a twenty-four hour truce has been agreed to, so that the public might not be disappointed.

At today's race meeting at Longchamps, Bailis LoLdr won the Municipal Council Handicap, with Frank Jay Gould's Deilia second. W. K. Vanderbilt, whose stables have not been affected by the strike, did not have any horses placed in the race.

OCEAN SWEEP IS WINNER.

Noses Out Blue Paradise in Thrilling Finish at Latonia.

LATONIA, Ky., Oct. 6.—G. J. Long's Ocean Sweep scored a rather lucky victory in the $2,000 purse event, which was the feature on the card here today, when she just managed to nose out B. J. Brannon's Blue Paradise in a thrilling finish of a six-furlong dash. W. L. Lewis's Lady Fair Play was third.

Blue Paradise seemed to be the best of the field of seven which went to the post, and showed the most speed throughout, but Jockey Pool took her wide making the last turn, and lost so much ground that Ocean Sweep was permitted to come through and gain a close decision.

Blue Paradise led all the way and set a fast pace over the heavy track. Ocean Sweep was rushed up to second position, after the first quarter, and was a length back of the leader when the two entered the stretch. But here Pool allowed his mount to swerve to the outside, and Ocean Sweep, hugging the rail, made up much ground and got on even terms with Blue Paradise. The latter made another strong effort, once she had got back on the course, but it was too late, as she did not have enough distance left to make another run. Merry Princess was far back all the way, but was running strongly at the finish. However, she could not get up to Lady Fair Play, which took third by three lengths.

T. F. Henry's The Swimmer defeated a field of eleven two-year-olds at six furlongs, leading Orlova and Luke's Pet, which were the contenders. The Swimmer was far back in the first quarter but rushed up at the turn into the stretch and coming through on the outside won by three lengths. Luke's Pet ran a nice race but was weakly ridden in the stretch and gave way to Orlova for second.

140 Candidates for Harvard Crew.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 6.—One hundred and forty candidates for the Harvard Varsity crew have turned out for Fall training, and from now until the annual Fall regatta, the date of which has not yet been decided, daily practice will be held under direction of Coach William Haines, Harvard's rowing director. There is more interest in rowing than ever before among first-year students, as a result probably to a large extent of the new rul making participation in organized athletics compulsory for freshmen. Thirteen crews have been organized among the candidates.

SIX FAVORITES ARE LOSERS AT JAMAICA

Ultima Thule Furnishes Surprising Upset by Defeating Pickwick in Belgrade Stakes.

Form was again tossed to the winds at Jamaica yesterday and the favorites were bowled over like little clay birds in a shooting gallery. Each of the six public choices of the day trailed in somewhere back of an outsider, to the dismay of players, railbirds, and clockers alike, who suffered one of the most disastrous days of the meeting.

In a little more than a week the Jamaica course has come close to establishing a season's record for form upsets. The cause for this has been generally assigned to the ever-changing condition of the track, as the result of the recent rains, but the true cause is probably to be found in the class of horses now racing here. Practically all of the high-class performers which have been racing in stake events all year on the metropolitan courses have been shipped to Maryland where big purses await their efforts, with the result that practically only selling platers remain for local racegoers.

The most surprising upset of the day came with the defeat of W. C. Clancy's Pickwick in the Belgrade Selling Stakes, which was down on the program as the feature of the day. Pickwick, a 1 to 2 favorite, trailed in four lengths back of Ultima Thule, with Back Bay, the only other starter, third.

Pickwick is a noted mud runner, and his record for the season places him in a class above the horses he was opposed by yesterday. Ultima Thule, on the other hand, had showed very little this season, and, in his last race in which he completed the course, was next to last against such horses as Panaman, Turf, Grundy, and Assume. On his last race Ultima Thule lost his rider after having been well supported at a fairly low price.

This son of Ultimus never left the issue much in doubt from the springing of the barrier. Kummer sent him to the front, while Pickwick did not seem able to get going and was last in the early runnings of the race. Davies got the favorite under way going through the back stretch and overtook Back Bay, but never got closer than within two lengths of the leader. By the time Ultima Thule had turned into the stretch it was evident that Pickwick was beaten. The horse could not make up the distance and was beginning to tire. Ultima Thule went on, to win by four lengths, while Pickwick took the place by three lengths from Back Bay.

Good Race by Sham On.

W. R. Coe's Shoot On captured the Balmoral Handicap for 2-year-olds and, under a good ride by Fairbrother, defeated Foreclosure and Ballybell, the favorite, among others. Shoot On ran a very good race, coming from behind shortly after the start to lead all the way to the finish. However, the colt pulled up lame, and may be taken out of training as the result of the breakdown.

There were only five starters for the Balmoral, and Ballybell was the post-time favorite, though Shoot On had been the choice earlier. Bright Gold, which carried the top weight of 120 pounds, was neglected on account of the fine coat, and Lady Wood had scarcely any support.

Shoot On dashed away from the barrier and caught Bright Gold in the first sixteenth of a mile. From there over the remainder of the six furlongs the son of Star Shoot set a very fast pace. Going around the turn, he had increased his lead to six lengths, and Fairbrother began to look back at the others and pulled up with the colt just before turning into the stretch. This slight breathing spell gave Foreclosure and Ballybell a chance to move up, but when Fairbrother was again ready to extend his mount Shoot On responded and plunged along to win by a length and a half. However, in the final furlong Foreclosure was running so strongly that Fairbrother took no chances and rode his mount hard to the finish line.

The day started with the victory of William Shields's Heavy Weapon in a five-and-a-half-furlong dash for maiden two-year-olds. The winner was a 4 to 1 shot and quite easily took the measure of Bridge Player and Thunderbird, which finished second and third respectively in the field of eleven starters. This was one of the largest fields that went to the post all day and there was considerable delay in getting them away from the barrier. However, the start was good and Thunderbird the choice, was away in the first flight.

Buxton's Game Effort.

Buxton rushed Heavy Weapon to the front, got the rail position and held it all the way. Thunderbird was soon trailing back in the middle of the pack but Myers got him up on the turn, and coming through the stretch the colt made a game effort. It was too long delayed, however, for Heavy Weapon had taken a lead of six lengths and won easily. Jockey Tryon was thrown from Dickie after the start and sustained a broken collarbone.

Five selling platers went to the post for the first of the distance events at a mile and a sixteenth. Richard Cook's Albert A. sprang the surprise here by scoring a ridiculously easy victory over Tenons Bon, Monomoy, Whimsy, and Bettie Bluff, all of which finished in the order named.

In with ten lengths to spare.

The other event at a mile and a sixteenth went to P. S. Randolph's Favour, which defeated Kemp Jane, Kilkenny, Little Nearer, and Boxer. Favour had to do quite a form-flipflop to gain this victory, but scored easily by four lengths.

This event marked the return to the races of Mrs. P. L. Bresler's Little Nearer, after an absence of a year. This great distance runner broke down last Autumn and was only recently put into training again. When he was at his best he was a popular favorite with local patrons, for he always had remarkable ability to come from behind to win his races.

Little Nearer was accustomed to being a city block back of the field in a long race only to come through the stretch and in galloping.

The aged gelding ran a very creditable race for his first effort, but the distance was too short for him, even though he had been ready for a real test. He trailed the field but came strongly in the stretch and was fourth. Favour went to the front while making the first turn, increased her lead through the back stretch and was never in danger. Kilkenny, the favorite, ran sluggishly, and was never able to get up to the leader.

The day's card closed with the debut of F. Best's Chief, which graduated from the maiden class last week on his second trip to the post. This was a six furlong sprint for three-year-olds and upward and brought out twelve starters, among which Chief was the choice. Kummer failed to get the Chief away quickly and he had to be hard ridden through the back stretch and around the turn to get up to the leaders. Once clear of interference, Kummer came through on the rail going into the stretch and got Chief into the lead for a few strides. But the earlier effort had taken so much out of him that he could not withstand the challenge of Pollu, which came on the outside. Pollu won by a length and a half, while Chief took the place from Hussar by the same distance.

Hoofbeats of the Racers.

King Plaudit, which George Odom had intended to ship to Kentucky this week to run in the $50,000 Latonia championship, is now out of that contest. King Plaudit was given a trial Saturday and pulled up so lame that he has been taken out of training. This was a keen disappointment to Odom, who believed King Plaudit would have made a good showing in the Latonia race. The colt will not be raced again this season.

Lawrence Waterbury is going to make an attempt to capture the rich Latonia purse with his Chasseur. This son of Light Brigade was worked in a trial over a distance of a mile and a half, and did so well that it was decided to ship him to Kentucky at once.

Many owners and trainers are already moving their racers to Empire City for the meeting which will begin there next Monday and there are indications that there will be plenty of horses on hand to provide good cards from day to day. Several shipments are reported to have arrived from Maryland and Kentucky, and it is understood that some of the high-class performers which have been after the big stakes on the other tracks will be back for some of the more important events at Yonkers.

Jockey Tryon, who was injured yesterday, when his mount, Dickie, fell in the first race, sustained an injury which will probably keep him out of the saddle for the balance of the metropolitan season. He sustained a fracture of the collarbone and was fortunate to escape more serious injury.

ENFILADE CAPTURES FEATURE AT LAUREL

Loftus's Clever Riding Helps His Mount to Beat Quietude in Six-Furlong Dash.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 6.—With the aid of a clever ride by Jockey Johnny Loftus, M. L. Schwartz's Enfilade managed to get her nose down in front in the handicap for fillies and mares which was the feature of today's racing. Enfilade gained the decision in this six-furlong sprint from Quietude by a nose, while Ophelia finished third, with Pigeon Wing the only other starter, trailing the field. Enfilade carried the top weight, 116 pounds, but handled the impost nicely and appeared to be again at her best.

Ophelia had all the early speed and was rushed to the front, but Loftus waited with Enfilade and was content to remain within a length of the leader all the way to the last sixteenth, where he caught Ophelia, but Quietude was rushed up at this point and came up to even terms with Enfilade. Loftus made an excellent finish, kept Enfilade at her top speed through the last hundred yards until Quietude finally flung a trifle and let the decision go to the Schwartz filly.

A. H. Dias's Orestes proved to be much the best in the closing event on the card, in which the son of Tracery defeated Carpet Sweeper by a length, the latter took the place from Ballet Dancer II. This race was at a mile and a sixteenth and Orestes was kept off the early pace until the last sixteenth, when he was rushed to the front and made a rush to win by nearly two lengths.

Ballet Dancer showed a flight of speed in the backstretch and opened up a few lengths, but Sande trailed along with Orestes and, reaching the head of the stretch, made his move. Orestes responded with fine courage and soon caught the leader. The two raced along for a few strides, when Orestes began to draw away and won handily. Ballet Dancer tired under the pace and, right at the finish, Carpet Sweeper, which had been off slowly, came through on the outside and took the place by a nose. Ballet Dancer had tired so badly that Witmer came within a head of getting third.

The two-year-old event of the day went to the Winnow Point Stable's Allivan, which gained a close decision over Tattle in six furlongs. Oceanna was third.

The summaries:

FIRST RACE.—For two-year-olds; claiming; six furlongs. Allivan, 102 pounds, (Wilds,) $11.10, $4.70, and $3.90, won; Tattle, 110, (Sande,) $6.80 and $3.90, second; Oceanna, 107, (Thurber,) $3.60, third. Time—1:14 2-5. FIFTH RACE.—For three-year-olds and upward; selling; one mile. Belario, 103 pounds, (Rowan,) $7.10, $3.80, and $2.80, won; Joseph M., (Murphy,) $6.10, (Gentry,) $3.80 and $2.80, second; Eddie McBride, 100, (Keogh,) $3.70 third. Time—1:41 2-5. Jack of Spades, Ina Kay, Lloyd George, Sweet Alyssum, Algrette, Colonel Valentine, Snow Queen, and Armament also ran.

SIXTH RACE.—For three-year-olds and upward; selling; one mile. Elected II., 107 pounds, (Stirling,) $12.20, $5.80, and $3.40, won; Rose Ash, 113, (Collins,) $5.80 and $3.30, second; Zouave, 110, (Carpenter,) $22.60, third. Time—1:39 4-5. Harwood II., Holiday, C. E. Miller, Bellringer, Capitol City, Jack Merry, Encore, and Water War also ran.

SEVENTH RACE.—For three-year-olds and upward; mile and a sixteenth. Orestes, 110 pounds, (Sande,) $5.50, and $2.50, won; Carpet Sweeper, 108, (Fator,) $2.80 and $2.60, second; Ballet Dancer II., 101, (Dyer,) $6.70, third. Time—1:46 2-5. War Twine, Miss Fisher, and Broom Peddler also ran.

Grand Circuit Races Postponed.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 6.—The Grand Circuit trots were called off here today because of heavy rain Saturday and last night. It has not been decided whether the two days' program will be consolidated or the closing date moved up a day.

COLUMBIA WORKS ON FORWARD PASS

Coach Dawson Uncovers Expert Tosser in Quigley—Drop Kickers Show Skill.

Forward passing became the principal item of work at the Columbia practice on South Field yesterday, at the start of the last week of drilling before the first formal game of the Fall, on Saturday against Vermont. Coach Dawson designated several of his backfield men to try out their throwing arms, and of special prominence was Ed Quigley, who last year played on Holy Cross.

Dawson appears to have considerable up his sleeve this year and is trotting out a hidden "find" every now and then for a turn on the varsity eleven. Yesterday it was Quigley, and the latter's high-class work makes him look like a dangerous man to the other candidates. Quigley had his chance at quarterback, but is also being groomed for a halfback berth. He ran the team well yesterday, and showed accuracy in heaving the forward passes.

Dawson gave attention to the defense yesterday, hauling his backs and ends aside and giving them continued work on tackling individual runners and breaking up the interference groups. Weinstein had a turn at right end, in place of Kennedy. The two Columbia field goal kickers, Captain Canapary and Scott, had a reserve section of the field for their own use. Both booted the pigskin between the posts for numerous drop kicks and later they made a score of placement kicks from as far back as the 35-yard line. Tom Farrell, the basketball star, who has been trying for a look on the eleven, gave up the work yesterday because of his studies.

On account of the quantity of good men in the backfield, Columbia's strongest point this year, Dawson will use at least two full sets against Vermont on Saturday. Canapary, who has been at quarterback, is also being pushed by Eccles and Quigley, and the Blue and White Captain may be shifted to a halfback position.

MR. LODGE AND HIS HOME FOLKS.

Senator HENRY CABOT LODGE has been an insistent advocate of amendments to the Treaty. As Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee he prepared and presented to the Senate a report recommending, with all the authority of that committee, an amendment to Article X. which, if adopted, would have withdrawn the United States from all effective participation in the work of the League of Nations. It was a destructive amendment, for it could not have been accepted by the allied nations; it would have left us alone, outside the League, under the necessity of making our own separate treaty with Germany. Mr. LODGE still advocates amendments. He declares his intention to vote for the Shantung amendment and for the Johnson amendment.

Mr. LODGE is the senior Senator from the State of Massachusetts, the leader of his party in that State, the leader of his party in the Senate of the United States. There is, therefore, a significance not to be ignored or lightly passed by in the resolution adopted by the Massachusetts Republican Convention, held in Tremont Temple on Saturday, declaring that "we therefore favor prompt ratification of the Treaty of Peace without amendment." There followed a demand for "unequivocal and effective reservations." That was inevitable. In the interest of party harmony it was necessary that there should be some alleviation of the terrible blow the convention administered to Senator LODGE in repudiating the policy he has consistently pursued in the Senate of seeking to destroy the Treaty by amendment. There had been a prolonged contest in the Committee of Resolutions, lasting through the afternoon and until after midnight, between a strong party sharing the views of ex-Senator MURRAY CRANE, favoring immediate ratification, and Mr. LODGE'S friends, who fought valiantly and successfully to save the Senator's face. But they lost the fight, the real fight, for Mr. LODGE'S course in the Senate could hardly have been more unequivocally condemned than in that part of the resolution which demands "the prompt ratification of the Treaty of Peace without amendment." The phrases of direct commendation of his course in the Senate ring cracked and hollow, after this express demand for ratification of the Treaty as it stands.

Any person having knowledge of how such things are arranged in committees of resolution can see what happened. The advocates of prompt ratification without amendment were too strong to be beaten down, they carried their point, they made Massachusetts Republicanism indorse their position, and then, to spare the Senator's feelings and to avoid the appearance of a split in the party, they inserted the matter concerning reservations. This resolution of the Massachusetts Republicans is not acceptance of a mere principle, a league of nations, some league of nations; it is a clear and unmistakable indorsement of this League of Nations, the covenant now before the Senate. "All are agreed," says the resolution, "that this nation should do every-"thing in its power to secure and "perpetuate world peace and to sub-"stitute forever for the horrors and "miseries occasioned by warfare a "just and permanent method of set-"tling with honor and certainty the "inevitable disputes between nations "and peoples." That is the whole purpose of the League of Nations. It is an affirmation that bears not the remotest resemblance to the multitude of speeches made in the Senate and elsewhere, many of them by Mr. LODGE, against the Treaty and the covenant altogether, in support of deadly amendments.

Compare this resolution with Senator LODGE'S report from the Foreign Relations Committee. The Republicans of Massachusetts in their convention spoke with the voice of command to their Senator. They told him and told the country that they wanted the Treaty ratified, now. They stamped out and destroyed that false and deluding pretense of the Treaty's opponents, that while the West may favor ratification — about that there can no longer be the slightest doubt in anybody's mind—the East was cold to the Treaty and the covenant, was opposed to it. New England and the East are a part of the nation, they share the nation's hope that through the union of all civilized peoples in the League of Nations the waste and the bloodshed and the calamities of war may be prevented.

The reservations favored in the resolution are of insignificant moment compared with the major pronouncement for ratification without amendment. They repeat what is already in the Treaty, they propose safeguards for rights and sovereignties no treaty could have impaired and which are assured against all invasion by the language of the instrument itself. Reservations, in fact, are the last ditch of the obstructionists. Some thirty-five of their amendments have already been voted down nearly 2 to 1 in the Senate. There is only a pretense of further contest over the Shantung amendment and the amendment relating to the votes of the British Dominions in the Assembly. They are doomed like the others. Reservations are the utmost the obstructionists now hope for, and the impressive admonitions they have had as to the sentiment of the country have so cooled their earlier ardor that they will venture upon no declarations of that character which would call for a resubmission of the Treaty and the covenant to the Peace Council or would run the risk of rejection by other nations.

FOR INDEPENDENT JUDGES.

From the appeal of the Finance Committee of the General Committee of the Bar Association for funds to help the campaign for re-election of Justice NEWBURGER of the Supreme Court and Judge RICHARD H. SMITH of the City Court, we take this admirable expression of the transcendent moral issue of that campaign:

> The principle that the public is entitled to have the benefit of the continuous service of just and upright Judges, irrespective of party, has long been recognized in this community. Notwithstanding the request of every Bar Association of the city and the editorial recommendations of the press, Mr. Justice NEWBURGER, after twenty-eight years of honorable and efficient service, was refused the renomination by those in control of the local Democratic organization. Judge SMITH, after ten years of industrious and impartial effort in the City Court, which showed him well qualified for the office he now fills, was likewise refused a renomination. If rights are to be guaranteed by the courts, which afford the only fundamental security of the citizen, the bench should not be made an instrument of party reward, and courts should be free from the meddling of political leaders. * * * the city must emphatically repudiate this attempt to interfere with the independence of the bench.

Shall the courts be independent? That is the issue. Everybody in New York and the Bronx who wants that issue settled right will register this week. Everybody who can afford it should send his campaign contribution to CHARLES A. PERKINS, Treasurer, 61 Broadway.

KEEP THEM OUT.

From the point of view of the Russian Bolsheviki the United States is the land of opportunity in more senses than one. The fact that TROTZKY found an asylum here appeals to their imagination. It probably accounts for the swarming of these enemies of society in ports of Europe and Asia to await revocation of the war passport requirement, which, unless continued by supplementary legislation, would be announced soon after ratification of the Peace Treaty. A proposal to keep the gates shut against these "undesirables" has been made by Representative ALBERT JOHNSON to the Foreign Affairs Committee. Pending a new immigration bill with precautionary restrictions, Mr. JOHNSON would have the passport law re-enacted. He says:

> At this moment, except the war passport law, we have nothing but the literacy test and a few clauses about anarchy and poverty to keep these radicals out. Bolsheviki are assembled begging for passports at London, Paris, The Hague, Madrid, Rome, Constantinople, Stockholm, Christiania, Copenhagen, Bern, Belgrade, Tokio, Prague, Vladivostok, and Archangel. Certain European countries are trying to unload these undesirables on us.

It would not be difficult to make a preliminary list of these countries. Furthermore, friendly nations as time passed would be tempted to get rid of their Bolsheviki if the excluding clauses of the immigration law were not stiffened. For the present the danger inheres to some extent in the wartime passport regulations, and in any interval between their revocation and amendment of the immigration law there would undoubtedly be a descent of the revolutionaries upon our shores. Representative JOHNSON sounds a warning about Japan, which, by the way, has its own menace of Bolshevism. He says that at Yokohama there are assembled radical aliens from many nationalities, "especially Russians, most of whom "are fugitives from military service "both in their own country and in "the United States, and many of "whom have lived in the United "States for various terms of years "without attempting to become citizens and are now awaiting an opportunity to return."

Here in America we have our own extremists, anarchists, government wreckers in theory and design. They have taken courage from the successes of their kind in Russia, and there is no doubt that a campaign to bring about revolution by a general strike to include the police has been inspired by the Bolshevist leaders in Russia, who have their confederates in this country. The United States would have a terrible problem to deal with if the anarchists now at European and Asiatic ports were allowed to land, or found their way here through Canada and Mexico. The State and Labor Departments have given information to Congress that should be acted upon promptly. A bill, plain and brief, providing that the war passport regulations shall be continued temporarily after ratification of the Peace Treaty could be passed without much debate, and with no delay the present immigration law could be taken up for methodical amendment.

LAW AND CREDIT.

ELIHU ROOT and others hardly less distinguished think that CHARLES E. HUGHES is wrong in his opinion that Congress lacks the power to regulate the earnings of railways in excess of a fixed return from reasonable rates. The basis of their dissenting opinion is that the Cummins proposal does not fix rates for individual shipments, or carriers, but for the total service of a group of carriers. That leaves the total earnings of the group open for reconsideration and distribution on the basis of realized results, according to the accuracy of the guess in the tentative schedules. The proposed Cummins method is recommended as an "absolutely accurate" substitute for the "prophetic and uncertain" method of enacting precise rates in the manner exemplified by the practice of the Interstate Commerce Commission. The shippers' right to have a rate fixed for each shipment by each carrier is said to be a "mere common law right," subject to modification by Congress under its right to regulate commerce in any reasonable manner, and any manner is reasonable which is necessary to keep the railways in sufficient vigor to enable them to maintain competition among themselves.

It is as much the right of doctors of law to disagree as of doctors of medicine. When doctors of the law of such authority disagree it is the part of prudence to leave the last guess to the Supreme Court. The disagreement suffices to make it sure that the constitutional power to enact the Cummins rate law will be unsettled for some years. The creation of a rate zone of that twilight sort is undesirable, and the more especially so since even the validation of the Cummins method would settle only the law, and would leave unsettled the even more peremptory question of the credit of the individual railways if the group rates are adequate. The necessities of the railways are a matter of today, and should be settled today, as each day's meals must be eaten on the day. The defense of the Cummins plan proposes an interval of hunger to be satisfied by an accumulation of meals. If the law imposes that upon the railways, there is no method of imposing it upon the money market. That will be decided not by the lawyers or the Supreme Court but by the opinions of those who have the resources which the railways need.

There is a perfect illustration of that in the working of the Federal rate law and the State public utility nickel fare laws. There is no dispute about the legality of the Interstate Commerce law, nor about its effect on the credit of the railways. There was no dispute about the State public utility fare laws until their results became manifest. It was put into testimony before the President's commission that "sixty-two electric rail-"ways in the United States with "5,912 miles of track already were "in the hands of receivers; sixty "railways with 703 miles of track "had been dismantled and junked, "and thirty-eight railways had been "forced to abandon 257 miles of "track." Those facts are the basis of the reconsideration of the nickel fare laws in many cities. There is need of a similar change of sentiment among the Federal rate regulators. But the Federal rates must be regulated upward if railway credit is to be restored. That result is hopeless of realization by any new method about which lawyers disagree, and investors agree in disapproval.

THE ONLY WAY.

From the United States Council of National Defense, composed of the Secretaries of War, Navy, Interior, Agriculture, Commerce, and Labor, comes a statement in regard to the high cost of living that contains the marrow of the whole problem. "The "nation's productive powers have not "been fully utilized since the armi-"stice." Too few goods, especially too few of the necessaries of life, have been produced. The high cost of living has been caused by "war waste"; that is, in large part, the productive energies of the nation and of other nations have been devoted to producing war material; and by a great inflation of money and credit. We live by goods, and not money; and to decrease the cost of living the primary, precedent, and only effectual remedy is to increase production, increase the amount of goods.

What the council says about profiteering, the enforcement of existing, and the enactment of new, laws to check and punish it is well said; but, after all, profiteering and hoarding are incidental. The essential thing is to work, to produce, to work as hard as we can, and to produce as much as we can. Saving is important. The increase of production, accompanied with rigid economy and saving, was strongly advocated by Mr. WILSON in his address to the country on Aug. 25. "Produce and save," says the Federal Reserve Bulletin for this month. But saving, too, is largely dependent upon increased production. That $25,000,000 lost in wages by strikes in the United States this year, according to the statistics of the Labor Department, is all lost, as is the $100,000,000 worth of goods not produced because of those strikes.

It is not by clamoring for higher wages for a shorter and less productive day's work; it is not by the success of that clamor, wherever it is successful, that any real gain is made. On the contrary, that is the way to add to the increase in the cost of living. In the United States and Great Britain there have been tremendous activity and strife about the distribution of the profits of production. Labor seeks fatter dividends. A political economist of the first rank, Dr. King of the University of Wisconsin, thinks it "im-"probable that, with our present na-"tional productive power, any fea-"sible system of distribution could "increase the average wage earner's "income in purchasing power by "more than one-fourth, and this is "an extreme rather than a moderate "estimate"; and this addition is only theoretically possible, since, to make it, interest, rents, profits, would have to be confiscated, and there would be no fund from which increases and improvements of industrial plants could be made, save the doubtful savings from increased wages.

"The grim fact remains," continues Dr. KING, "that the quantity of goods "turned out absolutely limits the in-"come of labor, and that no reform "will bring universal prosperity which "is not based fundamentally upon in-"creasing the national income * * * "Nature refuses to yield her bounty "except in return for effort expended. "Demands for higher wages have "never yet unlocked her store-"houses."

"Work, produce, co-operate, save." That is the formula of the Council of National Defense. The preliminary, essential, and vital part of the process, to which all the other parts are ancillary, upon which all the other parts depend, is hard work and the production of more goods. American labor, says the Council of Defense, must "attain maximum production, "and maintain an uninterrupted dis-"tribution of goods, if labor itself is "not to suffer from further rises in "the cost of living."

THE BLESSED ISLES.

If Mr. VILHJALMUR STEFANSSON were interested in a line of steamers plying from New York to Spitzbergen he could not recommend that arctic archipelago more enthusiastically. Besides the excellent and extensive deposits of coal which have already caused the casting of covetous eyes on the islands, he says there is "an "almost unlimited amount of iron ore "of the highest grade." Here are present the materials which may make Spitzbergen the seat of the world's greatest steel mills. Climate? No worse than that of Winnipeg, Mr. STEFANSSON assures us; and people live in Winnipeg; nay, more, they even get up sufficient energy to have general strikes, and to repress them.

In ancient days the bears of Spitzbergen annoyed the Dutch navigators by their bellicose disposition and their habit of attacking in massed battalions; but no doubt the bears are long since dead. Anyway, the Dutch navigators had troubles on Manhattan Island which are not experienced by its inhabitants of today, though they found the early occupants somewhat more generous in real estate transactions than are their successors. Spitzbergen can be reached by ships for six months of the year; the night frost ceases in June and does not come again till September, and in the Summer life is ideal to those who do not mind a little snowstorm now and then in July and August.

At the arctic night Mr. STEFANSSON sniffs with the contemptuous familiarity of the hardened explorer. It is just like any other night, he says; longer, of course, but there is the same old moon, and with plenty of coal there is no reason why the streets of Spitzbergen could not be lighted "until they resemble Broadway." Emigrants from Pittsburgh, which O. HENRY called the City of Diurnal Night, ought to find Spitzbergen congenial, and so should Broadwayites who boast that they don't begin to come to life till the electric lights are on.

But the rose has its thorns; Spitzbergen will have, must have, "pol-"tics. At present the sovereignty is somewhat obscure; perhaps there is no sovereignty save that of such squatters as may settle around the steel mills. This fact alone should create a rush of immigrants; Spitzbergen can exercise self-determination and become a new State, a nation with no war taxes, no inflated paper currency, no Eighteenth Amendment. Here is a chance to create the earthly paradise somewhere on the frontiers of Symmes's Hole, in a region where certain commentators have located the garden home of our first parents. But this new Eden can hardly expect to be free from prophets of discord; as soon as the steel mills are running Mr. WILLIAM Z. FOSTER will probably migrate to the arctic to renew the campaign which is going so unprofitably here, and with Russia so close it is hardly to be expected that Bolshevist agitators will overlook the chance to develop their theories in a new country where there are fewer complications. We may expect soon to see Spitzbergen a country of spouting coke ovens and flaring steel mills and blazing white ways, where the ball games start at 2 A. M. under the nocturnal sun and are not called on account of snow more than once a week; a land like the Texas oil fields, where every prospectus pleases and only man is vile.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Teacher Enters the Army.

Perhaps it was for the purpose of suggesting to certain very modern educationalists a possibility they are fond of ignoring that, under the title of "The Professor in the Army," GEORGE BOAS told in Sunday's TIMES the particularly interesting story of what a young man who held when this country entered the war a university position as instructor in rhetoric was able to do—and did—as a soldier. Possibly, again, that was not the purpose of Mr. BOAS, for he made quite clear his dissatisfaction with the sort of teaching the young instructor had done and his far from complete satisfaction with university education and educators, taken by and large.

However that may be, the article, if anything can be deduced from a single case, proved that what is called "general education," as distinguished from specialised or vocational training, does produce men who, when need or opportunity arises, can do efficiently the thoroughly "practical" things commonly supposed, and often asserted, to be as far beyond their powers as out of their experience.

For the hero of the narrative leaped straight from his classroom into the army, and, after a brief course in camp, went to France as a Lieutenant. There he did about all the things that can be done by anybody of that grade for and with soldiers. His first task was the establishment of military kitchens on an extensive scale—than which nothing else could be much more different from teaching rhetoric—and this he accomplished so well that he was assigned in quick succession to a long line of other jobs equally unrelated to his professional activities at home. Mr. BOAS vouches for the fact that all of them were as well performed as the first.

The question therefore arises, Was the young officer's competence gained after he entered the army, or was it somehow the result of his seemingly irrelevant training in "Latin, Greek, and mathematics," all so hated by the vocationalists?

Conclusions, Logical and Other.

Nothing could be more rash than to conclude from the brilliant military career of the rhetoric instructor that vocational training is unnecessary, or that a "classical course" will fit anybody for any position. A strict logician would say that the story only proved that cultural training does not unfit everybody for the practical work of life, including that of providing for the needs of an army.

It does prove a little more than that, however. At any rate, it hints where searchers for men with executive ability can look with a good chance of getting them, and that is among the men who entered the army well educated in the old sense of that word, and while there demonstrated their ability to perform the tasks assigned to them. The better that is realized, the less trouble will the young officers recently discharged in such large numbers have in finding employment worthy of their enlarged ideas and capacities, and so will one phase of the unemployment problem be solved. For these young men are not going back to the jobs they had before the war—that of teaching rhetoric, for instance, to boys who take that course offener than not because in queer student language it is called "easy."

Incidentally, one statement in the article under consideration is deserving of special attention. It is this: "If we are to have universal military service, it must be for adequate military reasons and not for educational reasons." That seems to mean that education cannot be attained as a mere by-product from another activity.

Explaining Police Inefficiency.

Some New Yorkers are not willing to agree with the Citizens' Union at any time, a still larger group disagree with it occasionally, and probably none accepts its statements at all times. The latest pronouncement of the Union as to matters municipal is that "the appalling number of highway robberies, burglaries, and homicides which have been afflicting this city during recent months has proved that the Police Department as now administered is demoralized and inefficient."

That is a harsh judgment, and harsher still is the further statement that the demoralization and inefficiency of the department are due not to any deterioration of its rank and file, but to their conviction that "pull" is stronger than meritorious service where the present administration of the force is concerned. But harsh as these assertions are, the inclination to call them too harsh weakens and fades as one remembers that there has been of late what it is not exaggeration to call "an appalling number" of the crimes mentioned, and even the warmest friends of "this administration" cannot contend—not truthfully, at least—that the police force has been efficient in the most important of its functions—that of preventing criminality. Something is the way of apprehending criminals it has done, but even in this easier phase of its work achievement has been far from brilliant.

It is quite useless for Mayor HYLAN and Commissioner RICHARDS to deny the existence of a "crime wave" here and now. If there is not one, their definition of the term differs so far from that of people less deeply interested in defending the administration and its administrators that discussion of it with them can lead to nothing except ill temper.

As evidencing the power of "pull" the Citizens' Union brings up the many restorations to the force of men dismissed for cause in other administrations. Such restorations have not been numerous enough to account, in themselves, for deterioration of the department. They are more significant, however, as indicative of a general policy.

An Awful Wrong Inflicted.

JAMES H. MAURER, the frequently audible President of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor, has a new grievance against the Government—a grievance so bitter that none can hear it without reaching for a handkerchief with which to wipe away the sympathetic tear. These several times of late has Mr. MAURER decided to make a European tour, and as often the despots in Washington have refused to give him a passport. The last time this occurred he went to Washington to find out why his desire to travel could not be gratified. And what did he find there? "A stack of my speeches several inches high!"

For stark horror it would be hard to equal that statement. The departmental authorities, it seems, have been keeping tab on Mr. MAURER—filing away his speeches for future reference. Is it any wonder that Mr. MAURER has come to the conclusion that "the Romanoffs and Hohenzollerns, with all their spies and agents, were mere pikers to what we have in this country"?

Speeches in a free country are not kept on file. They are things for immediate use, and then they should be forgotten. To bring them out as a reason for refusing to let a man do what he wants to do is worse than preposterous—it is truly outrageous, besides being inconvenient.

BESSARABIA'S PLIGHT

And Rumania's Forgotten Pledge—Genesis of the Vote of Union.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. C. CHODARTZ'S letter in your issue of Sept. 20 calls the appeal to President Wilson of Mr. KRUPENSKY, former President of the Bessarabian Provincial Zemstvo, and A. C. SCHMIDT, former Mayor of Kishineff, Bessarabian delegates to the Peace Conference in Paris, a "bold falsification" of the existing conditions in Bessarabia. In his letter, however, the author does not endeavor to prove the untruthfulness of the facts alleged in the above mentioned appeal. He only states that neither Mr. Krupensky nor Mr. Schmidt is entitled to speak in the name of the Rumanians, and forgets they never preceded to do so. They are spokesmen of the Bessarabian population, which does not want to become Rumanian.

Mr. Chodartzu asserts on account of mendacious Russian Government statistics that there are 70 per cent. Moldavians in Bessarabia, whereas official figures taken from the last census show that only in four of the total of eight districts the Moldavians were in the majority. Over the whole territory of Bessarabia the Moldavian population is less than 50 per cent.

Further in his letter Mr. Chodartzu speaks of the "Sfatul Tseri" (the Bessarabian Parliament) as being the real representative body of Bessarabia, although the origin and history of this organization are well known. When revolutionary councils of soldiers and workmen spread all over Russia, Moldavian deserters did the same in Bessarabia. There assembled a congress of soldiers which elected a special body, the "Sfatul Tseri." This organization was then utilized by the Russianas for their own ends, and, finally, after the invasion of Bessarabia by Rumanian troops and after many acts of oppression and even fusillades of protesting members of this very "Sfatul Tseri," it voted the union of Bessarabia to Rumania.

Forty-six members—with eight of them opposing the vote—out of 162 expressed the "will of the Bessarabian population," and this vote is meant to decide the fate of Bessarabia! If such is the opinion of Mr. Chodartzu, it certainly has not been shared by the Peace Conference in Paris. The fair claim of the Bessarabian population to have their ultimate fate decided by a plebiscite seemed only right to every impartial judge of the situation. But the Rumanian delegates evidently did not like the idea of a plebiscite, and certainly showed great reluctance to any proposal to this effect. These facts should be known by Mr. Chodartzu.

One question before finishing this letter. Does Mr. Chodartzu consider his country obliged to fulfill a solemn pledge of Rumanian officials made in January and February, 1918, confirmed by the allied diplomatic representatives at Budapest, that the Rumanian troops had come into Bessarabia with the sole object of restoring order and that the troops would be withdrawn from the province as soon as this aim was attained? This is a formal obligation toward Russia, the country which in a century's lasting struggle at the price of the blood of her best sons has freed Rumania among other Christian nations of the Balkans from Turkish oppression.

Up-State Telephone Rates.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Dispatches published in New York papers state that the New York Telephone Company is about to increase its rates throughout New York State outside of New York City, giving as an excuse, and quoting Mr. C. Arthur Spaulding, an official of the company, that the advance is made necessary by the reduction of 8 per cent. which has been put into effect in New York City rates.

The reduction in New York City rates was, as I understand it, forced from the company as a result of the exposure of extortionate profits. If this New York City reduction was finally authorized as has been stated, as a matter of justice to the people, where is the justice in seeking to restore extortionate profits by gouging subscribers throughout the State?

Ratify It First.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Why not unqualified ratification of the treaty, to be followed by a resolution of Congress expressing the wish that certain changes of language or of substance be made in the treaty at the earliest practicable moment?

AUTUMN IN THE WOODS.

Autumn walks in the woods,
And on oak and maple trees
Begins with cunning hand to weave
Her gorgeous tapestries—
Patterns of flaming gold and red
Blaze 'gainst the skyline overhead!

Autumn breathes through the woods
These nights when the world is still,
While the cheery cricket-harpers play
Their music sweet and shrill.
And where she has passed, blue asters gay
And goldenrod point out her way!

Autumn broods over the woods,
And over my heart as well,
(For the Winter stretches far ahead,
And one's future—who can tell?)
But ever the Fall's proud pageantry
Brings a message of courage fresh to me!

PARIS SEES AMERICAN ART.

Exhibition at the Luxembourg Museum Opened by Poincare.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—President Poincaré inaugurated this morning the exhibition of art by American painters and sculptors at the Luxembourg Museum. He was accompanied by M. Lafferre, Minister of Public Education and Fine Arts; American Ambassador Hugh C. Wallace, Major-Gen. Tasker H. Bliss, Henry White, and Paul Leon, Director of the Division of Fine Arts.

The exhibition was arranged at the invitation of the French Government, which expressed a desire to place on view at the Luxembourg an exhibition of American art of the present day. It includes 126 paintings sent from America, twenty painted by American artists in Paris, and fifty paintings by Americans, owned by the museum itself. These occupy six rooms of the museum, while the entrance hall is filled with busts of American celebrities, including Generals Pershing and Bliss.

Colonel Knowlton Mixer of the American Red Cross, presented the pictures on behalf of the American Committee which organized the exhibition, and President Poincaré accepted the exhibition.

Léonce Bénédite, curator of the Luxembourg Museum, said:

"We return to the Americans the courtesy they have shown us in accepting our hospitality. We have already a good recollection of American pictures, but we miss have more. This is the first American exhibition at the Luxembourg, but I hope that it will be followed by others and later we may be able to offer proper prizes to American artists at such exhibitions."

Ambassador Wallace informally expressed thanks for the honor shown to American artists. A cablegram was read from William A. J. Coffin, President of the American Committee, expressing confidence that the exhibition would be of great value in binding more closely the ties uniting the two peoples.

An allegorical picture by Cameron Burnside, a duplicate of one in America, was presented to the museum in connection with the exhibition.

FRANCE TO PAY IN BONDS.

Bill in Chamber to Finance $400,000,000 Purchase from America.

PARIS, Oct. 5.—The contract for the purchase of American Army supplies in France has moved the Budget Committee of the Chamber of Deputies to protest that Parliament's financial rights have been disregarded, as the expenditure of $400,000,000 has been agreed to without previous Parliamentary authorization.

As a result of the protest, the Government has introduced a bill for the ratification of the contract, specifying that the $400,000,000 shall be represented by bonds dated Aug. 1, 1919, and bearing interest at 5 per cent. from August, 1920. They would mature in ten years, interest and capital being payable in dollars.

The Budget Committee has approved the bill, but demands that the first interest coupon be paid in February, 1921, so that the budgets of 1919 and 1920 will not be called upon to support any burden. The committee also asks that the interest and capital be paid in dollars at the rate of exchange on the day of payment.

GRANT 7-HOUR DAY IN MINES

Spanish Premier Aims to Extend System by Royal Decree.

MADRID, Oct. 5.—Spanish miners in Asturias have won their fight for the institution of a seven-hour day. The deputation of miners from the Province of Oviedo, which came to Madrid to wait upon Premier Toca and present demands, was informed by the Premier that the mine owners had granted the seven-hour day for work in the galleries and an eight-hour day outside.

The Premier will consult with the mine owners in the remainder of the country and if all agree an official decree will be issued, establishing these hours by royal order. The head of the miners' deputation promised that the strike would end upon publication of the royal decree. The Premier proposes to call a conference of mine owners and workmen to settle all differences.

The strike movement in Spain in general shows a great decrease, according to a summary of the reports from different parts of the country, and tranquillity prevails. The Government has persuaded the street car men of Madrid to continue working.

TAKE RAISULI STRONGHOLDS

Spanish Losses in Campaign Only 1 Killed and 29 Wounded.

MADRID, Oct. 6.—All objectives have been gained in the successful operations against Raisuli in Morocco, according to an official review of the campaign just issued by Premier Toca.

The total Spanish losses in the campaign in which Raisuli's principal strongholds were Tormoche were only one killed and twenty-nine wounded. Dispatches from Algeciras state that after the capture of the strongholds Fondak and Ain Medida Raisuli is now confined to the Djorala Heights.

BRITAIN'S WOMEN SMOKERS

Had Large Share in Doubling Cigarette Sales Since 1914.

LONDON, Sept. 27. (correspondence of the Associated Press.)—Cigarette smoking is on the increase in England, especially among women, according to experts. One estimate places the demand for cigarettes at twice what it was before the war.

"Women smoke a good deal more than formerly," said one tobacco man, "and some of them can't even hang out the washing unless they have a cigarette in their mouths."

Surrender in Choluteca—New Government Guarantees Free Vote.

SAN SALVADOR, Oct. 5.—General Maximo Rosales, the Liberal leader in Guatemala, reports from Comayagua, near Tegucigalpa, that the adherents of Don Alberto Membreno, who is leading a revolution in Honduras, have surrendered unconditionally in the province of Choluteca. He says that effective measures have been taken to cope with the revolution throughout the country.

The new Government has guaranteed freedom of the vote at the coming Presidential election.

SEES SPAIN A REPUBLIC.

Party Leader Predicts a Change When Peace Is Concluded.

SARAGOSSA, Spain, Oct. 5.—Alejandro Lerroux, leader of the Republican party in Spain, declared at a meeting here that the signature of the treaty of peace would bring about a change in the régime in Spain, which would become a republic.

He declared that in the event of a revolution he would check any excesses.

Venizelos Thanks Americans.

SALONIKI, Oct. 6.—Premier Venizelos has addressed to Professor Jean C. Granberry, Professor of Sociology at the University of Texas, Director of the Greco-American Y. M. C. A. home recently opened at Saloniki, a letter warmly thanking him and his colleague, Donald Williams, for the brilliant and very useful services rendered to the Greek Army. The Premier expressed the wish that complete success might crown their work.

GIFTS TO WILSONS LISTED BY TUMULTY

Acting by Direction of the President, the Secretary Makes an Itemized Statement.

FEW OF MUCH IMPORTANCE

President Consulted Lansing on List He Should Ask Congress for Leave to Retain.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Acting upon the "express direction of the President and Mrs. Wilson," Secretary Tumulty today made public a statement containing an itemized list of presents received by them while in Europe.

Mr. Tumulty's statement follows:

"While on his Western trip the President's attention was called to the resolution of Representative Rodenberg of Illinois and the statements of Senators Penrose and Sherman in regard to gifts received by the President and Mrs. Wilson while they were in Europe.

"Senator Sherman indicated the basis of the various stories touching this matter when he said that 'cloakroom gossip' had the values of these gifts at half a million dollars. Senator Penrose said he had been informed that the Presidential party 'brought back to this country presents from crowned heads and foreign governments amounting to several million dollars.'

"Here are the facts:

"Outside of a considerable number of small gifts, such as books, walking sticks, an old silver dish found in the ruins of Louvain, war souvenirs made by soldiers or out of war material, and numerous medals struck off in his honor, the following are the only important gifts received by the President in Europe:

IN ENGLAND:

Photograph of the King and Queen of England.

A book relating to Windsor Castle.

The freedom of the city of London, presented in a gold casket by the Lord Mayor at Guildhall.

IN ITALY:

A figure of "Italia Victoria" sent to the train at Genoa, either by a school or by the citizens of Genoa.

A set of books from the citizens of Genoa.

A mosaic presented by the Pope.

IN FRANCE:

A bronze figure presented by a body of students.

The President also received numerous honorary degrees from nearly all the countries of Europe, and many resolutions of respect and gratitude.

"Knowing that there is a constitutional inhibition against the President receiving gifts from foreign rulers or States, the President, after consulting the Secretary of State, prepared a list of the presents he intended to keep, and the permission of Congress to retain just before he started on his Western trip.

"In addition to the gifts received by the President, the following tokens were presented to Mrs. Wilson while she was in Europe:

IN FRANCE:

A pin of Parisian enamel with imitation diamond chips, presented in Hotel de Ville by the City of Paris.

Linen hand-embroidered lunch set (small cloth and dozen napkins) in case, presented through Madame Poincaré and Madame Pichon, by the working women of France.

IN BELGIUM:

A small medal by Cardinal Mercier.

A Belgian lace table cover, presented by the Queen.

A complete file of the 'Libre Belgique,' (the paper published during the German occupation), presented by the King, in leather folder.

IN ITALY:

A reproduction of the "Wolf and Romulus and Remus" in gold, presented by the people through private subscription.

A piece of lace in leather case, presented by Signor Orlando in behalf of his colleagues.

A small reproduction in silver of a pitcher found in the ruins of Pompeii.

"In making this statement I am acting upon the express direction of President and Mrs. Wilson."

JEWISH DRIVE IN JERSEY.

Plans Announced for Raising $1,000,000 for Foreign Relief.

Plans of the American Jewish Relief Committee's campaign in New Jersey for funds for the destitute abroad were announced. New Jersey's quota is $1,000,000 and the drive will be made along non-sectarian lines, in keeping with the non-racial, non-sectarian policy of Jewish relief in the distribution of food, medicine and supplies abroad.

Felix Fuld of Newark is State Chairman. The State has been divided into ten districts, each in charge of a director who co-operates with the county chairmen. The campaign will begin Oct. 20 and will extend through Oct. 28. Some of the county quotas announced are: Essex, $403,000; Bergen, $40,000; Hudson, $150,

MRS. A. D. C. ARNOLD WINS FINAL DECREE

Based Petition on Ground That Her Husband's Nevada Divorce Was Invalid.

GETS HER TWO CHILDREN

Their Wedding in 1911 an Elopement—Husband Later Married Miss Katharine Weeks.

Announcement was made yesterday that Supreme Court Justice Guy had signed a final decree of divorce for Mrs. Evelina Nicholas Arnold of Babylon, L. I., from A. Duncan Cameron Arnold of New York and Babylon, and adopted son of Mrs. William Arnold. The fact that the Arnolds had separated and that Mr. Arnold established a residence in Nevada and got a divorce there last year was not known until Mr. Arnold and Miss Katharine Weeks, socially prominent in Babylon, were married in April, 1918, by a Justice of the Peace in Jersey City. They then admitted the marriage but refused to discuss the details.

Mrs. Evelina H. Arnold filed suit for divorce from her husband in New York County shortly afterward, on the ground that the Nevada decree divorcing her was not valid. The suit was defended and was heard secretly a few months ago by a referee who reported in favor of the plaintiff. The report was confirmed in the Supreme Court and an interlocutory decree granted. In signing a final decree for Mrs. Arnold Justice Guy gave her the custody of her children, Alexander Duncan Cameron and Evelyn Stuart Arnold.

The marriage of the first Mrs. Arnold to Alexander Duncan Cameron Arnold was the result of an automobile elopement on July 7, 1911. He was 20 years of age and she was 16. She is the daughter of Mrs. Alice M. Hollins Nicholas and was a childhood playmate of young Arnold. They tried to induce their parents to consent to their marriage, and being unable to obtain parental sanction because of their youth they drove to the city with two friends and were married at the Church of St. Catherine of Sienna. They notified their parents by telephone and then went on their wedding trip.

BOYS BEGIN MILITARY DRILL.

2,500 Out for Instruction First Day Under Slater Act.

Thousands of boys between the ages of 16 and 18 throughout the State will be executing "squads right," "to the rear, march," and other military steps as a result of the Slater bill for compulsory military training, which went into effect yesterday. Approximately 2,500 high school boys drilled yesterday for the first time in armories in various parts of the city under instructors of the New York State Military Training Commission, for which the Slater act provided.

Major J. Wesley Lyon, supervising director of the New York zone, estimated that 100,000 boys in the two zones in which the city lies would be affected by the law. He said only boys attending school would be called this week. The State Printing Department failed to get out the blank forms which are to be sent to eligible boys now employed or out of school.

"We wish to correct the impression that these boys are being trained for war," Major Lyon said. "This is not the purpose of our work. We believe the training will make the boys better citizens. It is the best kind of Americanization. Thirty minutes of the hour and a half is devoted to games."

Major Lyon added that the act required weekly attendance at drill.

Dr. William Gaynor States.

Dr. William Garnor States, formerly an adjunct professor of dermatology at the Polyclinic Hospital, died yesterday after a lingering illness at his home, 260 West Fifty-seventh Street. Born in San Francisco in 1861, he went to France for his early education, but returned here and was graduated from New York University in 1881. He was an accomplished linguist and translated several important French and German books into English. He was a fellow of the Academy of Medicine and a member of the American Medical Association.

FOUR-SHIP SERVICE ON AMERICAN LINE

Philadelphia, St. Paul, St. Louis, and New York Will Run on European Route.

SUBSIDY ACTION AWAITED

International Mercantile Marine's Plans Depend on the Government's Policy.

The International Mercantile Marine Company is preparing to resume its American Line service to Southampton via Plymouth and Cherbourg with the four steamships, Philadelphia, New York, St. Louis, and St. Paul, which did such good work throughout the war carrying soldiers, supplies, and ammunition to France and England.

These vessels will maintain a regular weekly mail and passenger service, it was said yesterday, until either some of the former German steamships have been handed over by the United States Shipping Board for operation or new liners have been constructed. No ships have been laid down so far in the United States for the International Mercantile Marine Company, and nothing will be done in the way of construction until the Government has definitely announced its shipping policy.

The bill was passed in Washington nearly two years ago for an $8 a mile mail subsidy for twenty-five-knot ships and $10 a mile for thirty-knot ships, but these vessels could not be built by any private corporation without the financial assistance of the Government on similar lines to the aid given by the British Government to the Cunard Line for the Mauretania and Lusitania. Officials of the International Mercantile Marine said yesterday that such vessels of great speed and about 35,000 gross tonnage could be operated on the mail subsidy of $8 or $10 per mile for the round voyage, with the passenger receipts and express parcels service.

The liners Finland and Kroonland are being turned into oil burners at Thetjen & Lang's yard in Hoboken and recommissioned for the Red Star Line passenger service between New York and Antwerp, via Dover, which will be resumed about the beginning of 1920. The Northland is also being fitted out for that trade and the Lapland, now under the White Star flag, will go back to the Red Star Line early in the Summer.

The liners Manchuria, Mongolia, and Minnesota are also being converted into oil burners and thoroughly overhauled to be ready for the passenger trade from New York to Hamburg, Buenos Aires, or London, according to the demands of the traffic, it is said.

The International Mercantile Marine Company will develop new lines to the Mediterranean, the Continent of Europe, and Egypt as fast as vessels can be built or purchased. Offices will be opened shortly in Germany, followed by an office in Buenos Aires. All these will be operated by Americans sent from New York.

The question of reopening the Atlantic Transport Line passenger service between New York and London has been under consideration, but nothing will be done for the present.

HIGH OCEAN RATES AHEAD.

P. E. Curry Expects Them in England for Two Years.

Philip E. Curry, General Manager of the International Mercantile Marine Company at Southampton, England, who arrived in New York yesterday to consult the Directors, said the prospect for high freight rates in England was good for at least two years, and optimistic shipping men there believed it would last for four years.

"What we are suffering from now," Mr. Curry continued, "is the frequent strikes in the shipyards, which are holding up not only the construction of new vessels but the reconditioning of vessels which have been knocked about during the long war. There has been a strike at Southampton between the carpenters and joiners for two months which has stopped all work in the shipyards. It has injured the trade of the port, as steamships have had to go elsewhere and many owners are sending their vessels to New York for drydocking and overhauling, because the rapid work in the American shipyards makes up for the difference in the cost.

"The workmen in England are discontented and do not know what they want except that they have lost their zest for work. The beer shortage caused a great deal of dissatisfaction until the Government was compelled to allow the brewers to make a stronger beer, with more hops in it, and more of it.

"The coal situation is very bad in England and there is scarcely any to be had for the steamships at the various ports. Every one is rationed in coal, gas, and electricity for domestic purposes. Before the war I used to burn thirty tons of coal at my house outside Southampton and now I am allowed ten tons only. We have to make up for the rest in wood and the New Forest nearby has lost a great number of its trees."

Mr. Curry said the volume of passengers and freight in 1920 would exceed the capacity of available ships.

CROMWELL SISTERS' WILL.

Brother of Suicide War Workers Chief Heir to $1,919,708.

The appraisal of the estates of Gladys Louise Husted Cromwell and Dorothea Katherine Cromwell, sisters, who jumped from the steamship Lorraine on Jan. 19 while returning from France, where they had been engaged throughout the war as canteen workers, was filed yesterday. It shows that the estate of Miss Dorothea was $861,748 and that of Miss Gladys was $857,960. They made their wills on the same day, Jan. 22, 1918, and each had identical holdings of stocks and bonds and named the same legatees. Each owned $182,198 in Standard Oil stocks of the total of $647,180 in securities.

Both sisters left their residuary estate to their brother, Seymour Le Grand Cromwell, and sister, Mary R. Cromwell. Each provided that the remainder of the estate was to go to a score of friends and relatives. If either sister had survived the other such survivor would have received $200,000.

MAYER TO PUNISH CRAIG FOR REBUKE

Instructs District Attorney to Prepare Contempt Charge Against Controller.

BASED ON LETTER TO NIXON

Craig Alleges Judge Denies to City Officials Access to Traction Data.

ATTACK ON RECEIVERSHIP

Absence of Municipal Representatives Complained Of in Criticism of Court.

Federal Judge Mayer yesterday ordered Francis G. Caffey, United States District Attorney, to prepare papers accusing Charles L. Craig, Controller of New York City, of contempt of court. The action followed the reading of a letter from Controller Craig by Public Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon at the meeting of traction officials yesterday in Mr. Nixon's office, where the traction problem was discussed.

In his letter the Controller charged that Judge Mayer had denied him and other members of the Board of Estimate access to original sources of information concerning the traction properties and the affairs of the public utility corporations concerned. He also accused Judge Mayer of setting himself against the appointment of an additional co-receiver.

Soon after a copy of Mr. Craig's letter reached Judge Mayer, Henry L. Stimson of Winthrop & Stimson, counsel for Job Hedges, receiver of the New York Railways Company, called on District Attorney Caffey. Mr. Stimson gave Colonel Caffey an order made by Judge Mayer in proceedings entitled, "United States of America, plaintiff, vs. Charles L. Craig, defendant."

Mr. Caffey was unable to say how soon the formal information requested by the court would be placed before Judge Mayer, but it is believed that a week will elapse before the papers will be ready.

The alleged offense of Controller Craig lies in his accusation that Judge Mayer denied members of the city administration access to original sources of information concerning traction matters. Attention was drawn to a statement made by Judge Mayer in court last January when he promised the municipal authorities access to all sources of information.

It was also pointed out that a Judge was protected from criticism concerning a pending case. So far as the contempt case was concerned, it was said that the matter was entirely within the jurisdiction of the court and that there was no appeal.

Craig's Letter to Nixon.

Here is Controller Craig's letter:

Hon. Lewis Nixon, Public Service Commissioner, 49 Lafayette Street, New York City.

Dear Sir: Replying to your letter of Oct. 1,

Apparently without inquiry and without information, you have fixed the time for the proposed conference upon a date which, if observed, would require the members of the Finance and Budget Committee of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment—comprising the entire board—to drop the preparation of the largest budget in the history of New York City.

In your letter you say:

"It may be necessary to review figures and examine leases and agreements that will consume time."

Before any such conference can be seriously considered, and as an evidence of good faith on the part of those acting under the authority of United States District Judge Mayer, there must be a reversal of the policy for which Judge Mayer is responsible, of denying to myself and other members of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment any access to original sources of information concerning the property and affairs of these various public utility corporations holding franchises to operate in the streets of New York.

When the applications were made to Judge Mayer in the "friendly" proceedings instituted by those interested in these corporations for the appointment of a receiver of their own fixing, if not of their own selection the Corporation Counsel of the City of New York, acting under instructions from the Board of Estimate and Apportionment given at my instance, urged upon Judge Mayer that he appoint an additional or co-receiver acceptable to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, to see that the facts and conditions of the corporations involved were fully and fairly presented to the United States District Court in the course of the receivership, so that any orders or decrees that might be made by the court ought be fair and just to the City of New York and the members of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment might be accurately informed with respect thereto, in order that any action deemed necessary by the city might be taken.

Questions Jurist's Action.

As you must be aware, it is a very common thing in large receiverships to appoint additional receivers, particularly where there are varied and conflicting interests, and I have never been able to understand why in a matter of great public concern such as this Judge Mayer set himself against it.

It was clearly understood that conditions were certain to develop in these receiverships where the responsible authorities would be urged to take action which no honest or intelligent man could be expected to consider without the most exact and complete information upon the entire subject. Judge Mayer refused to grant any of the relief sought by the city. He not only denied the relief, but he made orders which prevented any application being made by the municipal authorities to any other court or Judge for any right of examination into the affairs or conditions of these corporations seeking municipal aid and favor.

Truth is the mightiest weapon in every controversy. The orders of Judge Mayer deny to the municipal authorities the opportunity to ascertain the truth.

The franchises and rights enjoyed by these corporations were mostly all procured many years ago when corrupt political rings were in control of public affairs, and the darkest scandals of municipal history, both in the old city of New York and in the City of Brooklyn prior to consolidation, are those in relation to such grants. The affairs of the franchise holding corporations have been in the hands of the boldest and most unscrupulous manipulators engaged in the exploitation of the rights obtained from corrupt political rings. Up to the present moment they have defied every power that has sought to open up the books and original records for search and examination in the public interest. They will open and open wide without any reservations or restrictions before there will be any conference so far as I am concerned.

It seems to me a monstrous thing that an order of a Federal Judge in a court of equity should stand between the public and the truth under such circumstances. Such an order is hostile to every interest of the City of New York in these controversies. Its operation and effect is to disarm the municipal authorities, to deny them the most effective instrument of redress and to force them into a contest with corporate powers intrenched in darkness and concealment.

Where Responsibility Lies.

The responsibility for the turmoil, delay, and dissatisfaction that has followed upon the orders of Judge Mayer, denying to the City of New York any representation in these receiverships, rests upon those who procured and are protected by such orders.

As a first and preliminary evidence of good faith, those who desire such a conference and a reasonable solution of existing complications should procure the entry of orders by Judge Mayer putting the City of New York on an equal footing with the private interests active in the receiverships. A refusal to do this can but prolong and embitter the controversy, and it will not in the end procure any advantage whatever to the traction interests. Yours very truly,

CHARLES L. CRAIG, Controller.

Controller Craig refused to make any comment when he heard of the action of Judge Mayer.

CITY'S NEW BUS LINE BUSY.

Cars on Brooklyn-Desbrosses Street Route Filled to Capacity.

The city's new bus line operating between Brooklyn and the Desbrosses Street Ferry over Manhattan Bridge, in place of the Brooklyn and North River Company, which went out of business Saturday, did a rushing business yesterday. The buses ran on a three and a half minute headway and carried capacity loads.

A mass meeting to protest against the discontinuance of transfers in Brooklyn will be held at 2,800 West Thirty-first Street, Coney Island, tomorrow night by the Coney Island Civic Alliance. Corporation Counsel Burr and Public Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon have promised to speak or to send a representative.

A meeting of the Non-Partisan League, organized by Mayor Hylan to fight fare increases, will be held tomorrow evening in the City Hall. It is expected the Mayor will speak.

BANKERS DISCUSS INTERBORO.

J. P. Morgan & Co. May Report on Status of $160,585,000 Bonds Today

A meeting of leading bankers was held at the offices of J. P. Morgan & Co. yesterday for the purpose of hearing that firm's report on its investigation of the status and prospects of the Interborough Rapid Transit first and refunding 5 per cent. bonds, of which there are outstanding $160,585,000. Following the meeting it was said that a formal announcement might be issued today. It was also said that bankers believe the bonds to be good, both as to principal and interest.

The meeting was attended by H. P. Davison and Dwight W. Morrow, for the Morgan firm; Charles E. Mitchell, President of the National City Company; Paul M. Warburg, President of the Chase National Bank; Seward Prosser, President, and A. A. Tilney, Vice President, of the Bankers Trust Company; Charles H. Sabin, President of the Guaranty Trust Company; James S. Alexander, President of the National Bank of Commerce; James A. Stillman, President of the National City Bank; Lloyd W. Smith of Harris, Forbes & Co.; E. H. Sweet, Vice President of the First National Bank; Charles E. Satterlee, Jr., of Kidder, Peabody & Co.; Frederic W. Allen of Lee, Higginson & Co., and G. Herman Kinnicutt of Kissel, Kinnicutt & Co.

J. P. Morgan & Co., it is understood, have been conducting an investigation of the affairs of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company for some months, or ever since the local traction situation became so highly involved as to result in its placing in the hands of receivers of most of the other companies giving local traction service. The Morgan firm, while not having any stock interest in Interborough, according to reliable reports, headed the syndicate which originally floated the 5 per cent. first mortgage bonds.

It is expected that the firm will issue a statement today setting forth the result of the findings of its investigations.

CITY OWNERSHIP OPPOSED.

Called "Un-American" at Electric Railway Association Convention.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 6.—The street railway business has fallen to the lowest ebb since it emerged from disconnected chaos into a great national industry, declared Luke J. Bradley of Houston, Texas, President of the Transportation and Traffic Association of the American Electric Railways Association, in his annual address at the opening session of the convention here this afternoon.

President Bradley labeled municipal ownership of electric street railways as "un-American," and urged that every move toward such an end should be defeated.

He urged the officials of traction companies to continue their efforts to maintain control of their industry before the various Federal, State, and municipal commissions.

Job Hedges, receiver of the New York Railways Company, will address the convention tomorrow morning.

Hedges Ordered to Pay Interest.

Job E. Hedges, receiver of the New York Railways Company, was yesterday authorized and directed by Judge Julius M. Mayer to pay the interest when it falls due on Nov. 2 on a note of the company for $400,000, now in the possession of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York. The note was secured by bonds of the railway company held as collateral.

FLETCHER FOR ROME.

Present Envoy to Mexico Spoken Of for Italian Post.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—There is a persistent rumor in diplomatic and official circles that Henry Prather Fletcher, Ambassador to Mexico, will be sent to Rome as Ambassador. Mr. Fletcher is at present in the United States, and his continued absence from Mexico City is believed to be the real reason for the recall of Ambassador Bonillas to Mexico City.

The report could not be verified at the State Department or at the White House, but it is said in official circles, and among the members of the diplomatic Corps, that the appointment has been contemplated ever since it was decided to retain Brand Whitlock in Belgium as Ambassador. Recent developments in Italy, the Fiume situation and the unusually active political movements make it important, it is said, that the United States have an experienced diplomat at Rome with full diplomatic authority.

It is declared here that Ambassador Fletcher's seventeen years of diplomatic experience, and his thorough familiarity with the Latin temperament, make him the best man in the service for the Italian post.

Proposes Plan to Remedy London Freight Congestion

LONDON, Oct. 5.—The Board of Trade Committee has recommended the immediate creation of a supreme traffic board for the London district, empowered to control, co-ordinate and take the initiative in all matters of transport as the only remedy for the present intolerable conditions.

A scheme for the reform of freight traffic in London has been under discussion by the Board of Trade Committee for the past few weeks. It contemplates the replacement of the existing seventy-four freight depots in London by one central clearing house.

TRACTION OFFICIALS HEAR NIXON'S PLAN

Proposes Consolidation of All Systems with the City as an Active Partner.

CALLS FOR UNIFORM FARE

Administration Not Represented—Scheme Not Acceptable, Says Spokesman.

Forty officials of local traction lines attended the conference yesterday morning called by Public Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon to discuss ways to help the companies in their financial difficulties. Mr. Nixon introduced the subject by reading a long statement containing comments on the situation and suggestions for concessions which he thought might meet the demands of the city administration and lead to modification of franchises and contracts which would bring about higher fares.

The city was not represented and a high official of the administration who said at the time Mr. Nixon sent out his call that the administration would not send a representative, made this comment after the conference.

"If the fare is raised on one system it must be raised on all. The railroad men know this and so they are clamoring for an increased fare on the surface lines to the end that the same increase will be allowed on the rapid transit lines. But the city will never consent to the increase on the latter lines, because to do so would be breaking faith with the people who were promised a five-cent fare in exchange for the $200,000,000 which they have invested in them.

"If the Interborough and the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Companies cannot operate the roads the city will take them over and operate them, and then, if necessary, the fare will be increased to the point of making the business pay for itself and so the city, and not the railroad officials, will benefit by any profits that may be earned. After this is done it will be time enough to discuss a fare increase for the surface lines. This is the city's position and it will not be changed."

This statement conflicts with former statements of city officials who have said that if the transportation companies would surrender their long term franchises and accept short ones the city would consider concessions in the future. When yesterday's conference ended it was with the understanding that another meeting would be held on Oct. 15, and that in the meantime the conferees might prepare suggestions.

Mr. Nixon's plan is as follows:

The consolidation of all systems into one corporation with unified control. This suggestion has been made before, and a way to accomplish it has been studied by at least one of the receivers.

A uniform fare except in isolated sections, such as Staten Island.

Abolition of holding companies, such as the Brooklyn Rapid Transit and the Interborough Consolidated.

Perpetual franchises to be replaced by terminable or indeterminate franchises.

The institution by the city of an inquiry to determine the value of each of the railroad properties.

The termination of all leases such as those held by the New York Railways Company, and of all underlying contracts.

The city to have the option of acquiring the railroad properties within a fixed time at agreed valuations. It is suggested that the purchase price be paid out of earnings.

The establishment of a flexible fare, automatically adjusted to meet the cost of service which must cover interest on money invested.

A reserve fund to meet variation in costs and the sale of tickets at less than 5 cents to those buying in quantity. The occasional passenger would thus pay more than the regular one.

The city to be represented on all boards.

Mr. Nixon explained that the suggestions were tentative and were offered as a basis for discussion. He explained that when the various contracts were made the five-cent fare was fixed because that was then the best known plan for controlling rates, and that, while comprehensive plans for control of the railroads had since been worked out, the rate restriction stands. Therefore, he argued, if the city surrenders this right the companies must yield something of equal value—for example, their perpetual street rights.

Then Mr. Nixon proposed two committees, one on unification and the other on differentials and guaranteed payments. He suggested that these committees consist of Transit Commissioner John H. Delaney, the Controller, a representative of each of the companies, and a representative of the City's Franchise Committee. If the Board of Estimate declines to name a representative, Mr. Nixon suggested that the public should be represented by a man selected by the Chamber of Commerce, the Board of Trade and Transportation, and the Merchants' Association.

It was suggested that the Committee on Unification, when named, should be asked to keep in mind the need for free transfers, and that even single control should not be established at too great an expense to the city. "Let us at least," he said, "put an end to the numerous dummy or paper corporations." He thought that while too many forms of securities would be unwise, possibly a preferred stock at 4 per cent. might be issued to present owners of securities.

The committee on preferentials and guaranteed payments, Mr. Nixon said, would go into, review the question whether earnings claimed were based upon unjustified congestion, so as to avoid possible capitalizations of congestion, and that account should be taken of possible saving in wages, payments for patents, and unreasonably high salaries.

This suggestion meets a complaint of the city that officials of the rapid transit companies are drawing too much pay and adding to their large incomes by royalties for patented appliances. Mr. Nixon said that, while the start appeared to be involved, the proposition was really simple. He said the city should be free to determine its transportation policies and that if the administration would join the effort to adjust the matter a solution of the transportation problem might be arrived at in six weeks.

Mr. Nixon said he had written letters to individual members of the Board of Estimate without result, and that he had decided to take the matter up with the railroad officials because somebody had to start it.

After Mr. Nixon had read his statement the newspapermen were asked to withdraw and the conferees locked themselves in and talked for an hour. When he left the meeting James L. Quackenbush, counsel to the Interborough, was asked for comment.

"It took four years to make the dual subway contracts, and I guess it will take as long to change them," he replied.

NAMES AERO COMMISSION.

League Committee to Arrange for First Aerial Derby Around World.

The Aero Club of America announced yesterday that a commission had been appointed by the Aerial League of America to complete arrangements for the first aerial derby around the world, which is scheduled to take place next year. The object of the race around the globe, according to the promoters, is to "create worldwide interest in aeronautics and to advance the art and science of aviation and the building of better and safer aircraft."

The commission which is to arrange the air race is composed of Commodore Louis D. Beaumont, President; Captain Charles J. Glidden, Executive Secretary, and Benjamin Milliman. They will leave New York on Friday and sail a week later from San Francisco. The route for the race will be announced later, it was said.

Chamberlain Wants Wood and Goethals Made Lieutenant Generals With Crowder

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The calling up by Senator Knox of Pennsylvania, today, of the bill to reward Major Gen. Enoch H. Crowder, who was Provost Marshal General in charge of the selective draft law administration, with the permanent grade of Lieutenant General, brought forth an amendment by Senator Chamberlain of Oregon to give the same rank to several other officers of the regular army. These officers are Hunter Liggett, Robert Lee Bullard, commanders of the first and second armies; Leonard Wood, George W. Goethals, Charles P. Summerall, who commanded the 1st Division and later the 5th Army Corps; James W. McAndrew, Pershing's Chief of Staff; John L. Harbaard, who commanded the marines at Belleau Wood and was later in charge of the S. O. S.; Henry P. McCain, former Adjutant General and afterwards commander of the 18th Division, also Ernest Hinds, W. L. Kenly, Henry F. Hodges, William C. Langfitt, the latter, with the exception of Kenly, who was director of the Air Service, being among the best known of the American division commanders. It was reported tonight that Senator Chamberlain would add several more names to the list.

Senator Knox, in calling up the bill, paid tribute to General Crowder's services. He recalled that the General has been forty-three years in the army, serving with distinction at all times, and winning the commendation of many superiors long before his crowning service was rendered in the administration of the selective service law.

At the conclusion of Senator Knox's remarks Senator Chamberlain offered his amendment.

"The special preferment that it is proposed by this bill to confer upon General Crowder, deserved though it may be, would inevitably have the effect of minimizing the services of others," said Senator Chamberlain. "As Provost Marshal General, he undoubtedly rendered most valuable services. He assisted Congress in the preparation of the Selective Service act of 1917, but the basic idea of that legislation did not originate with him.

"Of late the Secretary of War and General Crowder seem to have resolved themselves into a mutual admiration society, invariably exchanging their compliments in all their communications and references to one another."

At this point the Senator was interrupted by the conclusion of the morning hour and it was agreed that the bill should go over until tomorrow, when Senator Knox gave notice that he would call it up and attempt to pass it.

It was reported today that the War Department was about to make public a memorandum attacking the army record of Colonel Samuel T. Ansell, former Acting Judge Advocate General, who resigned several months ago, following the controversy over the administration of military justice. Colonel Ansell said tonight that he knew all about the matter, terming it the latest and basest scheme to defend the military justice and sustain its chief supporter, the Judge Advocate General (Crowder.)

"The War Department is at this time," added Colonel Ansell, "devoting a large number of officers and clerks to going over my twenty-odd years' record in the army, for the purpose of preparing a statement which has no other object than to deceive the people, and especially Congress, by making them believe that I have not been honest in my contention and honorable in my methods. Having failed utterly to defend the indefensible in the form of the existing court-martial system, they are now trying to distort and subordinate a high and vital principle to the low level of personal animosity."

FIUME SETTLEMENT EXPECTED IN ROME

Italy Will Soon Be Freed of the "Nightmare," It Is Predicted in Capital.

AOSTA TO SEE D'ANNUNZIO

Duke Will Urge Poet Not to Extend His Operations Pending Decision of Allied Powers.

ROME, Oct. 6.—The Popolo Romano declares that the question of Fiume has entered a new stage, in which definite agreements ar possible. Although the incident has not yet been closed, the probabilities of success are such that confidence may be entertained that Italy will soon be freed of the Fiume nightmare.

According to reports received by the Ministry of the Navy, there was only one shot fired at the steamship Epiro when she was entering the winding channel leading to Cattaro last week. This shot, it is said, was fired by a Serbian volunteer from the rock of Rondoni, situated on an island in the channel. Italy has secured the punishment of the guilty sailor and the substitution of Serbian regular troops for volunteer sailors as guards of the forts along the channel.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—The Duke d'Aosta has gone to Fiume charged by the Government to ask Captain d'Annunzio not to extend his operations about that city, but to await a decision by the Allies relative to the situation, according to advices from Rome.

FIUME, Oct. 3, (Associated Press.)—D'Annunzio's army at present holds territory forming an equilateral triangle, with Fiume on the base and with the apex located at Clana, to the north. Each side of this triangle is approximately six miles long, and one is formed by the sea coast. The western angle is at Preluca, about two miles from Abbazia, and the eastern angle is at Urigal, which is between Sussak and Buccari. The line from Preluca to Clana passes through Castua, while that from Clana to the coast traverses Grobnica.

The town of Sussak, the Jugoslav section of Fiume, is thus included in the territory occupied by the d'Annunzio army. The problem of great difficulty to the regular Italian staff has thus presented itself for in Sussak the Queen's Brigade, which has remained loyal to the Italian Government, has been billeted. This brigade, entirely surrounded by the d'Annunzio forces, has been living on the supplies it had when the raid on Fiume was made. The Italian staff has been conjecturing whether it would be better to withdraw the Queen's Brigade at the risk of armed intervention, by the d'Annunzio forces or to find a method of getting supplies into Sussak.

LOOK TO US FOR COAL.

Italian Railroads Have Fuel for Only One Month, It Is Said.

ROME, Oct. 5.—Discussing the coal crisis in this country, the newspaper Tempo says Italian railroads have fuel for only one month, and this is almost entirely American. A piling up of a greater reserve of American coal is being hampered by the strike in the harbor of Genoa, where eighteen steamers laden with coal arrived several weeks ago and still await unloading.

"The Government has made contracts in America for 2,000,000 tons of coal," the newspaper says. "America is now Italy's only hope, as the 5,000 tons of German coal daily promised by France and Switzerland has not been delivered because of lack of transportation. Hitherto only 500 tons has been received daily. Belgium was to send 50,000 tons per month, but has instead shipped only 14,000.

"To avoid suspension of service, all engines have been ordered in America and similar machines are being built in Italy."

POLES TAKE DVINSK FROM BOLSHEVIKI

North Russian Army Captures the Railway Between Petrograd and Pskov.

DENIKIN NOW NEAR OREL

His Raiders Cut Foe's Communications—Kolchak Advance Continues —Bomb Throwing in Moscow.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 6.—Polish forces have carried the fortifications of Dvinsk, between Old Russia and Poland, after two days of hard fighting, according to Berlin advices.

All this city, except a portion south of the Duna (Dvina) River, is now held by the Poles, it is said.

General Denikin's troops are within thirty miles of Orel, on the road to Moscow, and the Bolsheviki who have been opposing him are surrendering in great numbers, it is announced by a wireless dispatch from the Cossack anti-Bolshevist commander received here.

Orel is slightly more than 200 miles directly south of Moscow. The city has a population of about 70,000 and is an important railroad and commercial centre.

General Denikin reports that sections of his forces, detaching themselves from the main body, are raiding the Bolshevist supplies and cutting the enemy's communications.

Another dispatch reports that the North Russian Army has captured the railway between Petrograd and Pskov, cutting off the communications of Petrograd to the southwest.

OMSK, Sept. 28, (Associated Press.)—The advance of the Siberian armies under Admiral Kolchak since the resumption of the offensive on Sept. 1 has been carried out with a few reverses to a distance averaging seventy five miles along the whole front. The advance of several portions of the line has been made against serious resistance and counterattacks, the Kolchak troops having proved their mettle in this fighting.

Fifteen thousand prisoners, 100 machine guns, and 21 heavy cannon have been captured in this movement, by which the forces of Admiral Kolchak brought their retreat to an end.

At present the front of the army touches the Tobol River, fifteen miles south of the town of Yaluterovsk, the station where the Ishim-Ekaterinburg railway crosses the Tobol River. From this point northward the front bends back to the eastward, but the enemy has been pushed back seventy miles from the railroad centre at Ishim, the nearest point of approach. From the Tobol River, the furthest point westward of the Kolchak line, the front extends due south, touching the transiberian railway at the station at Urakhli, forty miles from Kurgan, and then bears away to the southeast below the railway.

In this direction the Cossack forces recently retreated twenty miles, but the retreat has been arrested and some territory regained.

Voluntary enlistment among the refugees behind the Kolchak lines has been stimulated by the offer of bonuses and of subsistence for the families of volunteers, and it is now proceeding faster than the men can be equipped. Fifteen thousand volunteers were enrolled in September.

HELSINGFORS, Oct. 6.—Ten persons were killed and twenty-eight others were seriously wounded by the throwing of a bomb into a funeral procession in Moscow recently, according to advices from that city received here. Many other persons were slightly injured.

The dispatch says that the bomb, of the highest explosive type, was thrown by an unknown man "during the funeral of the victims of the recent bomb outrage in the Kremlin."

[No previous reports of a bomb outrage in the Kremlin have been received in this country.]

BELGIAN BUSINESS IS FAST REVIVING

Railway System Now in Working Order, and Canals Are Being Repaired.

ANTWERP BUSY ONCE AGAIN

Coal Miners Are Hard at Work, Small Farmers Prosper, and Exports Increase.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 28.—Here in Brussels one gets a different perspective of the national problems of Belgium than when one is in the devastated areas. Things do not seem so hopeless; on the contrary, one sees many signs of intellectual and commercial activity, which is already regaining some of the appearance at least of pre-war conditions. Business men not overwhelmed by the gloom of personal loss tell me that during the months since the armistice a considerable amount of reconstruction has been done in the country as a whole, in spite of the almost impossible task of building up cities like Ypres and Dixmude and reclaiming battlefields.

The organization of transport, for instance, is proceeding steadily, and not only has the railway system with its network of light railways been put into working order again, but also the canal system which is immensely important to the intensive agriculture on which the wealth of Belgium depends so much is being repaired in a fairly rapid way.

The port of Antwerp is busy again, and that is the open gate through which the Belgian people receive and transport the fruits of their industry. Stagnation at Antwerp means "nothing doing" in the country as a whole, but now there is a great coming and going of ships and the trade of the port is not much less than in the Summer of 1914 before August, when the storm broke.

Belgian exports are mounting again, especially as regards coal, and it is a good symptom not only of trade revival but of moral convalescence that the Belgian miners are fighting against the spirit of lassitude which has overcome so many workers and that their output is not far short of pre-war figures. France is in desperate need of coal, and gets the main bulk of that export, and it is for that reason that for the first time in history the Belgian franc is worth more than the French franc.

Small farmers of Belgium are prosperous beyond anything they have known before, and go to market gladly because of the almost fantastic prices they get for their produce.

That is the cheerful side of the picture. Against it one must set 35,000,000,000 francs for the destruction of material in war and a national debt of 18,000,000,000 francs.

Factories Still Crippled.

There is still havoc in Belgian factories caused by the German removal or destruction of plants, and although many of them are [illegible] hundreds of the great works are still desolate, and in those life will come back slowly. That has led to one danger which is causing anxiety to Belgian employers of labor. There has been an exodus of workingmen to France from districts where factories are closed down or not working at full capacity, owing to the temptation of high wages offered by the French. A Belgian laborer who can get 11,000 francs a year in France instead of a third of that in his own country, even if he finds employment is quick to cross the frontier.

I find that intellectual men are less concerned about the industrial conditions of their country than about the political state of mind now prevailing. They are not inclined to believe in the menace of revolution owing to industrial causes. As one of these has said to me, "There are revolutionary and anarchical people in every nation, and Belgium has this class working secretly to undermine the foundations of social order, but the mass of our people have a fund of common sense which will resist all that. They are slow and stolid and not easily set on fire by passionate emotion. They are rather like the English in their common-sense views of life and self-interest.

"What is more dangerous to Belgium as a nation is the attempt to break its unity by a linguistic division. If that is done there will not be life in Belgium, but death."

It is a difficult problem for us to understand. What is happening in Belgium now is a movement by the Flemish-speaking people to boycott French as a secondary language. For many centuries the people who now form the Belgian nation, Flemings and Walloons, have been bilingual. Before the Austrian domination of the Netherlands French was always the official language of the courts and municipalities, and it is the language now through which the Belgian people, Flemings as well as Walloons, get their knowledge of European culture and keep in touch with the world.

Flemish "Activists" Busy.

Lately, inspired a good deal by German propaganda during the war, the Flemish "activists" have led a serious campaign to drive the use of French out of the schools and universities and press, and to make Flemish the only tongue spoken by the people. All this seems merely historical in its interest to those who do not understand the political motives at work in the movement. It is controlled and fomented by politicians of a reactionary character who are afraid of losing their old power or from more noble motives are afraid Belgium may lost its old faith and moral well-being through revolutionary and democratizing ideas. They are afraid of the future and are making use of the Flemish movement to to restore th sold order of things. Before the war the Clerical Party was supreme in the State, closely organized and commanding a majority of seats in Parliament. Now, by a proportional representation and by the increasing power of the labor groups their majority is challenged, and they have little chance in the future of such complete mastery of the Government machine.

The reactionary spirit in the Clerical Party is alarmed and as the Flemish movement is largely supported by parish priests, recruited from the peasant class, they hope that by using it and strengthening it they may get back to power. It is a conflict between the new order and the old. Cardinal Mercier and many liberal and large-minded Catholics, including M. Ferdinand Nouray, editor of the Nation Belge, which has a wide and increasing influence in Belgium, are strongly opposed to the Flemish movement and desire to separate religion from politics. By all means maintain the Flemish language, they say, but do not abandon the bilingual system which unites two peoples in Belgium and keeps them in relationship with general European culture and life. Unified, the Belgian people have a great future, looking out through open windows with a large purpose and opportunity; divided, they will sink into smallness.

It is no doubt a vital question, this "flamagant" business, and men like Neuray, whom I regard as a man of high intellectual leadership, are endeavoring to form a national party in Belgium which will gather together all liberal minded men whatever their religious belief who will work for the unity of Belgium and for the progress of its people toward a bigger place in the world by right of intellect, industry, liberty and social well being. The best hope they have, apart from the influence of a leader like Cardinal Mercier, who seems to be the enemy of reaction and to be democratic in his spirit, is in the demobilised soldiers now back in their homes and workshops. Those 20,000 men became broadened and educated by their experience during the war.

Have Attained National Consciousness.

The narrowness of their peasant life has been broken up. They have seen other peoples, heard bigger ideas. They have thought pretty hard about the problems of life. They have attained for the first time a national consciousness and even international breadth of view. They have been talking of Belgium rather than the small talk around the village pump. It is they who are the propagandists of national unity and of a wider commonwealth than may be gained by the narrow limits of Flemish politics intrenched against the world of ideas. They believe in closer friendship with England and France while maintaining pride in their own independence and refusing to be vassals of either England or France.

Perhaps their national spirit has in itself the seeds of other dangers. There is already talk of France desiring to treat Belgium as a vassal by claiming control of the railways in the Duchy of Luxemburg. There is some suspicion that England is backing Holland in her resistance to Belgian liberty in the Scheldt.

There is something in the nature of man which makes all nations suspicious of their neighbors, but however that may be, it will be for the good of Europe if Belgium regains her prosperity and rises to a more powerful independence, because her geographical position is, in a way the keystone of the structure of Europe and we all need Belgium as a nation.

TROOPS GUARD LISBON; PRESIDENT INSTALLED

Strike Outbreaks Represented as Revolutionary by Some Reports.

MADRID, Oct. 6.—Advices received here today from Portugal regarding the reported revolutionary movement there are very contradictory in character. Some of them represent the railwaymen's strike as of a revolutionary aspect, while others do not reflect this view.

In this connection, also, it is noted that A Lisbon dispatch reporting the inauguration of President Almeida says the ceremony passed without incident, the people acclaiming the President on his way from the Congress to the presidential palace, and no mention is made of the strike.

Troops are occupying the strategical points in Lisbon with machine guns.

The outbreak of the strike was preceded by a demonstration of Portuguese Syndicalists, who were angered because sixty-eight of their comrades had been sent to trial. A group of Syndicalists marched to the prison in which the arrested Syndicalists were confined, announcing that they would take it by storm and shoutings "Long live anarchy." Troops, however, dispersed the manifestants, of whom 119 were arrested. The postponement of the inauguration of the eight-hour day increased the agitation which preceded the strike.

The Portuguese Syndicalists, it is indicated in private advices, are asking aid from the Spanish railway employes.

LISBON, Oct. 5.—Antonio José Almeida was inaugurated President in the presence of the members of the Portuguese Congress today with the customary ceremonies.

EX-CROWN PRINCE SOON TO RETURN TO GERMANY

Expects to Have to Wait About a Year for a Constitutional Monarchy.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMERONGEN, Oct. 5.—The ex-Crown Prince was abroad early and walked about the village the greater part of the day, evidently enjoying the change of scene after his long imprisonment on his island. He also tried various automobiles belonging to the younger Count Bentinck. In spite of the fact that he had not seen his father for a long time, he seemed little inclined to spend his time with him in the castle.

The Dutch Government has decided that the ex-Crown Prince is free to leave Holland, although no statement to this effect has been published, and the rumor has even been circulated that he will stay at Wieringen for the Winter. He intends, however, to wait for the final ratification of the Peace Treaty, and will then return to Germany. Meanwhile he will remain on his island in order not to involve the Dutch Government in complications.

His father will remain in Holland, so that the present visit is probably one of farewell. Frederick William says he intends to return to the Fatherland and live quietly, but does not expect to be obliged to wait longer than a year for the establishment of a constitutional monarchy.

Australia Plans Law to Control All Trusts

MELBOURNE, Oct. 6, (via Montreal.)—In the Australian House of Representatives today Premier Hughes moved a constitutional amendment bill which proposes to give the Commonwealth power to deal with all industrial matters, whether affecting one or more States; to control combines, trusts, and monopolies, and also to make arrangements regarding the production, manufacture, and supply of goods. If accepted by referendum, these alterations will be effective for three years. They must be indorsed by a Commonwealth convention before the end of 1929, otherwise they will lapse.

BUDAPEST HUNGRY AND WITHOUT COAL

Pillaged by Rumanians, City Has Little But Pumpkins and Watermelons to Eat.

900,000 ARE OUT OF WORK

All Reduced to Penury and Extreme Misery by the Communist Regime.

PAPER MONEY WORTHLESS

Clothes and the Common Necessaries of Life Are Almost Unobtainable.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 5.—Jules Sauerwein, the foreign editor of Le Matin, draws a deplorable picture of life in Budapest. Without coal, almost without food, with pumpkins and watermelons the only nourishment the great majority of the people can procure, pillaged by the Rumanians, the once haughty and prosperous Magyars bow their heads in misery before Czechs, Croats, Poles and Rumanians. In the Hungarian capital there are 900,000 persons out of work. Scarcely any money is in circulation except Communist paper, which is practically worthless; and, even if one has the price, clothes and the common necessaries of life are almost unprocurable.

Comparing Budapest with Vienna Mr. Sauerwein says that the former city, where throughout the war life was comparatively comfortable, is now reduced by Communism to a condition of wretchedness and desolation which far surpasses that of the Austrian capital, which shared the common defeat. He attributes this condition chiefly to the hostility of the peasants against Bela Kun's Régime. It is reluctant by admitted by a prominent French Socialist who has also visited Hungary recently that a similar attitude of all the agricultural population will forever prevent Communism from becoming a practical form of government in Western Europe.

The depreciation of currency and the enormous increase in production costs, which appear to be the unavoidable consequences of Communism cause the peasants to refuse to exchange food either for money or goods. The result is that Communist urban agglomerations soon faced a starvation blockade as was the case in Budapest.

Further details of Bela Kun's illstarred experiment are given by a Danish correspondent of L'Illustration who spent several weeks in Budapest under Communist rule. The article, which is quite impartial, does not allude to massacres or other excesses, and judges the Communist régime, which had full play according to Marxian theories, entirely on its merits.

The consequences of the socialisation of all factories employing more than twenty men was that in three months the average rise in costs was 200 per cent., while receipts had fallen 50 per cent. Each increase mounted beyond all reason until nearly everything was being sold far below the cost price. Thus coal, which cost 29 kronens ($5.80) per hundredweight, was delivered at 7, and sulphate of copper for vines, which cost 26 kronen at the factory, was retailed at 12.

The municipal street cars, which the year before paid 5,000,000 kronen in dividends, faced a yearly deficit of 250,000,000 kronen. All these losses fall on the State, which met them by issuing paper and more paper.

The Hungarian Communists were favored by being able to seize the huge agricultural properties of the nobles, which were mostly in a flourishing condition. Yet these, too, were speedily run into the ground by a rampant extension of bureaucratic control. Thus in the Koposvar district, a gang of 11 functionaries replaced the office force of five who had been managing the estate to the satisfaction and prosperity of tenants and owner alike. These agents and the agricultural laborers received outrageous salaries. In a few weeks the production was diminished by half. Then mills, dairies and sugar refineries began to slow up as the idleness of the workers increased. Soon the whole life of these rich farms was at a standstill. The fields were untilled, the crops unharvested, and the animals slaughtered because it was too much trouble to feed them.

Finally, with production from the confiscated properties down to the minimum, the Communists appealed to the small peasant proprietors. The latter refused to take their money or accept goods at their valuation. The Communists threatened, and the peasants handed together and met them with machine guns. The vicious circle was complete. In the cities mismanagement closed the factories; in the country it produced stoppage of the food supply.

The writer concludes:

"Surely the Hungarian experiment is enough for the world. It certainly convinced my fellow-traveller, an ardent Communist from Switzerland, who told me: 'I arrived full of enthusiasm and joyous expectation; I depart disappointed and disillusioned, ready to abandon faith in the principles for which until now I have lived and fought.'"

THE PLAY

By Alexander Woollcott

"Declassée" a Brilliant Play.

DECLASSÉE, a comedy in three acts, by Zoe Akins. At the Empire Theatre.

Rudolph Solomon	Claude King
Edward Thayer	Vernon Steel
Harry Charteris	Charles Francis
Sir Emmett Whidering	Julian Royce
Sir Bruce Haden	Harry Plimmer
Count Paolo del Magiore	Ralf Belmont
Joan	Alfred Hesse
Walters	Edward Le Hay
Lady Helen Haden	Ethel Barrymore
Lady Whidering	Clare Eames
Charlotte Ashley	Beatrice Beckley
Mrs. Leslie	Katherine Harris
Alice Vance	Madeline Delmar
Zellito	Gabrielle Ravine

At the zenith of her powers and in the fullness of her queenly beauty, Ethel Barrymore came back to town last night in the richest and most interesting play that has fallen to her in all her years upon the stage. This was "Declassée," a new work in three acts by Zoe Akins, the Louisville woman, whose first little piece, "The Magical City," which the Washington Square Players presented some years ago at the Bandbox, gave only a hint of how resourcefully she would come in time to write for the theatre.

Her new play, immeasurably enriched by the work of Miss Barrymore and a very able newcomer from England named Claude King, held last night's audience spellbound, held it enthralled even through such a lingering and luxurious death scene as has not been vouchsafed to this hurried city in our day and generation. There was a hearty and sincere ovation for Miss Akins. And for Miss Barrymore—well, it was tumultuous, such booming applause, such cheers as come but once or twice a season, and, when they come, do warm the very cockles of the old playgoer's heart.

The trouble with writing affably about the average run of stuff produced week in and week out in our town is that there are no decently reticent adjectives that will, by comparison, do justice to such great occasions as the playing of Ethel Barrymore in Zoe Akins's play. One must needs search the old play-bills of Barnum & Bailey to find suitable expression.

"Declassée" propounds nothing. It merely tells, directly and with a nice frugality of means, a fascinating story. It is the story of Lady Helen Haden, wife of the coarse and bibulous Sir Bruce Haden, herself a Varrick, one of the mad Varricks of England, who had ridden hard and recklessly down through the centuries of English wars and English loves. She is fondly, tenderly interested in a young adventurer, and there are letters which compromise her. She could keep these from Sir Bruce, but, as the cards fall, it would not be cricket, and out the story comes. And out of his house she goes, head up, disdainful, impractical, the lovely Lady Helen, who knows only that a pound is something you give the head waiter and a shilling something you give the taxi man.

After two years, you meet her again in the palm-room of a New York hotel, a marked-down Duchess, cut by many, recognized nervously but a bit kindly by some of her quondam playmates, Lady Helen Haden, déclassée. She finds that there are wildernesses even today, she who has pawned her last pearl, who watches hungrily each passenger list of the steamers from home, who reads omnivorously every fragment of news, speeches in Parliament and is still a bit worried about Ireland. She is served deferentially by the head waiter who served her in Cairo in days gone by. She tries to make playmates of a dear little comedienne, who is in musical comedy, but who has a real voice, and of Zellito, a fortune-teller, who prefers gamerously to gidelitt in time. And she is urged for to be one of the five millionaires of the world, the Rudolph Solomon, to the American wing of the British Museum."

And there you behold them together in the lounge of a New York hotel, the one-time nogeboy, who used to lie on his back and dream great dreams in the grass of Battery Park, and Victoria Helen Alexandria Varrick, who has come a long way since the days when she was held in the arms of the Queen, who was her godmother. The story of what befalls when these two meet is interesting to the last, the somewhat arbitrary and rather tricky last. The Lady Helen is like a child who has fallen down and soiled her frock, like a child who has rather enjoyed being lost in the crowd. But night is coming on. The gathering shadows of the play are not dispelled, because Miss Akins is true to her characters and Lady Helen true to her code.

Miss Akins has builded well and she has drawn so little on the stock quips and phrases of the stage that the players must with difficulty restrain themselves from fondling her speeches as one fondles new-minted coins. It is difficult to remember when last a play came this way with text so continuously interesting to hear. Many of the passages have genuine beauty. All of them are clean-cut, sound and true.

The company that supports Miss Barrymore is very good indeed in spots. The performance by Mr. King is a notable achievement, a fine and authentic bit of portraiture. There are minor rôles well done by Clare Eames, a niece of Emma Eames; by Beatrice Beckley, who is a bit gassy at times, but of fine presence and understanding; by Charles Francis, and by Harry Plimmer. Vernon Steel is the only conspicuously inadequate player in the cast.

The important and difficult second act is appallingly set and staged. What is evidently supposed to be the lounge room of a very elegant and ritzy sort of hostelry suggests nothing quite so much as a Mills Hotel and poor Lady Helen is not quite so déclassée as all that. Furthermore, the three tables, awkwardly placed, are turned on and off like so many phonographs, now howling, now inaudible, with not the faintest suggestion of taste, illusion or decent care. Mr. Iden Payne, who directed the piece, will have to spend the rest of the season explaining away his second act.

But shining amid it all is Miss Barrymore, never so beautiful, never quite so complete a mistress of her ever-maturing art. Her performance is flawless from beginning to end, with every resource of intelligence and eloquence at her easy command. There is magic here. And what a thoroughbred she is!

PREPARE, O'RYAN PLEADS.

Tells of Our Dependence Upon Britain in the War—Praises Y. M. C. A.

Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan last night at the opening for the Winter's work of the central branch, the Y. M. C. A. in Brooklyn, said the 27th Division was outfitted, clothed and equipped by the British with British materials and that the armistice was signed before any American material was received. He added that the 27th was virtually on its way home before American materials came in quantity. "This will happen again," he added, "unless we keep up our preparedness."

General O'Ryan declared the Australian soldiers the best in the world war, and asserted that the 27th Division's backbone was the old members and that the younger ones took their example from the old members who gave the division its morale.

"I speak for the whole 27th Division when I say that we have no reason to complain of the Y. M. C. A.," said General O'Ryan. "My experience on the Mexican border was that the Y. M. C. A. was there when it was needed."

SOTHERN-MARLOWE RETURN

Give Fine Performance of "Twelfth Night," with Modern Scenery.

SHAKESPEARE'S TWELFTH NIGHT. At the Shubert Theatre.

Orsino	Frederick Lewis
Sebastian	Henry Stanford
Antonio	Frank Peters
A Sea Captain	E. L. Granville
Curio	Leon Cunningham
Valentine	Andrew Souther
Sir Toby Belch	Rowland Buckstone
Sir Andrew Aguecheek	J. Sayre Crawley
Malvolio	E. H. Sothern
Fabian	Colvil Dunn
Feste	Vernon Kelso
A Priest	Boyd Clarke
Olivia	Alma Kruger
Viola	Julia Marlowe
Maria	Norah Lamison
Pages	Virginia Wells, Barbara Bever.

Unanimous in praise and pleasure was the audience last night which welcomed the return to the stage of E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe in "Twelfth Night," at the Shubert Theatre. If the twin stars, who have not appeared together for more than six years, did not win a place among the great luminaries of the past in the first of their three Shakespearean plays, they did win a place among the leaders of the most original and daring portrayers of Shakespeare.

The striking feature of the performance was that Mr. Sothern, abandoning the realistic scenery which has heretofore framed his productions, introduced scenery if not futuristic certainly strikingly modern. It must be said that the scenery was very adaptable to the make-believe comedy. The sets were on the order of Stewart Walker's settings for his plays which appeared at the Punch and Judy Theatre last Winter. The gray velvet curtains with the background of blue sky and make-believe trees framed beautifully the theme of the fantastic story, if not at all times the telling of it.

Perhaps the setting, though altogether a great improvement, emphasized more strongly certain deficiencies and discordant notes in the excellently produced "Twelfth Night." The performance was intellectually flawless, but some of the scenes, enacted in the modern set, appeared almost as Shakespearean caricatures, through the director's efforts to be in harmony with the surroundings and yet retain the sixteenth century construction of the lines.

Miss Marlow as Viola, to the eye, had the beauty and youth which she manifested when she first played the rôle in 1857. She has not sacrificed these charms in attaining experience. She was perhaps less slender, but when she came before the curtain in response to applause she was the Marlow which is remembered in "She Stoops to Conquer," "Barbara Frietchie," and "Antony and Cleopatra." She was delightfully feminine, and succeeded best in her comedy scenes. Her voice was rich and full and it soared on the wings of romance as far as the beautiful lines would allow.

Sothern as the strange Malvolio, though he had no opportunity to show that he was a great tragedian, showed that he was a really great comedian. In the scene where he discovers the letter, which he believes to be from his mistress Olivia, he had the whole house laughing heartily. There was no part which was cast poorly, and all the players did their parts with sincerity. Those deserving particular mention, were Frederick Lewis, as Orsino, Rowland Buckstone, as Sir Toby, Norah Lamison as Maria, and Henry Stanford as Sebastian.

BEDROOM FARCE TO LIMIT.

Old Situations but New and Real Laughs in "Girl in the Limousine."

THE GIRL IN THE LIMOUSINE, a farce in three acts, by Wilson Collison and Avery Hopwood. At the Eltinge Theatre.

Kargan	Edward Butler
Benny	Dana Malloy
Betty Neville	Dorris Kenyon
Dr. Jimmie Galen	Charles Ruggles
Tony Hamilton	John Cumberland
Riggs	Barnett Parker
Freddie Neville	Frank Thomas
Beatrice Warren	Vivian Gudsmor
Lucia Galen	Claiborne Foster
Aunt Cicely	Zelda Sears
Giles	Harry Chatten

"The Girl in the Limousine" took the lid off the laughs last night at the Eltinge, where she arrived with a smash after reported escapades on the road, and was provided by Al Woods with uncommonly good company from A to Z. The bright particular "Exhibit A" being Doris Kenyon in a new negligé every minute, while "Z" was Zelda Sears, as practical Aunt Cicely, who put Miss Kenyon to bed with a cold while the plot thickened with the help of a house party of experienced plotters. Auxiliaries before the farce were Wilson Collison, guilty of "Up in Mabel's Room," and Avery Hopwood, author of "Fair and Warmer." So Broadway was there looking for something funny, and found it in Betty Neville's bedroom for two acts and a finale out of the porch windows.

The "Girl" was a deus ex machina, whose clothes were shown at the last curtain, left by the thieves who had held up the limousine, stripped the car's owner, and deposited him in a union suit in the dark bedroom at 8:30. John Cumberland made the most of his plight; he even explained it all—"It's perfectly all right, we went to bed with a chaperon." To which Miss Sears retorted, "What is this, then, Greenwich Village or Sodom and Gomorrah?" And Charles Ruggles, as the doctor friend of the house, agreed "this is the ugliest nightmare I've ever had." He also got a great laugh from the audience when he rang up the absent husband with, "Central, I have a half hour to spare—will you get me a number?"

The plot doesn't matter; there were the bed, the twin telephone booth and wardrobe, the endless doors, and clothes hampers. Some one was in or out of something, especially the bed, at all times, and as often in trouble.

"This may look bad, but it's better than it looks," protested Mr. Cumberland from his couch when the women guests of the Nevilles got hysterical over his unwilling intrusion. "You—think—she—thought—?" exclaimed Miss Kenyon, innocence personified, and Cumberland opined: "I'll—say—she—did." Bedroom farce to the limit, we'll say. The situations weren't invented yesterday, but the laughs were new and real last night, and are likely to be heard for some time to come at the Eltinge.

Stella Genova's Recital Applauded.

Stella Genova gave the second of this season's hundreds of recitals in Aeolian Hall last evening, an "aria and song" recital, in which the Jewel Song from "Faust" was applauded, though the singer was more effective in a simple "Homing" by Teresa del Riego, which she had to give twice over. Miss Genova's powerful voice strained on the topnotes; she was very nervous, but she was also young and a stumping picture-winning recalls from the rather small audience that frankly wanted to see her again. Lawrence Munson assisted at the piano, Conrad Foreberg at the organ, and Mildred Jacobsen played as interlude the violin meditation from "Thais."

'HITCHY-KOO, 1919,' IS A HIT.

Raymond Hitchcock Appears in a Gorgeous, Lively, Hilarious Revue.

HITCHY-KOO, a musical revue in two acts and fifteen scenes. Book by George V. Hobart; music and lyrics by Cole Porter. At the Liberty Theatre.

Principals: Raymond Hitchcock, Lillian Kemble Cooper, Sylvia Clark, Elaine Palmer, Ursula O'Hara, Ruth Mitchell, Florence O'Denishawn, Charles Howard, Wanda Means, Charles Witzel, Maurice Black, Mark Sullivan, James J. Doherty, Joseph Cook, Eleanor Sinnair, Billy Holbrook, Henri Lingen, Blanche Gervais, Donald Roberts.

By long odds the best of the "Hitchy-Koo" series is "Hitchy-Koo, 1919," which Mr. Hitchcock and numerous cohorts caused to be presented last night in the Liberty Theatre. In fact, there is more than a little ground for declaring that it is the best revue in town—a statement made in full remembrance of the fact that one of last night's interested spectators was Florenz Ziegfeld, Jr., who has produced a few revues of his own.

"Hitchy-Koo, 1919," in the first place, is a more pretentious entertainment than have been its predecessors. It is attractively staged and gorgeously mounted. The previous Hitchcockian revues made a point of simplicity—often a valuable quality, but not always an asset where revues are concerned. In addition to the evidence of a lavish hand in the staging, the show is rich in material. Some of the comedy is hilarious, and most of the rest is good. Hitchcock himself is given plenty to do; the remainder of the cast includes several brilliant performers. The show moves briskly. In a word, it is a hit.

It is somewhat of a surprise to find George V. Hobart down on the program as librettist, but credit must be given where credit is due. Mr. Hobart's comedy scenes can at times be charged with being conventional, but they are funny. The music and the lyrics are the work of Cole Porter, who has made a particularly clever job of the lyrics and a good, tinkling one of the music.

The star, as in his previous revues, is at his best during his informal few minutes in front of the curtain before the piece begins, chattily introducing the members of the audience to one another and explaining that his is really an educational entertainment rather than a frivolous one, and that it had been the original intention to offer it in public schools and Second Presbyterian Churches, instead of a theatre.

There follows the customary succession of unrelated scenes and numbers, of which Hitchcock moves in and out, now as Captain John Smith in a good historical burlesque, now as a barber in a hilarious rough-house scene, now as the Mayor of a rural community. First among his assistants must be listed a young woman programmed as Sylvia Clark, but whose name is probably something else. Lately risen from the chorus, she is a younger edition of Fannie Brice, with something of the same genius for nonsense, and an excellent chance to go a long way with it. Joe Cook, out of vaudeville—and emerging as Joseph Cook—abets Hitchcock and Miss Clark in holding up the comedy, and Charles Howard is another who gives considerable aid. And there is Lillian Kemble Cooper, making her first appearance in musical comedy, and doing it successfully—as any one bearing the name of Kemble would be expected to do. Ruth Mitchell, a holdover from the previous "Hitchy-Koo" shows, is pretty and vivacious, and Florence O'Denishawn, Chief Os-Ko-Mon, and a number of other dancers attend capably to the terpsichorean portion of the evening.

Woods Sees Rehearsal in Hospital.

A. H. Woods, the theatrical producer, who is recovering from an operation at the hospital of Dr. Stern, West End Avenue and Seventy-seventh Street, saw rehearsals yesterday and Sunday of two of his new theatrical productions. The company which presented "The Girl in the Limousine" at the Eltinge Theatre last night gave a performance before Mr. Woods in the hospital in the morning, and "Many a Husband" the company, which will open at the Booth Theatre tomorrow night, played before Mr. Woods on Sunday afternoon.

The producer has almost entirely recovered and will be out in a few days.

"Five o'Clock" Coming to the Fulton

"Five o'Clock," a comedy by Frank Bacon, star of "Lightnin'," and Freeman Tilden, will be presented at the Fulton Theatre next Monday night by Walter F. Wanger. The cast will include Tim Murphy, Alberta Burton, Leslie Austin, Percy Benton, Gertrude Maitland, Paul Everton, Vivia Ogden, and others.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe have been added to those who will appear at the Fidelity benefit at the Century next Sunday night. Mr. Sothern will play a scene from "Hamlet."

"The Shubert Gaieties of 1919" was transferred from the Forty-fourth Street Theatre to the Winter Garden last night. Nora Bayes, the star, retired from the cast and there are several newcomers.

Hugo Felix will write incidental music for "The Haunted Pajamas," which Edgar McGregor will produce.

Donald MacDonald has been engaged for "My Once-in-a-While," a forthcoming musical comedy.

"Oh, What a Girl!" recently seen at the Shubert Theatre, had its first performance last night at the Central.

Marion Sunshine has been added to the cast of "Nothing But Love," scheduled to open at the Lyric next Tuesday night.

Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, the film players, will be seen on the stage in "The Master Thief," a dramatization by E. J. Rose of Richard Le Gallienne's stories. The piece has gone into rehearsal under the direction of Oliver Morosco.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The disturbance that was central Sunday night over the upper lake region passed rapidly eastward, and Monday night its centre was over the Gulf of St. Lawrence. It has been attended by showers within the last twenty-four hours in practically all districts east of the Mississippi River except on the South Atlantic Coast, but Monday night the weather had cleared generally east of the Mississippi River. Showers have also fallen in the West Gulf States, New Mexico, and Southern Utah.

The weather is cooler in the interior districts east of the Mississippi River and along the northern border east of Montana. Cooler weather continues over the south plateau and south Rocky Mountain regions.

The outlook is for fair weather Tuesday and Wednesday generally east of the Mississippi River.

Temperature will be lower in the Atlantic States, the Ohio Valley, and the region of the Great Lakes.

Winds off Atlantic Coast—North of Sandy Hook to Hatteras, fresh west, fair; Hatteras to Florida Straits, East Gulf Coast, gentle variable and fair; West Gulf Coast, moderate northeast and east, cloudy, disturbance of considerable intensity over the Gulf of St. Lawrence moving eastward.

FORECAST—TODAY AND WEDNESDAY.

Southern New England, Eastern New York, Eastern Pennsylvania, New Jersey—Fair, cooler Tuesday; Wednesday fair, with moderate temperature.

Northern New England—Fair and cooler Tuesday.

Western Pennsylvania, Western New York—Fair and cooler Tuesday; Wednesday fair.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

1919.	1918.		1919.	1918.
3 A. M.	70	6 P. M.	76	74
6 A. M.	70	9 P. M.	76	69
9 A. M.	69	12 P. M.	69	66
12 M.	71	3 P. M.	66	64

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 72, for the corresponding date last year it was 68; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 60.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 69; at 7 P. M. it was 72. The minimum temperature, 71 degrees at 5:15 P. M.; maximum, 68 degrees at 8:30 A. M. Humidity, 90 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 53 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 29.84 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 29.87 inches.

AUSPICIOUS START OF FUR AUCTION

About $1,000,000 Worth of Pelts Disposed of at the First Day's Sale Here.

OFFERINGS THE BEST YET

The Highest Price Obtained for Blue Fox Was $350 and for Crown Russian Sable $750.

High prices generally, and advances in some cases that were regarded by the trade as startling, were the outstanding features of the annual Fall sale of raw furs that began yesterday in the Masonic Hall here and which will continue throughout the week. Fully $1,000,000 worth of skins as they come from the animals were disposed of during the day to buyers who had gathered from many parts of the world to attend the biggest auction of its kind that has yet been held in this city. Especially notable were the high prices got for blue fox and for the "Crown" type of Russian sables. The former sold as high as $350 a skin, while the top price paid for fine sables was $750.

The actual selling began about 10:30, after the conditions of the sale had been read by Dan Collyer, Jr., and Norman H. Bacon, the new President of the New York Fur Auction Sales Corporation, had made a short address of welcome. Mr. Bacon was introduced by Charles S. Porter, former head of the corporation and now Chairman of the Board of Directors. He dwelt briefly on the supremacy of New York in all branches of the fur industry, and also called attention to the general prosperity of the fur business in all of the leading countries of the world.

The first lot to go under the hammer of Auctioneer J. Gordon Noakes consisted of 2,360 lynx pelts. This collection of lynx was one of the smallest ever offered at a Fall sale here, and the prices obtained were high. The scarcity of these skins was attributed to the curious fact that every seven years some epidemic sweeps through the ranks of the rabbits in the lynx country, and kills them off by the thousands. This leaves the lynxes without an adequate supply of food and they, too, die off in large numbers. It was this that happened during the Winter of 1918-1919, and the shortage of lynx pelts resulting—coupled with the good demand for these skins—produced the high prices that were paid for them yesterday. The cheapest skin sold yesterday brought $19, while from that level prices ranged all the way to $59.50.

Nearly 400 blue foxskins were next put on the block. A number of fine skins were included in this collection, and the prices got for them began at $47.50, and from there ran up to $350. Prices all through this offering were said by experienced fur men to be not unusually high, and it was further said that the $350 paid for the best blue fox was a higher price than is now being commanded by some of the farm-bred varieties of silver fox. The chinchilla collection also brought out active bidding, as the collection of these skins was not large, and the quality averaged high. They brought prices ranging from $32 to $125, and so much were they wanted for immediate consumption that many of the skins had been "cleared" from the warehouse of the corporation at 48 Great Jones Street by mid-afternoon.

Russian sables were also being "cleared" from the warehouse at the close of the business day, some of them within two hours after they had been knocked down by the auctioneer. The bidding for these skins, many of which were of exceptional quality, was very active and the sale of the best at $750 brought considerable applause from the floor. The prices paid for these skins were generally high, and from $760 they tapered off gradually. The cheapest sable in the lot brought $22.50. While this is an article in which ordinarily only a limited number of the most important buyers are interested, yesterday's attendance while small, were being sold at about 250. The day's average attendance was about 400.

White fur and kolinsky also brought high prices, and the bidding for them was active all the time they were up. The kolinsky offering was the last of the day, and there was more applause when the sale of them was finished. There was a strong bullish sentiment apparent in the auction room throughout the day, and the final applause was taken to mean that the "bulls" were well satisfied with the way prices had gone up.

It was announced last night that the sales total for the day was $1,000,000. Compared with the annual Spring sale here last April, yesterday's prices showed these percentage advances: Lynx, 55; blue fox, 75; chinchilla, 65; Russian sable, medium grades, 25; Russian sable, better grades, none; white fox, 20, and kolinsky 60.

The sale will be continued today at 10 A. M. with fourteen diffirent varieties to be offered. Among them are many foreign skins from Australia, Tasmania, China and Japan. These and the domestic furs include, among other things, opossum, fox, raccoon, flying squirrel, mink and mole.

A number of out-of-town and foreign buyers attended the sale, among them being Major Frank Harris of Sydney, Australia; P. D. Olsen of Dramen, Norway; Eric Hansen of Malmo, Sweden; Albert Koenigswerther of Paris, A. Shvedsky, A. Sheshenoff, and N. Schvetzoff of Moscow, and Oscar Huber of Buenos Aires, Argentina.

Charles Goldstein came from Juneau, Alaska, and from Canada came R. S. Robinson, H. Yewdall, H. Laxer, George Sandack, and M. H. Lewinson of Winnipeg; P. P. Kennard of Kyiemore, Frank W. Sharpe of Cochrane; Harry M. Bindleman of Sudbury; Chester B. McClure and J. B. Rombaugh of Charlottetown, D. Rosenthal of Port Arthur, Robert Allish, Frederick Ramelson, and J. D. Phillipson of Edmonton; H. C. Loftree of Toronto, and J. Botterell, P. J. Drolet, L. Bass, and Edward Pollak of Montreal.

Among the buyers from American cities were Henry C. Hibbard and H. Raskin of Seattle, D. Sherman and Adolph London of Minneapolis, Harry C. Jenkins, Albert J. Steiner, and H. J. Grose of Oshkosh, Wis., and E. J. Teich, Louis Steiner, Simon Steiner, I. H. Schben, Frank B. Fingree, Hugo Wright, Marcus Harris, S. A. Harris, Merton Abraham, Samuel Mendel, Jacob Goldman, B. Tannenbaum, and Joseph Sandlits, all of St. Louis.

Other buyers who came to the sale from various parts of the country were A. L. Barr, William Kakas, W. A. Galkins, and S. M. Morton, all of Boston; George Fane of Tompkins Cove, M. H. Jewett of Redwood; N. T. Isaac Weil of Fort Wayne, Ind.; Alfred Kann of Baltimore, W. W. Wenzell of Detroit, Mich., and Frank Eder of San Francisco.

SOO TRAFFIC INCREASES.

It Was 10,202,917 Tons in September—Gain of 3,500,000 Over August

DETROIT, Oct. 6.—Lake freight traffic through the canals, both Canadian and American, at Sault Ste. Marie, aggregated 10,202,917 short tons in September, an increase of more than 3,500,000 tons over that handled in August, but 2,197,166 tons less than reported in September of 1918.

The September report has just been issued by Colonel E. M. Markham, United States Engineer, in charge of the Detroit district.

Ingress tonnage was shown last month in wheat, copper, pig iron, and stone. Lumber, flour, general merchandise, and coal showed decreases. Last month's wheat shipments were 10,180,001 bushels, as against 13,355,008 bushels a year ago. Coal shipments showed a falling off to 1,387,971 tons, compared with 3,090,377 tons a year ago.

Dark Ribbons for Camisoles.

A development in the ribbon departments of retail stores ought to be of interest to makers of women's camisoles. Instead of the usual demand for pink, blue and white ribbons to be used in making the garments, some women are now asking for dark printed goods. It seems that materials in these dark colors are being made up in combination with georgette. The switch over to such patterns was not sponsored by the ribbon manufacturers, as they are featuring only the regulation light blue, pink and white designs.

Print and Percale Prices.

Prices on prints and percale for Spring were announced to the trade yesterday after a period of much uncertainty and some rather anxious waiting on the part of jobbers. There seemed, from all accounts, to have been an understanding among the principal producers as to what would constitute fair levels under present conditions, and the prices were said to be uniform. They are a little under recent market figures for the goods and were said to be about the same as last year's. In explanation of the delay in issuing the new prices, it was said that this was due to the recent fluctuations in gray goods.

Dress Goods Deliveries Better.

An improvement has been noted in the way dress goods deliveries are coming forward. The allotment system, however, still makes it necessary to dole out supplies almost piece by piece. The slackness in the cutting-up trade has eased up the demand and done much to smooth out delivery problems, although a spell of cold weather will, it is said, result in renewed activity in the garment line. The mills are putting all their energies into the production of what are practically staple goods, which is a factor making toward more prompt shipments.

More Rug Prices Go Up.

The last of the announcements by leading houses of carpet and rug prices for the coming Spring season were made yesterday, when the new quotations of Stephen Sanford & Sons, Inc., were given to the trade. Compared with the prices on similar goods for the current Fall season, the new figures showed average advances of about 25 per cent. on Axminsters, about 20 per cent. on velvets and about 10 per cent. on Wiltons. The goods offered were quickly sold up, and the lines will be withdrawn from the market tomorrow. Orders were taken only subject to the concern's ability to manufacture and ship prior to Jan. 1. Prices are subject to change without notice. Average advances of about 27 per cent. over the corresponding Fall figures are contained in the Spring prices of the Hardwick & Magee Company, which were also given out yesterday. By this company also orders were taken only subject to its ability to ship prior to Jan. 1.

Gray Goods Sales Were Fair.

Gray goods sales in this market yesterday reached a pretty fair size in the aggregate, though the snappy buying that featured recent trading was lacking. Printcloth sales were practically all confined to delivery in the last three months of this year. Both first and second hands sold 38½-inch 64-60s at 16¾ cents for that shipment, while first hands also disposed of 39-inch 68-72s at 21 cents. Buyers traded into 1920 on sheetings again, taking this time 5-yard goods at 14¼ cents and 5.50s at 12 cents for deliveries running up to April 1. Among the sales of the clothing styles were some December deliveries of 39-inch 64-104, 4.20-yard sateens, which brought 29 cents. Thirty cents was paid for January-March shipments of standard 40-inch combed lawns.

Burlape Marking Time Here.

Buyers and sellers of burlaps here are marking time for a while, and the effect is becoming visible in the lower prices quoted on standard goods. Forty-inch cloths were held at these more or less nominal bases yesterday: Eight-ounce, 13¾ cents; 10-ounce, 17¼ cents, and 10¾-ounce, 17¾ cents. Not much activity is looked for here during the present week, as the Calcutta market will be closed as a result of observances of religious holidays that continue until Saturday. Reports were current in the local trade yesterday that a tornado had done considerable damage in India. The full extent of the damage could not be learned, but it was thought that it might have quite a little effect on the course of the market in the near future. The settlement of the British railroad strike, which came closest home to the burlap trade through its effect on the Dundee market, was welcome news to the local importers.

First Return of Dress Goods.

What was described as the first return in three or four months of goods shipped to cutting-up manufacturers was reported yesterday by the agent of a local dress goods house. When the market was in their favor buyers kept the adjusters for the mills very busy, but for the last six months even serious defects in goods were overlooked in the desire to get material whatever its condition. A return made at present, however, is not regarded as the beginning of a period of cancellations even though business is rather quiet with the cloak and suit trade. Most of the mills are protected against such a contingency, as the shipments are being made at lower prices than prevail at present, and higher priced goods on which cancellations might be made will not be ready for delivery for some months to come.

Bag Ribbons Show Spurt.

As the holiday season approaches, tinsel jacquards and other ribbons suitable for making handbags are showing quite a little activity. There is also noticeable in the trade an increased demand for vestee ribbons. Business from these two sources features operations at present in the market. The salesmen on the road report very satisfactory conditions among the retailers. The goods they are permitted to sell, however, are limited by the manufacturers, who are still experiencing difficulties with production. The worry now is the situation in regard to throwing silk and the dyers' strike, which has necessitated the houses restricting orders to the goods on the looms. Prices are firm, with the possibility of an advance if more money has to be paid for dyeing.

Big Garment Profits Questioned.

There was found opinion that a cent representative who saw fit to question a rather prevalent opinion that the coat and suit trade will pile up record profits when the operations of the present season are completed. One important consideration, besides the very high prices paid to labor, which he believes have cut into margins for the season, is that the garment manufacturers were frequently forced to pay more for their materials than the figure they used in calculating their costs. As the merchandise was sold before the advance came along, there was no way to get the original profit unless they called upon the retail buyer to pay an additional sum. This was resorted to in many cases, but in a number of others, particularly where the manufacturer enjoyed high standing in the trade, the increased cost was taken out of the profit.

FOREIGN TRADE INCREASE.

Total for Eight Months Ended with August Was $7,536,554,441.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—American foreign trade in August was valued at $963,589,867, as compared with $800,016,830 during August, 1918, the last year of the war. For the eight months of the fiscal year ended with August this year, American foreign trade was valued at $7,536,554,441, as compared with $6,069,592,901 the previous year.

Figures covering imports and exports by grand divisions and countries made public by the Department of Commerce today show that exports in August aggregated $646,258,636, compared with $527,013,916 in August, 1918, and that imports this August amounted to $307,331,232, compared with $273,002,914 in August, 1918.

Our best customer was the United Kingdom, which took exports worth $204,948,000 in August, 1919, compared with $136,417,103 in August last year. During the first eight months of the current fiscal year exports from this country to the United Kingdom have been worth $1,547,750,754. Canada ranked second, making exports from this country worth $68,448,712 in August this year, compared with $36,143,399 in August last year. France ranked third, taking exports worth $55,994,974 in August this year, with $37,946,530 in August last year.

So far this fiscal year American exports worth $22,919,681 have been sent from this country to Germany, of which $11,674,537 worth were shipped in August, 1919. None went in 1918. Exports from this country to Austria so far this year have been worth $22,788,410, of which $2,280,298 went in August, 1919. Imports from Germany to the United States this year have aggregated $1,170,216, of which $236,236 worth entered in August, while from Austria-Hungary the imports this year have been valued at $731,825, of which $330,176 worth entered in August, 1919.

GALLI-CURCI TO AID CHARITY

Will Give Columbus Day Concert for Italian Relief Fund.

Meeting to discuss plans to raise $125,000 for the relief of the destitute children and crippled war veterans of Italy at the headquarters of the Italian War Relief Fund yesterday, the committee in charge heard a report from Robert Underwood Johnson showing that hundreds of Italian children are in acute need of help from this country.

Mr. Johnson, who is Chairman of the New York Committee, announced that the first event of the campaign would be a benefit concert given by Mme. Galli-Curci at the Metropolitan Opera House next Sunday afternoon, Columbus Day. He said tickets were on sale at the temporary headquarters at 1403 Park Avenue.

Patrons of the affair will include the Italian Ambassador and his wife; Count and Countess Macchi di Cellere; the Italian Consul General, Romolo Titoni, and Mme. Titoni; Charles Evans Hughes, Mrs. Charles du Pont Fralt, R. Fulton Cutting, S. Reading Bertron, Daniel C. French, Dr. John Grier Hibben, Dr. Stephen S. Wise, Mrs. Ellihu Root, Jr., Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee, Mrs. Lewis Cass Ledyard, Morris Harvey Harkness Flagler, Mrs. Edward S. Harkness, Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Thomas W. Lamont, and Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip.

Mme. Galli-Curci will be assisted by Homer Samuels, pianist, and Manuel Berenguer, flutist. Replicas of the Santa Maria, Columbus's flagship, will be distributed to commemorate the discovery of America by the Italian explorer and to typify the friendship between Italy and the United States.

DOWNEY SHIPYARDS CLOSED

Employers Lock Out 2,000 Men After Strike Started.

The Downey Shipbuilding Corporation's shipyards at Port Richmond, Staten Island, have been closed on account of the shipyard strike, it was announced yesterday. When the 2,000 workers returned to work yesterday morning they found a notice posted by the company that the yards had been shut down.

Since the men began going out Saturday at noon some weeks ago to enforce the demands for a forty-four-hour week, only a small number of the workers at the Downey yards remained away on Saturday afternoons, but last Saturday all but about 200 quit at noon. This action caused the officials of the company to decide to close the yards until the situation is settled.

An official of the company said that the men had violated an agreement to await the decision of a conference now in session in Philadelphia.

The union says that 40,000 workers are out on strike in the New York district. The employers assert that the situation is rapidly improving and that the men are going back to work.

The Present Demand for Automobiles

Manufacturers of standard passenger cars and motor trucks are experiencing the greatest prosperity in the history of the industry. Orders far exceed both the output and capacity. New and extensive factory units must be built, necessitating new financing, which gives opportunity for profitable investment.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Rise Sharply, with High-Priced Issues Leading—British Strike End Aids.

The stock market displayed much strength yesterday, and this, too, in the face of high call money rates throughout the session. The maximum money quotation of 12 per cent. had become familiar in recent days, but last week rates were wont to swing upward and then drop rather sharply to 6 per cent., whereas the closing was at 8 per cent. on the Stock Exchange yesterday and little if any accommodation was arranged under 7 per cent. The expansion of Clearing House bank loans last week to a record level disclosed a tendency in the credit market which the leading institutions doubtless desire to change, and it would be natural enough if they sought to restrain stock market loans while the processes of building up reserves was being carried further. The evidence of a restricted money market, nevertheless, was apparently ignored by eager speculators. The outstanding feature of business was the headlong rise of a number of industrial stocks, notably those of the automobile and oil groups, for gains running from 4 to as much as 25 points. The high-priced favorites were by far the strongest of all, but the movement was general, including some of the railroad shares. The corporation bond market also was somewhat more active than in the closing days of the preceding week, and the Liberty and Victory issues were firm.

An explanation of the exuberance of traders seemingly lay in news of President Wilson's improved health. The strength of steel shares doubtless was a product of the general expectation that steel strike news from now on would deal less with the efforts of union leaders to bolster up their position and more with increased operation and output at the mills. The Street found reason also to be cheerful over the settlement of the British railway strike, whose terms indicated that an amicable agreement had been arrived at without the sacrifice of basic principles of either of the contending parties. As to this, however, later results will probably tell more than the cabled news of the ending of a strike which threatened to be hard-fought and of adverse influence upon British industry. The immediate and practical interest which American merchants and business men had in the British tieup was implied in the movement of goods into and out of Britain. What might have been a serious impediment to the exports of cotton, grain, and other raw material was happily removed in relatively short order. The release of Shipping Board vessels which had been held in port since the strike began reflected the general renewal of shipments to United Kingdom buyers. Sterling exchange celebrated the end of the strike by rising quickly to 4.25¾, a gain of more than 3 cents to the pound, but the upturn proved too large to be maintained. Before the close the check rate had sagged to 4.21¾. French exchange also looked up for a time. This and other continental quotations, however, were depressed in the afternoon and ended hardly changed at all. Quite likely speculative operations had play in the exchanges, being primary influences behind the fluctuations, as fundamental conditions having reference to the international markets were the same as last week. It was interesting to note in the day's foreign news that the British Treasury was preparing to ease the way for Italy's payment of her borrowings by postponing interest payments for a time, at the same time that the way was being paved for fresh credits for Italy at London.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Favorable News.

There was a buoyancy in yesterday's stock market, directly attributable to the news developments of the day, which could not be construed as other than favorable. Word of the improvement in the condition of the President, the settlement of the strike in England, and the opening up of steel mills all tended to restore confidence. As a result, there were vigorous price advances in many quarters of the general list, and the great predominance of plus over minus signs was an outstanding feature when trading ended.

in its endeavor to meet the present shortage of food, will have need for tremendous quantities of fertilizers to increase the productivity of the soil.

For years to come the future of the fertilizer industry is, therefore, very bright. The preferred stocks of these companies form especially attractive investments.

CITY GIVES CHARITY $1,500,000 MORE

Plea of 200 Institutions for Increased Appropriations in Budget Granted.

HIGH PRICES THE REASON

Twelve More Men and Four Women Probation Officers for Domestic Relations Courts.

Representatives of the 200 institutions which receive money from the city to care for public wards appeared yesterday before the Committee on Finance and Budget of the Board of Estimate in the office of Comptroller Craig and asked an increase of 25 per cent. in their appropriation in the tentative budget now before the board. The hospitals and other institutions were allotted $6,949,000 last year and they seek an additional $1,600,000 for the coming year.

After dinner the Committee reconvened and went into executive session to consider the requests. Last night the Committee announced that an increase of approximately $1,500,000 had been granted to the institutions. The Committee declined to grant the flat increase of 25 per cent. sought, allowing the increases to be applied where in the Committee's opinion, the need for money was greatest. In allowing the increases the Board ruled that they were made on war conditions and were subject to reduction when normal conditions again prevailed.

The petition of the Domestic Relations Courts for additional probation officers also was granted, the Committee authorizing appointment of twelve men and four women to the posts.

The committee also heard arguments in favor of doubling the number of probation officers assigned to the Domestic Relations Courts, as well as the requests from the five Borough Presidents for the coming year. It was announced that public hearings on the tentative budget had been called for Oct. 14 and 15 in the room of the Board of Estimate in City Hall, beginning at 10:30 o'clock. Hearings on the revised budget will be held at the same place on Oct. 22 and 23.

The committee yesterday was represented by Controller Craig as Chairman, Mayor Hylan, Acting President of the Board of Aldermen Michael Loughman, and the Borough Presidents were represented by their Commissioners of Public Works. Mortimer Schiff spoke in behalf of the Jewish institutions, George J. Gillespie appeared for the Catholics, while Watson Powers was there for the Protestant and Salvation Army institutions.

The speakers indicated that the institutions had got together and compared notes, finding that a 25 per cent. increase was the lowest figure they could present for consideration. All of the representatives urged the higher costs of food, medicine, bedding, and the like as making the increase imperative.

After the petitioners for more funds had presented their case Mrs. Norman S. Dike, wife of Judge Dike of Brooklyn, spoke for the New York American Hospital, an institution caring for victims of the infantile paralysis epidemic. She declared that 700 children were cared for, and sought to have the committee place the institution on the list of such places receiving aid from the municipality. Her request was taken under consideration.

The need for more probation officers was set forth by Chief Magistrate McAdoo, who declared that in the last few years there had been an increase of 50 per cent. in the number of cases coming before the Domestic Relations Courts. He declared that since the end of the war the number of deserted wives had materially increased, adding that more men were needed to make "the bad husband behave."

He outlined the work of the probation officers in endeavoring to keep families intact and out of the courts and told how they tried to reform criminal young men and make them "go straight."

"If we make salvage of human beings," he said, "we will be doing them a good turn and at the same time protecting the community."

The Chief Magistrate recommended that the staff of sixteen probation officers in Manhattan and Brooklyn be doubled.

Both Mayor Hylan and Mr. Craig broke in at one point in Magistrate McAdoo's argument to criticise severely one of his subordinates. The Mayor declared that the subordinate had inspired a number of letters to his office. "cheap acceleration," he called it—while the Controller estimated that about $5,000 worth of the city's money had been wasted by clerks who had been compelled to open and answer the letters of "acceleration." The Mayor and Mr. Craig added that they were aware that the letter writing had gone on without Magistrate McAdoo's knowledge.

SHOW BELGIUM RECOVERING

Reports from Brussels Tell of Present Industrial Activity.

Figures received yesterday by the Guaranty Trust Company from its Brussels office indicate that Belgium is rapidly recovering from the effects of the war. The figures received show that 1,700 railway trains, carrying 1,720,000 tons of freight, are moving daily. The trackage removed by the Germans has been relayed and nearly all of the bridges and viaducts that were destroyed have been replaced.

Unemployment is disappearing as is evidenced by the fact that of 800,000 iron and steel workers who were idle at the time of the signing of the armistice 600,000 are now at work. The glass manufacturing plants are rapidly recovering and present production is about 40 per cent. of that of pre-war years.

Spinning and weaving factories in Flanders are in approximately full operation, and machinery for other industrial lines has been received from Germany to the value of 2,000,000 marks since April of this year. Agricultural activities are proceeding apace with industrial, crops being reported in splendid condition. A large portion of the devastated section is already under cultivation.

$10 PAR VALUE PROPOSED.

Texas Pacific Coal & Oil May Divide Up $100 Shares.

Stockholders of the Texas Pacific Coal and Oil Company will be asked to vote at a special meeting on Nov. 11 on a proposal to reduce the par value of the shares from $100 to $10 and to issue ten shares of new stock against one share of old. This move, it is understood, is to be taken in the interest of the smaller stockholders, so that there will be more stability to over-the-counter quotations for the stock. The shares are now selling at about $1,600.

The company at present has outstanding 60,000 shares of stock, and under the proposed change this will be increased to 600,000 shares. In connection with the proposal President Edgar L. Marston says:

"There is a growing tendency on the part of corporations whose stocks are selling at a high price to reduce the par value of these stocks for the convenience of stockholders and promote stability."

Mercer Motors Co. Organized.

A new concern, to be known as the Mercer Motors Company, has been organized under the laws of Delaware to succeed to the business of the Mercer Automobile Company of New Jersey. The new company will have a capital of 110,000 shares of no par value, of which it is proposed to issue 100,000 shares immediately. It is understood that the interests behind the new company are identified with another concern manufacturing high-priced automobiles.

Central Union Trust Company of New York, Trustee

The information given below is summarized from a letter to us from Mr. Robt. C. Brown, Vice-President of the Company:

The Brazilian Traction, Light & Power Company does the telephone, electric light and power, gas, and street railway business in the cities of Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo, Brazil, and adjacent territory, serving a population estimated at over 2,000,000.

These notes are the direct obligation of the Company, comprising its only funded debt, and are specifically secured by pledge with the Trustee of $15,000,000 bonds of subsidiary operating companies.

In the last four years earnings available for the interest charges of only $450,000 on these notes averaged over $5,600,000.

The notes are followed by stocks having a present market value of about $63,000,000.
In the past three years over $9,000,000 has been expended out of earnings for additions, improvements, etc.

We offer the above notes subject to the approval of legal proceedings by our counsel, Messrs. Cadwalader, Wickersham & Taft.

New York Export Petroleum Market

Oct. 7, 1919.

With the demand of Europe steadily on the increase and no cessation of domestic requirements, continued strength dominates the oil market and values are tending upward, but closed unchanged. The outlook for refined oil and products is very promising. Illuminating oil has been an interesting feature in the oil market of the United States. The Geological Survey recently showed that the reserve supply has decreased materially. Refiners, owing to this condition, are facing the heavy demands incidental to the season with but about two months' supply on hand.

The high cost of coal undoubtedly will stimulate fuel oil consumption by power plants, etc., which will absorb large supplies. Locally, there has been no let up of demand for kerosene or gasoline, which continues active.

EXAMINE ANOTHER NORTH DAKOTA BANK

Closing of Bank in Fargo Leads to Inquiry Into Dealings of Associate in Bismarck.

RESIST STATE OFFICIALS

Nonpartisan League Heads and Bank Directors to Ask for Writ of Certiorari.

Special to The New York Times.

FARGO, N. D., Oct. 6.—An examination of the Bank of North Dakota by State Auditor Karl E. Kositzky, to determine "what moneys, if any, have been diverted to illegal purposes," was commenced this afternoon at Bismarck, the State capital, at the instance of Attorney General William Langer.

The examination grows out of the closing at Fargo of the Scandinavian-American Bank, which made loans amounting to $422,000 to the National Non-Partisan League and three subsidiary corporations, and which have been termed by the State Banking Board to be excessive and without sound security.

Other developments during the day in connection with the bank closing were the waiving of preliminary examinations by H. J. Hagen, President, and F. R. Sherman, cashier. They were held for trial before the Case County District Court in November. Each officer is accused of falsifying the bank records for the purpose of deceiving a Deputy Bank Examiner as to the actual condition of the institution. They were placed under $5,000 bonds each.

Defensive measures taken by Directors of the bank and officers of the Nonpartisan League who have mutual interests because of the possible political effect of the closing of the bank were outlined today.

The bank will go to the Supreme Court on a writ of certiorari, and would require members of the Banking Board to certify to the Court the record on which they have acted in closing the bank and ordering a receiver. This will make it necessary for the Attorney General and Secretary of State, who are majority members of the Banking Board, to justify their official actions in court, provided the Court grants the application, which will probably be filed tomorrow. Another court procedure today was that of the Attorney General, who applied in the Cass County District Court for the appointment of a permanent receiver. This is the procedure required by law in the liquidation of an insolvent bank.

Bank Officials Resist Examiners.

When Auditor Kositzky, in compliance with the Attorney General's demand, went into the Bank of North Dakota to make an examination he was resisted by J. R. Waters, manager of the bank, and former State Bank Examiner. Mr. Waters returned to the bank about an hour after the State Auditor and four accountants had taken possession, and there was a hot exchange of words.

Kositzky is one of the three Nonpartisan League State officials who recently declared themselves opposed to the league leaders.

"It is essential for the interests of the taxpayers of North Dakota that there be an immediate examination of the Bank of North Dakota," Attorney General Langer advised Auditor Kositzky in his letter of complaint. "Under the law it is your duty to make an examination. I have information that the Bank of North Dakota has become mixed up with the Scandinavian American Bank of Fargo, now in the hands of a receiver.

"As Attorney General I make formal demand that you, as State Auditor, intrusted with the safeguarding of the taxpayers' money, proceed immediately to ascertain to what illegal purposes, if any, those now in control of the Bank of North Dakota have diverted the money intrusted to their care."

The Bank of North Dakota is an institution founded by the Nonpartisan League State Administration. It is under the management of Mr. Waters, former Bank Examiner, who was charged by the State Banking Board with having given the Scandinavian American Bank of Fargo advance information as to the time examiners would enter the bank, thus permitting the bank, it is said, to prepare its records to disguise its actual condition. It has control of approximately $16,000,000, as the bank law requires that all public funds be deposited in the State Bank. The bank redeposits with private banks much of its funds. According to Manager Waters, the State Bank had about $183,000 on deposit with the Fargo Bank when it was closed.

The Nonpartisan League officials and their newspapers continue to assert that the State officers have closed the Fargo bank for political purposes only. Governor Frazier has issued a statement to the effect that he will do all in his power to stop the Banking Board officers from continuing their course, and the leading Nonpartisan League newspaper in Fargo asserts that "the noose is rapidly tightening around the Attorney General's offical neck."

MORE PAY FOR CLERGYMEN.

Program to Raise Salaries Before Episcopal Church.

Higher salaries for all inadequately paid Episcopal clergymen are provided for in a program to be submitted to the Episcopal General Convention in the budget of the church's nation wide campaign, at its meeting in Detroit, which opens tomorrow.

Approximately half of the clergy of the church, according to a recent survey, are receiving less than $1,500 a year, which, according to Government economists, is the minimum amount to maintain decently a family of two or three. Prominent laymen of the church are responsible for the program, which makes the salary increases part of the national budget of the campaign.

In a recent recommendation to the Executive Committee of the campaign these laymen urged that sufficient funds to provide every clergyman with at least a living wage be made a definite aim of the campaign. As a result, the Executive Committee has just made an addendum to the budget covering the amount necessary to give the employes of the various general boards of the church, including the missionary clergy, a salary sufficient for their reasonable requirements. Every diocese in the country has been instructed to survey the financial condition of its clergy, and to add to their survey of diocesan needs sums necessary to insure proper salaries.

Among the laymen responsible for this step are Governor R. I. Manning of South Carolina, J. H. Pershing of Denver, a cousin of General Pershing; James R. Strong of Short Hills, N. J.; Oliver J. Sands of Richmond, Va.; Frederic J. Bowne of Utica, N. Y., and Samuel Mather of Cleveland.

A survey of the New England, Middle West, and Pacific Provinces of the church shows that of 1,879 salaried clergy in these provinces, 571 receive less than $1,500 a year. Twenty-eight receive less than $500, fifty-three between $500 and $750, eighty-four between $750 and $1,000, and 506 between $1,000 and $1,500. Forty-three, most of them Bishops, receive $5,000, and fifteen more than $7,000.

C. A. Campbell's Plea Argued.

Supreme Court Justice Gavegan heard argument and reserved decision yesterday on an application by Charles A. Campbell, financial agent, of 50 East Forty-second Street, to vacate an order by Justice Erlanger for his commitment to Ludlow Street Jail because he failed to pay a judgment for $21,000 and was unable to give a bond for that sum. The judgment was obtained in Indiana by the Uintah Basin Producing and Refining Company, and asserts that as President of the corporation the defendant issued $150,000 of stock illegally and devoted the proceeds to his own use.

NEWSPRINT PRICES ARGUED.

Judges Reserve Decision After Hearing Pleas of Both Sides.

A hearing on the appeal of the United States Attorney General in the controversy over the price of news print paper was held yesterday in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in the Federal Building before Judges Henry C. Ward, Charles M. Hough, Henry Wade Rogers and Martin T. Manton, who reserved decision. George W. Wickersham, former Attorney General, appeared for the publishers, and Henry A. Wise represented the manufacturers.

Prices established by the Federal Trade Commission as of April 1, 1918, were considered unreasonable by Judges Ward, Hough, Rogers and Manton, who are acting as arbitrators, and they revised the figures as follows: Roll news in car lots, F. O. B. mill, $3.50 a cwt.; in less than car lots, F. O. B. mill, $3.62; a cwt.; short news in car lots, F. O. B. mill, $3.90 a cwt.; in less than car lots, $4.02½ a cwt.

The Federal Trade Commission, under date of Oct. 18, 1918, made supplemental findings whereby the following prices were fixed as of May 1, 1918: Roll news, car lots, F. O. B. mill, $3.68¾ a cwt.; less than car lots, $3.75¾ a cwt.; sheet news, car lots, F. O. B. mill, $4.03¾ a cwt.; less than car lots, $4.15¾.

Subsequently these prices were again advanced as follows: Roll news, car lots, F. O. B. mill, $3.75¾ a cwt.; less than car lots, $3.87¾; sheet news in car lots, F. O. B. mill, $4.15¾; less than car lots, $4.27¾.

Mr. Wise asserted that the prices now in force were entirely inadequate and that the prevailing market prices for newsprint were all the way from $5.50 to $6. In the event of a decision to restore the price of $3.50, he said, the manufacturers would be unable to realize the profit which had been named by the court. The cost of labor and freight, said Mr. Wise, has gone up during the war. Because of this the concerns he represented, the International Paper Company and the Spanish-American Pulp and Paper Company, controlling 65 per cent. of the paper used in this country, had suffered the most.

Mr. Wickersham referred to reports received from Canada showing that the cost of manufacture had decreased rather than increased. He asked that these reports be verified and promised that the publishers would pay all or part of the expenses involved, in the event the Government had no funds to meet the items.

He contended that Mr. Wise's argument was predicated on conditions in force in only two of the paper companies and that the other companies also should be heard.

BOGUS SAVINGS STAMPS OUT

Counterfeit of $5 Issue Is a Darker Blue Than the Original.

John S. Tucker, agent in charge of the United States Secret Service, Treasury Department, in the Custom House, said today that a counterfeit of the present $5 war savings stamp has been discovered. Secret Service men found that in Newark several thousand dollars' worth had been sold, but so far in all of the cases they were sold to stamp and bond buyers and consisted of folders which will be worth $100 when filled with twenty stamps in 1924.

The present war savings stamp is printed in blue, bears the head of Benjamin Franklin, and is about one-half the size of the previous one, which, printed in green, bore the head of George Washington. The counterfeit is made by the photographic process and the stamp is a darker blue than the genuine and slightly smaller. The horizontal lines beside the portrait of Franklin in the original do not exist in the counterfeit, the background being of shallow color.

Mr. Tucker said that the public should be warned against purchasing stamps except in the post offices and other Government authorized places.

WANT NEW MARRIAGE LAW.

Stamford Ministers Take Steps for Legislation in Connecticut.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., Oct. 6.—At a meeting of the Stamford Ministers' League today a committee was appointed to take steps to have the Connecticut marriage law amended to provide that the residence of both parties be stated in the application for a license, that at least two witnesses be required for a marriage ceremony; that, if either party has been divorced, a certified copy of the decree be produced when the license is issued, and that the marriage ceremony itself constitute marriage.

The league voted confidence in Rev. Dr. Clarence Hill Frank, its President, who performed the Lane-Hercht marriage here on April 4, 1918.

Premiums Would Be Collected Like Taxes Under Plan Proposed at Hearing.

Bernard L. Shientag, counsel to the State Industrial Commission, told at yesterday's session of the investigation into the Commission's affairs by Special Commissioner Connor, in the City Hall, what his department had done in prosecuting employers who failed to insure their workers in the State Insurance Fund. When he took office, he said, the penalty for ignoring the law was virtually not enforced.

"The Bureau of Workmen's Compensation, under Mr. Archer, tried to have the law enforced," he said. "Factory inspectors would report cases of non-insurance, and warning letters would be sent. We evolved a plan whereby the inspector, in addition to reporting violations of the law, would order the employer to appear before the Commission, and show why he should not be prosecuted." Miles M. Dawson, counsel for the investigating committee, asked if it would be better if employers, by law, were automatically insured with the State Fund, unless they already have taken other insurance.

"I don't see how that would help," replied Mr. Schientag, "unless you had enough inspectors to check up on every employer."

"If we had a system requiring every employer to be insured in the State fund there would be no difficulty about inspectors, would there?" asked Mr. Dawson.

"No," replied the witness, "that undoubtedly would solve the problem."

"If the payment of premiums were enforceable as taxes are, there would be a very small amount not collected?"

"Very small."

"And in that case all injured workmen and the families of all workmen who are killed would be compensated?"

"Undoubtedly."

Bernstein's Papers Retained.

Nicholas M. Muller, Assistant Manager of the fund, testified that by order of District Attorney Swann, the desk formerly occupied by A. Bernstein, formerly Chief Underwriting Clerk, who has been indicted in connection with the alleged graft cases, had been sealed. He said Bernstein had asked over the telephone for certain personal papers in the desk, but that he had replied the desk was not available to any one but the District Attorney.

Loring D. Long of New York, acting chief claim clerk, testified to the mutilation of a record book in the fund office. He said he did not know who had torn the sheets out, or why, although the book was in his control.

William C. Archer, Deputy Commissioner in charge of the Bureau of Workmen's Compensation, said the settlement of claims in lump sums had been brought about by the demands of employers and employes for a speedy determination. The employer wanted to pay and the claimant wanted his money.

Mr. Archer believed periodical payments would result in better conditions for the injured than lump sum settlements. He advocated that the Commission keep in touch with the claimant until the money awarded is placed to advantage.

The witness said the general groups of employers had paid in premiums up to June 30 $8,037,325. Premiums paid by special groups brought the amount to $11,470,218. He saidd the State fund has sold insurance at approximately 29 per cent. under the stock and mutual company rates, and has paid dividends of 13 per cent. over all groups. Had the employers purchased stock company insurance they would have paid $2,080,000.

Assuming dividends at 10 per cent. over all, he said, there would have been $1,147,000 in dividends, making a total saving of $3,177,000. His evidence tended to show that the fund had served employers for about 75 per cent. of what the same insurance would have cost in private companies.

"And the fund has come out solvent with close to $7,000,000 in assets and a surplus of nearly $750,000, has it not?" asked Mr. Dawson.

"It has."

Fund Saves for Employers.

Mr. Archer said the cost in the Ohio State Fund would be about two-thirds that of the New York State Fund.

"If premiums in stock companies in the State since the Workmen's Compensation Act went into effect up to Dec. 31, 1917, were $28,542,868.77, how much would have been saved by insurance in the State Fund?" asked Mr. Dawson.

"Something over $12,183,000," replied Mr. Archer, "up to the end of 1917; up to date I should say it is $20,000,000."

The witness estimated that 15,000 employers in the State have not complied with the law.

"When the employer is not insured and an employe is killed or injured, what happens?" asked Mr. Dawson.

"He makes the claim, and if the employer is solvent we collect it for him," replied the witness. "Often he goes without it. We have had very distressing experience in some instances. There are women and children starving because the employers did not comply with the law."

"What would you say as to feasibility of having the employers automatically insured in the State Insurance Fund and required to pay premiums, with the result that all employes would be covered?"

"If there were universal State Fund insurance, I would say it would be very desirable. At present, I would be afraid to have the large proportion of non-insurers tuning on to the State Fund, which does a relatively small amount of the total business."

"But if the provision were such that the collection of premiums would be in the somewhat summary form of tax collection?"

"I should say, then, it would be quite feasible."

The investigation will be continued today.

LIVED ON 75 CENTS A DAY.

Rich Woman's Economy Revealed in $250,000 Estate Case.

Mrs. Charlotte T. Ackerman, who left an estate of 250,000 when she died at 331 West Eighty-second Street, in February, 1917, at the age of 84 years, lived on 75 cents a day. This was shown yesterday when the report of James A. Donegan, appointed referee to take the accounting of her son, Dr. Charles A. Ackerman as executor, was filed in the Surrogates' Court. Her household consisted of a maid and a man of all work, and while they received monthly wages they provided their own food.

Dr. Ackerman and James Young Brush, the two sons of the decedent, got her estate in equal shares. Dr. Ackerman as executor made payments for services to the estate which were objected to by his brother. Among the payments was $35,000 for legal services in settling the estate. The referee approves the payments.

Hospital to Celebrate.

To celebrate the purchase of a new building adjoining the Etkur Cholim Kosher Hospital, 880 Lafayette Avenue, Brooklyn, a block party will be given next Monday and Tuesday evenings, on Lafayette Avenue, between Sumner and Lewis Avenues. By the enlargement the institution will have 150 beds. Judge Jacob S. Strahl, treasurer of the hospital, is in charge of the festivities.

Financing Exports to Canada

Is Your Canadian Customer Protected Against Fluctuations in Canadian Exchange?

MANY American exporters consider Canadian business a part of their domestic trade; while they protect themselves against fluctuations in exchange when accepting orders for shipment to other foreign countries, they neglect to do so when selling Canada. They overlook the fact that while fluctuations in the value of the Canadian dollar are not so violent as those which affect some of the European exchanges, they are serious enough to demand close attention. The risk is as great for the exporter who sells for payment in the United States as the one who sells for payment in Canadian dollars.

The New York Agency of the Union Bank of Canada offers to American exporters facilities which will enable them to protect themselves against loss at the time they contract to sell goods. Our officers will be glad to discuss your special export problems.

Nassau Electric Railroad Co.

To the Holders of the CONSOLIDATED MORTGAGE FOUR PER CENT. GOLD BONDS of the NASSAU ELECTRIC RAILROAD COMPANY.

No provision has been made for the payment of the installment of interest on the above bonds which became due on July 1st, 1919. In a suit brought by the Central Union Trust Company in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York for the foreclosure of one of the mortgages of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company the Nassau Electric Railroad Company has been made a Party defendant and Mr. Lindley M. Garrison has been appointed Receiver of the Company. As such Receiver he has filed a petition from which it appears that the Nassau Electric Railroad Company is not now earning operating expenses and that provision must be made to meet the deficit in operating expenses and also to pay for necessary equipment and that default has been made in the payment of the interest upon bonds superior in lien to the Consolidated Mortgage Four Per Cent. Gold Bonds. In order that by the concerted action of the holders of the Consolidated Mortgage Four Per Cent. Gold Bonds measures necessary for the protection of their interests may be taken all holders are invited to deposit their bonds on or before October 31, 1919, with the BROOKLYN TRUST COMPANY either at No. 177 Montague Street, Brooklyn, or at its office at No. 2 Wall Street, New York City, or with the GIRARD TRUST COMPANY, at Broad and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia, under a Deposit Agreement dated July 31, 1919. Coupon bonds must be accompanied by the coupon maturing July 1, 1919, and all subsequent coupons and ownership certificates in accordance with the Federal Income Tax Law. Registered bonds must be accompanied by properly executed transfers thereof in blank. For all bonds deposited transferable Certificates of Deposit will be issued by the Brooklyn Trust Company or the Girard Trust Company. Copies of the Deposit Agreement may be obtained at the offices of the Depositaries.

COTTON MARKET IN STRONG ADVANCE

Foreign News and Bad Weather Over Belt Run Up Prices 130 to 150 Points.

LIVERPOOL ALSO HAS RISE

Forecast of Frost Causes Concern—Closing Quotations Show but Slight Reaction.

The highly favorable foreign news and the crop and weather reports, which were decidedly bad, served to run yesterday's cotton market up 130 to 180 points over Saturday's closing figures and gave to the market a greater and more sensational degree of strength than any seen in some weeks.

The greatest strength was engendered by the advices from England, which spoke of the sudden ending of the railway strike there. This development apparently had a very notable influence on the Liverpool market, which, to equal our Saturday prices, should have suffered a bad break. It did not. On the contrary, Liverpool opened up 5 to 20 English points and then continued its rise until at the close it was 16 to 34 English points above last Friday's closing for futures and up 11 points for spots.

Our market, responding to this improvement abroad, opened up 70 to 85 points and then continued its advance until it had gained about 100 points from Saturday's last, when profit-taking halted the upward movement temporarily. However, the advance was not checked for long and after a very few minutes of hesitation it again moved upward to the high prices of the day, which were 130 to 150 points above Saturday's last and 20 to 30 points still higher over Saturday's low figures.

Other factors which helped the market yesterday were the reports of rain over much of the belt over Sunday, with cooler weather in many places, and the Weather Bureau's forecast of frost in the northern portions of the belt. A so, the improved tone of the bulletins being issued from the White House, anent the condition of the President, and their bullish effect, just as the adverse reports of last week had had a depressing influence.

The threat of frost, coming on top of the fact that the crop is considerably behind and in view of the small estimate of the final harvest by the Department of Agriculture, was considered as most serious. At best, there is not likely to be any considerable surplus of cotton this year, even counting on a relatively light foreign demand and some reduction over the last two years in domestic consumption. And if the present crop is reduced from its present prospects, the situation may easily work into one where there will be an actual shortage of the staple.

All of this was taken into consideration yesterday, when the bulls had the best day they have experienced in some time. As an indication of the great strength, even after the high prices had been recorded there was only nominal reaction, with the market closing at net gains of 120 to 155 points for the active months.

To Offer Issue of Sao Paulo Bonds.

Imbrie & Co. have purchased an issue of $5,500,000 6 per cent. external bonds of the municipality of Sao Paulo, Brazil, and will shortly announce a public offering of the securities. This firm recently placed with investors here an issue of $10,000,000 City of Rio de Janeiro bonds, and in 1916 sold an issue of $5,500,000 Sao Paulo bonds. This latter issue will mature shortly and, it is understood, a portion of the new offering will be used to retire the bonds put out here three years ago.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Forecast:

N. C., S. C., and Ga.—Fair and cooler Tues.; fair Wed.

Fla., Tenn., Ky., Ala. and Miss.—Fair Tues. and Wed.; frost given to bondholders who have not deposited their bonds or signed consents to the provisions of the deposit agreement, that the Committee will accept further deposits of bonds without penalty up to and including the close of business Wednesday, October 22, 1919.

The trustee under your mortgage is proceeding with the foreclosure, acting in consultation with this Committee. The Committee is convinced that the foreclosure must be carried to completion in order that the bondholders may be in a position to participate in the apparently inevitable reorganization of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company. Bondholders who do not consent to the agreement and deposit their bonds can expect only their pro rata share of the net results of a sale at foreclosure, which may give them only a nominal amount.

It may become necessary at any time to enter into certain agreements on behalf of assenting bondholders, or to advance funds, in order to protect the mortgaged assets. Such agreements or advances cannot be made by the Committee until practically all of the bondholders have consented to the agreement and deposited their bonds.

Bondholders, by depositing their bonds, do not obligate themselves to accept any plan of readjustment or reorganization that the Committee may ultimately adopt, as the deposit agreement provides an opportunity for depositors to withdraw their bonds within 30 days after the preparation, approval and adoption of a plan.

All bonds deposited should bear the April 1, 1919, and subsequent coupons.

TO HOLDERS OF

Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company
5% 50-Year Gold Bonds
dated October 1, 1895.

With reference to a previous notice of the Committee, addressed to the holders of the above bonds, calling for their deposit under agreement dated April 4, 1919, notice hereby given to bondholders who have not deposited their bonds or signed consents to the provisions of the deposit agreement, that the Committee will accept further deposits of bonds without penalty up to and including the close of business Wednesday, October 22, 1919.

The trustee under your mortgage is proceeding with the foreclosure, acting in consultation with this Committee. The Committee is convinced that the foreclosure must be carried to completion in order that the bondholders may be in a position to participate in the apparently inevitable reorganization of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company. Bondholders who do not consent to the agreement and deposit their bonds can expect only their pro rata share of the net results of a sale at foreclosure, which may give them only a nominal amount.

Safety
High Income
Probable Profit

These are the three outstanding features of the Cities Service Convertible 7% Bonds (Series C) which we recommend for investment.

The principal is adequately safeguarded by present earnings, which are about ten times interest charges. Income yield is about 6.40%. A large profit is likely to arise through the conversion privilege—probably 20% in eighteen months and perhaps much more.

PLEASANT, PERMANENT POSITIONS, WITH HIGH PAY, for
GIRLS AND WOMEN.
The National Cloak and Suit Company is a big retail mail order house—not a factory.
We occupy the big modern 16-story building on 7th Avenue, between 24th and 25th Sts., convenient to 23d St. station of the 7th Av. Subway, 6th Av. and 9th Av. Elevated, and 23d St. Crosstown Line.
We aim to make the National one of the best places in the city for girls and women to work; we pay the best wages and offer the opportunity for quick advancement; besides, we pay a cash bonus every three months that increases your earnings rapidly.
In return we want only intelligent, earnest girls and women, who really want to get along and make more money.
At present we have open a number of positions that do not require experience, but that do give bright girls a chance to advance quickly.
Positions now open:
STOCK WORK.
Caring for stock, such as hosiery, underwear, etc.; starting salary, $12 and bonus.
PARCEL WRAPPING.
Wrapping light parcels for customers; starting salary, $12 and bonus.
Mothers and fathers are urged to visit the National and see the working conditions here. Every department is clean and bright, well lighted and well ventilated. We have a splendid luncheon, where good luncheons are served at cost, and besides have rest rooms, library, and everything that will add to the employes' comfort.

HELP WANTED—Male.

Instruction.

TRAIN FOR
JUNIOR ACCOUNTING IN 5 MONTHS.
SENIOR ACCOUNTING IN 12 MONTHS.

The majority of office men are saying: "I simply must make more money."

Meanwhile, trained accountants are earning $2,500 to $10,000 a year in New York.

Meanwhile, business men are searching for competent cost accountants, auditors, comptrollers, systematizers, and office managers.

Meanwhile, public accounting firms are searching for junior accountants who possess the necessary training and executive ability to develop quickly into seniors.

Meanwhile, the U. S. Government requires thousands of income tax and other accountants, and offers to pay up to $6,000 a year for them.

Lack of specialized knowledge and intensive application are the most common reasons for men being barred from good executive jobs, and being held down by routine work.

If you are ambitious to become a successful accountant, or training should enable you to make yourself a Junior Accountant, earning from $25 to $50 a week, within five months, and WITHIN TWELVE MONTHS should qualify you for a position of Senior Accountant, Auditor or Income Tax Expert at a salary of at least $75 a week, with possibilities of double that, or more.

It is only a question of industry—a fixed purpose to devote a few spare hours a week to intensive training in accordance with the most successful business training system ever devised, under the tutelage of a corps of eminent certified public accountants who are renowned as practical teachers.

KILLS WIFE AND HIMSELF.

Steel Worker Acted Strangely After Surgical Operation on Head.

After shooting his wife four times, in the kitchen of their home at Newark, yesterday afternoon, Albert Lay, an employe of the Crucible Steel Company, went upstairs to his room and killed himself by putting a bullet in his right temple. Mrs. Lay staggered to the yard and was found there by the police of the Seventh Precinct. She died on the way to the City Hospital.

Lay was 48 years old and his wife 40. They had six children. The younger children were at school and the others at work. Shortly after noon Lay, who had not been working for a week, appeared at the home of his sister, Mrs. Anna Fahener, 130 Sixteenth Avenue, and left his gold watch and said "good-bye forever."

According to Mrs. Fahener her brother had been acting strangely for six years, since he was operated upon. She said since the operation he wore a silver plate in his head. Only Sunday she advised his family to have him committed to an asylum.

DAIRY PRICES START A FEDERAL INQUIRY

Food Administrator Will Appoint Investigator Into Butter and Eggs Tomorrow.

DAY EXPLAINS BACON MIXUP

Schools, Clubs, and Community Centres to Sell New 1,000,000 Pound Supply at 28 Cents.

Federal Food Administrator Arthur Williams announced last night that an investigation into the rising price of butter and eggs was going to be conducted along lines similar to the inquiry which was instituted into the question of raising the price of Jewish bread, and the investigation now going on into conditions in the wholesale meat trade of this city. Mr. Williams said he was looking for a man of the calibre of Oscar Straus, who was acting for the United States Attorney General in the meat question, or Louis Marshall, who conducted the hearings in the case of bakers who asked for an increase in the price of bread.

When that man is found he will be invited to serve with the Fair Price Committee's sub-committee on butter, cheese, and eggs to determine just how much the public shall pay for those commodities during the coming Winter. A meeting of the Butter, Cheese and Egg Committee has been set for tomorrow afternoon, at which time the Food Administrator will designate his new appointee to the committee.

In giving out the Fair Price List Mr. Williams issued the following statement regarding various items on the list:

"Five items in the grocery list, which included first and second grades of butter, cold storage eggs, lard, and evaporated milk, show increases aggregating 2.38 cents. Four items, beans, candied Western fresh eggs, Blue Rose rice, and canned tomatoes, show decreases aggregating 2.46. The net difference is a very slight saving.

"In beef the tendency is toward slightly lower wholesale prices; in lamb toward a slightly higher figure. Adopting the practice of the last two or three weeks, however, pending the investigation which is being conducted by Mr. Oscar Straus, prices will continue to remain unchanged. Three items of pork show an aggregate reduction of 1¾ cents, which is reflected in the retail prices of this schedule."

Jonathan C. Day, Commissioner of Markets, announced yesterday that the 1,000,000 pounds of bacon allotted to the city out of the surplus army supplies would be sold in the political clubs of the sixty-two assembly districts in New York, as well as at community centres, and the school buildings. The clubs, which had originally planned to sell the 35 cent bacon obtained through the efforts of Dr. Day by M. J. O'Connor, were enthusiastic when informed that they were to get a share of the bacon from the army, which is to retail at 28 cents a pound.

The Commissioner issued a statement yesterday explaining how it was that he had not been aware of the supply of army bacon allotted to the city when he planned for the sale of the 35 cents a pound meat. According to Dr. Day, the War Department had informed him that the city was to get no more surplus army food, after the present supply had been exhausted, and he was getting ready to close down the schools. He had persuaded Mr. O'Connor, however, to take up an offer of Swift & Co. for 1,000,000 pounds of bacon, to be sold at 35 cents a pound, to help the people get lower prices. Bacon retails now at from 50 to 70 cents a pound.

Commissioner Day said last night that the announcement of Colonel J. M. Carson, Zone Supply Officer, that the army was ready to supply bacon at 28 cents a pound to the city was a distinct shock to him—and a pleasant one. "New York will take all the bacon the army will give us at 28 cents a pound," added Dr. Day. "I hope we can get more than a million pounds of it."

Colonel Carson said yesterday that he had informed Deputy Commissioner of Markets Edwin J. O'Malley about the supply of 28 cent bacon some days ago.

TO BRING CROUCH HERE.

Man Charged with Abandoning Family Is Arrested in California.

Albert W. Crouch, a naval architect, formerly living in Yonkers, who was indicted by the Westchester Grand Jury in June for abandoning his wife and three boys and was arrested last Thursday in San Francisco after living in Oakland with the wife of Major William F. Deegan, will be brought back to Yonkers by two deputy sheriffs who will leave for San Francisco today. Crouch, who was a close friend of Deegan, left on Feb. 23, 1917, with Mrs. Deegan, when his youngest child was three months old. Divorce suits are now pending by Major Deegan against his wife and by Mrs. Jean C. Crouch against her husband.

The papers in the case show that Crouch, who had an office at 233 Broadway, got a decree of separation last year. Major Deegan, who is an architect and builder, is associated with Starrett & Van Kleeck, at 8 West Fortieth Street. The papers show that after leaving New York together, Crouch and Mrs. Deegan went to New Orleans and lived there as brother and sister at 6,801 Constance Street. In Oakland they took title to a house at 2,623 Humboldt Street as Albert W. and Violet A. Crouch.

An affidavit by Major Deegan said in part:

"In February, 1917, Albert W. Crouch told me he was in love with my wife and cared more for her than for all the women in the world. My wife was present at the time, and Crouch turned to her and asked how she felt about it. She replied that her sentiments were the same as his and that she hoped to be able to marry him."

File Clerks Work Faster With This Indestructible Guide

One of the greatest handicaps to speed in filing is the guide that does not stand wear. The time lost in this way is a big reason why thousands of concerns will have no other but

Amberg Indestructible Guides
(Metal Tip—Reinforced)

File clerks prefer it because it enables them to work with increased speed and no greater effort. They know that hard service will not impair its durability or clear reading. Amberg Indestructible Guides will last as long as the furniture. They are one tangible proof of Amberg leadership in solving filing problems. Here are some additional advantages:

1. A re-inforcement—not an attachment. All the strength of the press-board plus a wide metal strip.
2. Will not cut fingers. No sharp edges.
3. Index labels securely attached. No inserting labels.
4. Large label space.
5. Labels quickly changed.
6. File drawers retain their orderly appearance.

PHEW! Our Complete-To-Wear Custom Clothes have lifted a load from our minds and our tailors' backs. We are now more favorably circumstanced than ever before to give the finical man, who is wedded, without a divorce-coupon, to clothes cut to his individual measure, that earnest, enthusiastic type of custom service which takes infinite pains.

It will be our goal to keep our service on a plane of excellence equal to that of any Merchant Tailor in New York, yet our prices will not be raised—$40 to $80, as heretofore, for Suits and Overcoats to individual measure.

AUTHORITY ON FINANCE

The Annalist, published every Monday by The New York Times Company, is recognized as an authority on financial and commercial conditions. On news stands, 10 cents; $4 a year by mail.

Ήδη ἔχομεν ἀναγνωρίση τὴν ἀνεξαρτησιαν του Τσεχο-Σλοβακικου Κράτους. Ὁ Πρόεδρός μας ἐχηρύχθη ὑπέρ Θέρας καὶ ἀνεξαρτήτου

"GREEK"
some facts family men must remember

TO the experienced business man the financial news may be more fascinating than a popular novel. His family, on the other hand, probably finds it unintelligible. To them it is Greek.

Yet experience must show you that many a business man overrates the business ability of his own family.

Witness the assurance with which so many business men take for granted their families' ability to manage successfully the property they leave behind.

When their heirs come into possession of this property, they find themselves confronted by many puzzling problems in investment.

Take the case of your own family. Is your wife well posted on stocks and bonds? Your sons and daughters, too—is their, perhaps, superficial business experience sufficient to bring them safely through the shoals and breakers of large financial operations?

In cases of this kind, where large sums of money are handled by heirs inexperienced in business, financial shipwreck is likely to result.

A Mercantile trusteeship insures for the property you leave, sound business management by men of wide experience in trust-investment matters.

Such a business arrangement also relieves your heirs of the worry, uncertainty and heart-breaking red tape so often involved in handling willed property.

A Mercantile trusteeship for your family is readily established. We shall be glad to explain any details.
